DEMOCRATIC CONTROL OF HOUSE CHALLENGED BY LATE RETURNS

GAS EXPLOSION AND FLAMES IN MINE KILL 150

Officials Trapped With Workers by Blast Near Athens, Ohio.

CONCUSSION, FUMES, FIRE PERIL RESCUERS

Hundreds Rush to Scene of Hocking Valley's Worst Tragedy.

HOPE FOR THOSE YET UNDERGROUND WANES

Disaster Brings Back Aid of Governor Who Recently Saw Poverty in Region.

Millfield, Ohio, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Between 150 and 160 persons were killed by gas explosions and fire in the No. 4 mine of the Sunday Creek Coal Co. here today, Andrew Ginnan, State mine inspector, told Pearl Hill, veteran bookkeeper for the company, after traversing the entire mine tonight.

The men were entombed in the underground passages of the mine by a terrific explosion which swept through the workings while some 300 miners and others were inside.

Officials Among Victims.

Five hours after the blast ripped through the mine it was on fire, and poisonous gases, generated by the original explosion, caused a second blast which endangered the rescuers.

Fate willed that man and boss should join in the underground tunnels just before the explosion spread its destruction. In addition to the miners who were digging coal when the explosion came, there were in the mine a party of officials, including W. E. Tytus, president of the Sunday Creek Co., and a widely known coal operator.

Officials of the company announced that the following members of the official party were dead and their bodies recovered: W. E. Tytus, president of the company; P. A. Coen, vice president; H. H. Upson, Newark, superintendent of the mine; H. E. Lancaster, Athens, chief engineer of the mine.

Triple Hazard Feared.

Also Walter Hayden, Athens, mine superintendent; Joseph Bergen, of Philo, superintendent of Ohio Power Co.; Robert Parsons, Zanesville, superintendent of the Columbia Cement Co.; Thomas Trainer, Zanesville, an official of a glass company. The bodies of the others known to have died have not been identified.

The fact that the gas was so thick and that fire had intervened to complete this human trap led rescuers to believe that human life in the mine could not exist.

They felt that if any of the ill-fated men escaped the force of the blast they fell victim to fire or gas.

Crowd Besieges Mine.

The quiet of a cold, damp early-winter day in the little mining town was shattered during the afternoon as the gas let loose far down in the earth and with the instinct of those who live near coal mines, the residents of the surrounding countryside knew that a disaster in the form of an explosion had visited them. Coatless and hatless women and children, some of whom had relatives in the mine, ran to the shaft mouth and begged for some assurance that their kin was safe. Many of the women were hysterical. As the crowd grew, the handful of volunteer rescuers who were trying to get down the shaft in the hope of aiding their fellow workmen, were hampered in their task of mercy.

Like wild fire news of the blast spread through the hocking coal fields. Hundreds rushed to the mine—some to offer their services in rescue work—others to stand by and do nothing, and still others to get excited and cause confusion. Finally the mine officials summoned the National Guard, and when the soldiers arrived, the situation settled down and all semblance of disorder disappeared.

Efforts of Rescurers.

Expert rescue workers, including teams from other nearby mines, from the Ohio department of mines and from the Federal Bureau of Mines at Pittsburgh, reached the scene tonight, and soon the work of mercy was on an orderly basis. The masked squads of twenty men worked in relays, remaining inside the mine just as long

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The untrammeled elections of a free people are not only the method by which expression is given to a sound and constructive public opinion but also the means of revealing and thereby relieving internal disorders and discontent. They act as tonic for the body politic. Under this most wise system our people can register their approval and disapproval in a wholesome, legal way. The political atmosphere becomes cleared.

It is evident that the same unrest that has been so marked in Europe, Asia and South America has had its counterpart in the United States. Expression has been given to it here in a purely constitutional way without any violence or disorder. This is another demonstration of the strength of our institutions and the attachment of the people to the orderly process of law. The difficulty is that future action of the National Government is uncertain. We shall have to increase our faith. The country will survive. We can be sure of that. What policy it will adopt in legislation will remain unknown until the new Congress meets in December, 1931. But with the same President in office there can be no sudden or violent change.

MONTGOMERY VOTE HELD LEE'S VICTORY

Complete Returns, However, May Upset Leads Held by Democrats.

ZIHLMAN LAGS BEHIND

Incomplete returns, with the count from two and a half important precincts still missing, last night indicated that the Lee forces would continue dominant in Montgomery County, Md., politics.

Inasmuch as the uncounted precincts are Republican strongholds, however, there is a possibility seen that the Democratic lead now none too wide, may be upset by the time the final returns are in.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee last night conceded the election of Walter W. Dawson, Republican candidate for the House of Delegates, and although Robert G. Hilton, the Democratic candidate for State senator, was leading his Republican opponent, Thomas M. Anderson, by about 350 votes, Hilton's election was not seen as an accepted fact.

Two precincts in Rockville, Anderson's home town, and a definitely Republican center, still were to be heard from, and a large Anderson poll is expected from them. While Bethesda probably will be found to have gone Democratic when the count is completed, the remaining two precincts of the unreported five, Chevy Chase and Takoma Park, are Republican.

Following are the votes cast in the precincts already reported:

For representative, David J. Lewis, Democrat, 7,773, and Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican, 6,911; for associate judge, Sixth Judicial Circuit, John S. Newman, Democrat, 7,498, and Arthur D. Willard, 6,853.

Governor, William P. Broening (Republican), 7,188, and Albert C. Ritchie (Democrat), 6,925; attorney general, William P. Lane, jr. (Democrat), 7,180, and David A. Robb (Republican), 6,621; comptroller of the treasury,

ZIHLMAN DEFEATED BY DEMOCRATIC FOE

Plurality of David J. Lewis Is Expected to Reach 5,000 Mark.

70,000 VOTES COUNTED

David J. Lewis, Democrat, will occupy the seat in the House of Representatives formerly held by Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, the former's election over the latter having been conceded by Zihlman adherents when three-fourths of the vote in Western Maryland had been counted.

Almost complete figures in the five counties which make up the Sixth Congressional District in Maryland showed Lewis leading by a margin of 4,948 votes, with indications that his plurality would reach the 5,000 mark.

The Democratic candidate swept four of the five counties in the district and gave Zihlman a terrific fight even in the latter's home county, Allegany. In this county Mr. Zihlman managed to maintain a lead, but his final margin was only 307 votes, whereas at the previous election Zihlman overpowered the opposition by some 6,000 votes.

Garrett County, considered strongly Republican and which Zihlman had expected to win by at least 1,000 votes went to the Republican by only one vote and the winner had a plurality of 1,000 in Montgomery and Frederick Counties. Lewis held a big lead also in Washington County.

Zihlman, long chairman of the District committee of the House, was considered one of the administration's bulwarks in Maryland, but three factors counted against him in the race with Lewis. Antiadministration sentiment, due to business depression and the high tariff; the F. H. Smith Co. scandal during which Mr. Zihlman, one of the directors of the firm, was indicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud and last, the prohibition question, Mr. Zihlman

NAVY OFFERS TO PLAY ARMY CHARITY GAME

$1,000,000 Gate Seen if Contest Is Staged at Chicago.

WEST POINT REFUSES RIVAL'S CHALLENGE

HEAD AT ANNAPOLIS EAGER FOR CONTEST

Shows Faith by Offering to Play G. W. U. Game for Benefit Purpose.

Resumption of football relations between the Army and the Navy this season in a game at Chicago with the prospect of a $1,000,000 gate for charity was the offer made yesterday at Annapolis by Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, of the Naval Academy.

Admiral Robison, in a statement printed today by the New York News, declared that "Navy considers it a privilege to aid the suffering citizens of this country and is willing and eager to assist in any way possible. If a game with Army can be arranged or as ordered arranged by President Hoover as commander in chief, Navy will be pleased to play its traditional rival."

The offer of the Naval Academy met with the unqualified refusal of West Point to play any post-season game for charity according to an Associated Press report quoting Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy.

"For a great many years the Army gave 100 per cent of its receipts to charity," said Maj. Gen Smith, "but of late years this has been reduced to 10 per cent. The money is handled through the Army and local relief societies."

The head of the Military Academy also pointed out that the Army was furnishing work for men on buildings, which are being constructed as fast as funds are available.

"The climatic conditions also are undesirable for a post-season game and any injury sustained by an Army player would mean he would drop far behind in his classwork."

Admiral Robison did not discuss the matter of eligibility that caused the break in relations with Army after the 1927 game in New York when Annapolis authorities insisted that the Military Academy enforce the three-year eligibility rule in vogue among the colleges, but Bill Ingram, head coach of the Navy team, saw no barriers to be overcome.

Coach Ingram Enthused.

Ingram was enthusiastic at the prospect of another game with Army. "I have the finest bunch of boys in the world," he said. "Four of my backs weigh only 150 pounds, but you ought to see them tear. We will play Army anywhere, under any conditions and be tickled to death to do it."

"We will beat Army, too. We will play the team as they are. They can use any players on their squad, transfers or not. Why, say, those boys would give their right arms to play Army again. We'd give up half a dozen scheduled games to make room for the Army game. We have no alibis and will offer none. This is too big a thing—this is a national crisis we are helping to avert and you can

Arid Majorities Cut Down, but Liberals Are Still Lacking Control.

REFERENDA FOR REPEAL

(Associated Press.)

Tuesday's election produced accretions to the Senate wet group from Ohio, Massachusetts, Illinois and Rhode Island, and at least one dry gain—from Iowa. Many prominent drys were returned to the Senate, too, and the big arid majority in that body is expected to be continued.

The preponderant prohibition majority in the House also was cut, but while the Association against the Prohibition Amendment was claiming big net gains in both houses, the Antisaloon League pointed out that the wets were still far below the necessary two-thirds majority needed to submit a repeal amendment to the States.

The antiprohibitionists recorded overwhelming victories in the repeal referenda in Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, and provided further ammunition for a wet-dry battle, which the prohibitionist Borah has forecast in the early future.

A resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment, introduced last session by Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, is pending before the Senate judiciary committee.

KENTUCKY RETURNS TO NORMAL LINE-UP

Usual Eight Democrats and Three G. O. P. Expected for House Seats.

ROBSION TRAILS LOGAN

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A definite trend toward the pre-1928 political line-up in Kentucky was indicated as returns were compiled today. If continued, it would restore the pre-Hoover ratio of eight Democrats and three Republicans in the Lower House of Congress.

In the senatorial races the Democratic candidates for long and short term maintained a lead that had started with the first four precincts to report. They still had to overcome, however, the votes from the normally Republican Fifth, Tenth and Eleventh districts, in which only 226 of the total of 1,499 precincts had reported.

Judge M. M. Logan (Democrat) had

SCHALL MAKES BELATED BID FOR VICTORY IN MINNESOTA

Hoidale's Lead Cut to 6,000 Votes With Many Precincts Unreported; His Election and Logan's in Kentucky Would Give Senate Rule to Democrats by One.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

As the final picture of Tuesday's political turnover unfolded last night the Democratic bid for control of both the House and Senate, a most serious one on the earlier returns, was being stubbornly challenged by the Republicans.

In the House the count stood: Republicans, 208; Democrats, 208; Farmer-Laborite, 1. This left 17 seats to be accounted for. The Democrats would not have control, it is believed, even if they won the four outstanding districts in Kentucky which they lost in 1928 and which they have reason to expect back, and the Third and Fifth Indiana, the Seventeenth Pennsylvania and the First Utah, the only outstanding districts in which they are believed to have a chance.

A last-minute bid in Minnesota by Senator Schall for the lead, which has been steadily held by Einar Hoidale, Democratic senatorial candidate, threw that fight into considerable doubt after Hoidale had generally been assumed to be victorious.

This beclouded the possible senatorial line-up.

Hoidale's Lead Cut to 6,000 Votes.

With several hundred precincts in the State yet to be heard from, Hoidale's lead had been reduced to some 6,000 votes. With Hoidale and with the election of a senator from Kentucky to replace the Republican incumbent, Senator Robsion, they would have control of the Senate with 48 members to the Republican's 47, Senator Shipstead, the lone Farmer-Laborite making the ninety-sixth member.

Whether even under these circumstances they could organize that body or whether Shipstead would vote with the Republicans creating a tie, to be broken by Vice President Curtis, would remain to be seen.

With the loss of Hoidale the Democrats would have but 47 members and the Republicans 48, assuming the former wins in Kentucky.

Both Democratic senatorial candidates in that State, for the long term and short term, were running well ahead.

Shipstead, although usually voting with the Democrats on legislation, has voted with the Republicans on organization matters and quite probably considerable pressure would be brought upon him by his fellow Progressives, such as Senators Borah and Norris, to continue to do so, as a Democratic organization would unseat them from their important committee chairmanships. Should Shipstead vote with the Republicans on the question of organization there would be a tie, broken by Vice President Curtis.

On the other hand, there is the question whether the Republicans would want to organize the Senate under such conditions as they would have to.

Results Mark Major Overturn.

Tuesday's results, coming in in more definite form yesterday, was in every sense a major overturn, and the most harrowing experience the Republicans have had since 1910, when a political upheaval presaged the Democratic victory in the presidential elections the following year.

The overturn, reflecting the general political unrest of the country, was confined to no particular section, and was undoubtedly due to a conglomeration of causes.

From up in Yankee Connecticut, where the Democrats elected a governor for the first time in eighteen years and two members of the House, and gave Majority Leader Tilson the scare of his life, to the Pacific Coast, where an independent won the gubernatorial fight in Oregon and the Democrats picked up a congressional seat, the unrest manifested itself at the polls.

And it was a topsy-turvy thing. The President's stand-bys, notably Senator Henry L. Allen, went down to defeat and, on the other hand, three men, Senators Pine, in Oklahoma; McMasters, in South Dakota, and, presumably, Senator Schall, in Minnesota, who had helped to make his presidential life miserable since he has been in office, fell by the wayside.

Norris, Borah Victors.

Still others, stronger men, indeed the leaders whom these three unfortunates followed, were triumphantly

Former Broker Declared Guilty of Embezzlement

John G. Yates Fails to Take Stand on Charge of Larceny After Trust in Stock Transaction for Mother-in-Law of Admiral Senn.

John Gordon Yates, former stock-broker with offices in the Wilkins Building, was convicted by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Oscar R. Luhring yesterday afternoon on an indictment charging embezzlement and larceny after trust in connection with a stock transaction.

Justice Luhring reserved sentence and Yates was permitted his liberty under the bond posted at the time of his arraignment.

Yates did not take the stand and his attorney, Jacob Halper, offered no testimony, contenting himself with submitting the case to the jury on the Government testimony and his own opening and closing arguments.

The former stock broker was specifically charged with larceny after trust and embezzlement in connection with 25 shares of Consolidated Investment Corporation preferred stock which had been entrusted to him by Mrs. Belle V. Shaw, mother-in-law of Admiral Senn.

The Government, represented by Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher, introduced testimony to show that on November 5, 1928, Mrs. Shaw had given to the broker the shares of stock with instructions that he dispose of them and reinvest the proceeds. Mr. Gallagher drew from witnesses the statement that Yates had disposed of Mrs. Shaw's stock for $370 in cash and bonds to the par value of $3,500.

It was brought out by the prosecutor that Yates had not told about disposal of the stock, and had failed to account for the stock that had been entrusted to him.

On cross-examination, Mr. Halper drew from Mrs. Shaw the admission that Yates had paid her $300 on account in installments. Mr. Gallagher, in his argument, however discounted this, declaring that Yates had paid the $300 for the purpose of keeping Mrs. Shaw quiet and from initiating an investigation.

A Significant Fact

Economic authorities throughout the world are unanimous in their advice to the public to buy now . . . They have no bias to prejudice their judgment. No commercial interest to gain by advocacy of such a policy. Nothing but a sincere desire to accomplish a public service. They know that when there is no market for merchandise, people can not be employed to make it and that every industry and profession, even the business of government, is affected adversely by the circumstances. . . . Whether the matter is dealt with in vast generalities or in specific instances the conclusion is the same—It is of greatest advantage to BUY NOW!

Geographic Society Aerial Cameraman Freed in Chile

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Capt. Albert W. Stevens, aerial photographer for the National Geographic Society, was released after three hours of detention, William S. Culbertson, American Ambassador to Chile, announced this evening. The ambassador himself had demanded that Capt. Stevens be liberated.

While the reason for Capt. Stevens' detention was not announced by authorities his friends here believed that it was due to his refusal to submit to the Chilean army photographs which he had taken in this country for the National Geographic Society of the United States. Capt. Stevens has taken the position that he need not ask permission of the Chilean government to carry photographs out of Chile since the pictures were made in cooperation with the Chilean army. He had done his camera work while riding in military planes piloted by Chileans.

It was not known tonight at the American Embassy whether the aviator would be permitted to leave this country without further delay.

Capt. Stevens had been detained at Los Cerrilos Airfield near Santiago after he had been compelled to return from Ovalle, where he landed while traveling as a passenger in a mail plane bound for Peru.

Ambassador Culbertson tonight prepared a written protest which he plans to submit tomorrow to Col. Merino, who is in charge of the aviation section of the army. The ambassador said he would demand immediate clearing up of the case.

He emphasized the point that his complaint would not be against the government of Chile, but against Merino, since the colonel himself had approved the photographing of scenes within the boundaries of this country.

Capt. Stevens achieved prominence in scientific and aviation circles here rejected, one of them, Senator Borah, with hardly any opposition. The other, Senator Norris, did not win as handily as he perhaps would have liked to, but his victory was all the more impressive because of the fight to defeat him.

McMasters, Schall and Pine got caught in the political cross currents that go with the insurgent school. That is to say while they probably reflected the predominant political philosophy of their State it was not strongly enough entrenched to withstand a combined Democratic and regular Republican attack. Undoubtedly, what might be termed the Hoover regulars of their States contributed to their defeat.

Allen's defeat is not considered a matter of national significance in itself. While undoubtedly the legatee of the general political dissatisfaction that swept over the country, it was the attack on him personnally that, in the final analysis, spelled his defeat.

Labor Was Against Him.

Organized labor in the State was bitterly against him because of his establishment of an Industrial Relations Court and his prohibition against labor strikes when he was governor several years ago. So bitter was this feeling against him that the governor who appointed him to the senate, Clyde Reed, met defeat some time ago.

Running in the same State with him, Senator Arthur Capper, won easily and over an opponent looked upon as a most formidable candidate, heretofore, former Gov. Jonathan Davis. Capper, however, has the knack of being considered a supporter of the administration, of the farm bloc, the labor bloc; indeed, a supporter of everybody.

The argument as to whether the dissatisfaction with economic conditions or that with prohibition constituted the dominant force in the overturn will probably assume the proportions of that over the question of "who won the war?"

Little Comfort For Drys.

Unquestionably, prohibition ran side by side with the depression issue over the general battle area. In many instances, Republican candidates turned from dry to wet in an effort to lessen the force of the onslaught, but with the possible exception of Massachusets, it is doubtful if there would have been a single noteworthy overturn on the question of prohibition alone.

Certainly there is but one slight bit of comfort for the drys in the whole outcome, and that is in the fact that they saved Senator Dan C. Hastings in Delaware. In that State it is believed to have been complimentary to the drys that Hastings even overcame the depression surge to stave off a wet opponent. The outcome is believed to have turned in that State on the prohibition question.

Walsh's Election Not Dry Victory.

The defeat by Senator Walsh of the Republican wet in Montana, Justice Alfred P. Galen, can not be classed as a dry victory. At best Galen turned out to be only a moist wet and the wet and dry issue figured very little in the campaign.

Neither did Gifford Pinchot win his uphill gubernatorial fight in Pennsylvania because he was a dry. He won in spite of that. The unchallenged victor in that State's senatorial race, James J. Davis, is generally classed as a dry. It would be interesting to see if he would really vote dry if a showdown on the question should come in the Senate. After all, he has never gone any further than to say that he believed in upholding the President on the subject.

almost 25,000 votes tonight over John M. Robsion (Republican) on returns from nearly half of Kentucky's precincts. Logan's running mate, Ben Williamson, seeking the short term, had a 28,000 lead over Robsion with 40 fewer precincts reported.

Long term, 1,795 out of 4,155 precincts: Logan, 140,346; Robsion, 115,670.

Short term, 1,735 precincts: Williamson, 131,671; Robsion, 102,782.

The Louisville Courier-Journal and the Louisville Herald Post agreed tonight that all indications were that eight Democrats and three Republicans would make up Kentucky's congressional delegation.

A surprising feature of the early returns was the close race A. J. May was giving Mrs. Katherine Langley, Republican incumbent in the tenth. The returns were meagre, in that race. In the senatorial contest 84 precincts out of 328 showed Robsion 7,940 to 5,119 for Logan. Mrs. Langley was running behind in her home county of Pike.

Democrats were elected without opposition in the first, second and third congressional district, and a Republican got the office in the fifth without Democratic opposition. In the contested districts returns compiled tonight from county clerks' announcements were:

Fourth District, House—98 out of 318 precincts: Carden, (D.), 11,641; Craddock, (R.), 8,445.

Sixth District, House—26 precincts out of 305; Spence, (D.), 2,008; Newhall, (R.), 1,523; McLaughlin, (I.), 451; Thobe, (S.), 14.

Seventh District, House—112 precincts out of 369; Chapman, (D.), 10,995; Blackburn, (R.), 7,886.

Eighth District, House—102 precincts out of 266; Gilbert, (D.), 10,186; Taylor, (R.), 8,441.

Ninth District, House—198 precincts out of 465; Vinson, (D.), 18,074; Kendall, (R.), 12,788.

Tenth District, House—79 precincts out of 326; Langley, (R.), 6,495; May, (D.), 6,016.

Eleventh District, House—126 out of 340 precincts; Finley, (R.), 12,965; Duffield, (D.), 6,403.

Protest to British Consul Is Started

Boat Was "Outside," Captain Says; Crew Say They Are Canadians.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A complaint against the Coast Guard for seizure of the motor boat Mazel-Tov was lodged today by her captain, Frank R. Cook, with Henry D. C. Dubois, British Vice Consul for Rhode Island.

Capt. Cook, who is under bail with eight of the Mazel-Tov's crew for hearing on charges of having conspired to smuggle liquor into the United States, presented a written statement to the vice consul alleging that his vessel was seized last Saturday outside the 12-mile limit and he and his crew were held incommunicado for 24 hours before arraignment. All of the crew claim to be Canadian subjects.

Mr. Dubois, Capt. Cook and Joseph E. Fitzpatrick, counsel for the crew, said they intended to press the complaint before T. M. Gray, British Consul General at Boston.

The Mazel-Tov was picked up by the Coast Guard destroyer Tucker.

G. O. P. HEAD CALLS VOTE 'CRAZY QUILT'

Fess Declares Foes Gained More in House Than He Had Expected.

SHOUSE LOOKS TO 1932

(Associated Press.)

Republicans last night viewed the pattern of yesterday's elections as a "crazy quilt," but Democrats looked into the same design and saw victory for them in 1932.

Chairman Fess, of the Republican national committee, in a statement through that group last night, analyzed the returns and said there was no uniformity to the result—"What we have is simply a crazy quilt."

"Neither prohibition nor the tariff had been a controlling factor and it would be extremely difficult to measure the effect of the business depression," he said.

Meantime, Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, perused the incoming reports and said that it had been "axiomatic in our records that when the administration in power loses control of the national legislature in a by-election it has to surrender the entire government in the next following general election."

Silent on Senatorial Vote.

Mr. Fess made no mention of the senatorial or gubernatorial elections, but said that the Democratic gains in the House had exceeded the 35 seats the Republicans expected them to gain, but not by an overwhelming margin.

"Viewing yesterday's election as a whole," Fess said, "There is an apparent absence of the general effect of any outstanding national issue. It is obvious that prohibition cut both ways across the party lines, but while forming a controlling factor in some instances, it developed no national trend. The tariff may have had its effect in isolated sections, but certainly it was not a dominating issue in a national sense."

The Republican chairman said that it was too early to predict "the precise majorities that will eventuate in Congress."

"Even without such a disturbing factor as the economic depression," he said, "it was to have been expected that the Republicans would lose approximately 35 seats in the House, as this is about the average that the party in power loses in off-year elections, particularly after landslides in presidential contests of the proportions that attended the election of President Hoover. While this number has been exceeded, it has not been exceeded by an overwhelming margin."

Hoover Remains Silent.

The statement came from the national committee after a day and night of watching the administration majority dwindling in both houses of Congress.

President Hoover, too, had remained silent, but was in constant touch with the changing record of developments. By radio, from private sources and from press associations, the news went to the White House and the national command.

Fess singled out a number of instances to show that neither the tariff nor prohibition had been a controlling factor. He pointed to results in New York, Ohio, Montana, Massachusetts, Kansas, Virginia, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Illinois, Idaho and Nebraska as indicating that "no uniform pattern is discernable."

Oregon's Governor-Elect Carries On for Dead Friend

Julius L. Meier, Independent, Gains 50,000 Majority for Post for Which State Senator Joseph, Republican and Lifelong Companion, Was Nominated.

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Picking up the political reins dropped in death by State Senator George W. Joseph, his lifelong friend, Julius L. Meier, wealthy merchant, today won the Governorship of Oregon.

Meier, owner of one of the largest department stores on the Pacific Coast, ran as an independent and his vote exceeded by about 50,000 the combined votes of his three opponents.

Meier entered the campaign in June after Senator Joseph, Republican nominee, and his lifelong friend, died suddenly. Years before the two had been law partners. Meier later became manager of the large department store and Joseph became identified with a prominent law firm.

The two were reunited when Joseph joined the Meier organization as chief counselor.

A year before his death Joseph ran counter to the State supreme court by attacking alleged shortcomings of several of its members and by charging two of them with corruption. Disbarment proceedings were filed against him and sustained. He then entered the May primary seeking "vindication" and was nominated on the Republican ticket.

At Joseph's death Meier declared he would "carry on" his friend's platform for "honesty in State government, power development, free speech, and liberty to all." Meier did not receive the Republican nomination but elected to run an an independent when, he said, the Republican central committee rejected the Joseph platform.

Exposition Draws Heavy Attendance

Idamae Is Winner of Typing Contest Held Last Night.

Attendance figures at the sixth annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at the Washington Auditorium will reach 100,000 by Saturday, if the present rate of attendance is maintained, it was announced last night.

Last night's typewriting contest was won by Idamae Melendy, of Takoma Park. She typed at the rate of 90 words a minute. Promise Klose, of Takoma Park, was second with slightly more than 86 words a minute; Mary Alexander, of 8729 Piney Branch Road, defending champion 86 words was third; Cushmann, of 5428 Hawthorne Place northwest, 83 words, fourth and Eunice Graham of 104 Park avenue, Takoma Park, 79 words a minute, fifth.

Presidents of leading civic organization and other groups will be guests at the exposition tonight. The local National Guard unit presented an exhibit last night. Aeronautics will be celebrated tomorrow night. The exposition opens each afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and closes at 10:30 o'clock.

UP-STATE NEW YORK GOES TO ROOSEVELT

MARGIN SET AT 725,000

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The State-wide scope of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's reelection challenged the attention of political analysts today, as late returns made no dent in his record plurality of 725,000 votes.

For the first time within memory a Democratic candidate for State office had carried up-State New York in addition to piling up the usual huge Democratic majority in New York City.

Gov. Roosevelt, final returns showed, had carried 42 counties outside of New York City, against 14 for Charles H. Tuttle, his Republican opponent, and one for Robert P. Carroll, Independent dry candidate.

The largest number of up-State counties a Democrat ever carried before was 13, swung into the Democratic column by Alfred E. Smith when he defeated Gov. Nathan L. Miller (Republican) in 1922.

Returns from all but 73 of the State's 5,397 districts gave Gov. Roosevelt 1,760,445; Mr. Tuttle, 1,035,900, and Mr. Carroll, 179,092.

The governor, before returning today to the capitol at Albany to resume work on the State budget where he left it in the closing weeks of the campaign, attributed his smashing showing up-State to his stand for State development of waterpower resources rather than their disposition to private parties.

He acknowledged, too, that some of his plurality was creditable to his stand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment — although Mr. Tuttle, too, advocated repeal—and there were, he said, a lot of other factors.

In the Republican organization today the situations of Mrs. Ruth Pratt and F. H. LaGuardia, reelected to Congress from New York City districts, were regarded as unusually strong. Both conducted their campaigns independently of the State Republican body, and both won where defeat had been forecast.

MISSION GETS GIFT OF 100 MARINE COTS

Gen. Matthews Also Sends Men to Set Up Beds in Dormitories.

With men sleeping on the floor of the new lodging house of the Central Union Mission at 313-15 Sixth street, Supt. John S. Bennett told his troubles to the Marines, with a result that the Marine Corps has provided the building with 100 steel cots brought here from the Quantico, Va., barracks.

Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, quartermaster general of the corps, was all sympathy when Mr. Bennett told him of the plight in which the mission found itself and guaranteed to furnish the cots, at least. He not only had them delivered to the door but half a dozen husky Marines set them up in the dormitories. Mr. Bennet now is seeking mattresses and blankets to help them sleep a bit better.

At the monthly meeting of the mission's directors last night it was announced that the Men's Bible Class of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, under leadership of A. L. Baldwin, has assumed responsibility for rent on the building due to the District Government for the next six months. The Life Insurance Managers of the District of Columbia, it was announced, have guaranted payment of the coal bill during that period.

George G. Horning has given 347 used garments for distribution to men who apply for clothing. The lots consisted of overcoats, suits and odd pieces of clothing which were grabbed up practically in a single day. Mr. Horning also has promised to make his annual gift of shoes for 150 children of the mission at Christmas.

Man Is Sentenced For Hurting Baby

Placed Child on Stove and Then Under Cold Water, Two Testify.

Robert L. Johnson, 22-year-old colored man living in Snow's Court southwest, was sentenced to jail for six months yesterday in Police Court, when it was testified he had held a baby on a hot stove and then put it under a cold water faucet to cool.

Johnson was charged with assault on Walter Spencer, also colored. Assistant District Attorney Michael Keogh brought out testimony that the actual assault was committed on the baby, and the charge was changed.

Eva Spencer, sister of Walter, declared that both she and her brother had heard her 2-year-old sister crying. She said she investigated and found Johnson setting the baby on the stove, and then, she said, he held the child under the stream of water "to cool it off." Johnson said they were all drunk and denied the charge. Police testified they found the baby's clothes soaked with water.

Lawyer Is Arrested On Baltimore Warrant

Frank Vernon Aler, 63-year-old lawyer living on Second street near B street southeast, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Headquarters Detective Sergeant R. J. Cox on a fugitive warrant forwarded here by George G. Henry, chief police inspector, at Baltimore.

According to police here, Aler is wanted in Baltimore on a charge of passing a worthless check for $25. He was arrested at his office in the Insurance Building. The man was arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court, who released him on his personal bond for an appearance in court December 4.

Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez, of Mexico, will leave here tonight for Jackson, Miss., where he will be guest of the city at a football game between Mississippi College and National University of Mexico.

At the football tilt, which marks one of the few times Mexican squads have invaded United States territory in quest of Rugby football honors, Ambassador Tellez will act as the official representative of President Pascual Ortiz Rubio.

$300,000,000 BOND SUMS VOTED IN U.S.

CLEVELAND PASSES FUND

(Associated Press.)

The expenditure of more than $300,000,000 in State and municipal construction programs appears to to have been approved at Tuesday's election.

But while some voters were indorsing bond issues for that sum, others refused to let their governments assume $37,000,000 indebtedness for similar work.

The largest issue which apparently carried was in New Jersey, where $83,000,000 is to be spent on highways, $7,000,000 for water district improvements and $10,000,000 on public institutions.

Louisiana approved constitutional amendments including provisions for the issuance of $75,000,000 bonds by the State against anticipated gasoline taxes for 25 years for road building, $5,000,000 for a new state house, and a $4,000,000 issue with which New Orleans will refinance itself.

New York And Chicago.

County and city issues at Cleveland for about $40,000,000 worth of street, sewer and river betterments were reported to have substantial majorities.

Other issues which seemed to have passed are:

New York State, $50,000,000, some for public institutions; Chicago and Cook County, $28,250,000, street work, playgrounds and water filtration; Baltimore, $16,000,000, paving and other improvements; San Francisco, $850,000, jail; Wyoming, $2,600,000, roads; Oregon, $155,000, bridge.

Some Issues Rejected.

Voters seemed to have rejected: $19,300,000 for power projects and sewers in Los Angeles; $10,000,000 for Arizona highways; $5,200,000 for an airport and an incinerator at San Francisco; $1,675,000 for public improvements in Washington; $1,250,000 for Oregon water front improvements.

Three large bond issues were approved by the voters in California. They voted for an issue of $35,000,000 to finance the construction of a bridge across the Golden Gate; $20,000,000 to finance the purchase of farms by World War veterans and $10,000,000 for improvement of San Francisco Harbor.

An issue of $3,000,000 was voted in Montana for construction and improvement of fourteen State institutions. A three mill tax levy to provide for support of units of the State University experiment and extension service also was approved in that State.

ZIHLMAN DEFEATED BY DAVID J. LEWIS man running as a dry, while Lewis, who is an abstainer, ran as a wet.

The latest tabulation on the Zihlman-Lewis fight with more than 70,000 votes counted is as follows:

	Zihlman	Lewis
Montgomery	5,728	6,698
Frederick	7,303	8,156
Washington	6,912	10,350
Allegany	10,280	9,973
Garrett	2,452	2,451
Total	32,670	37,628

If the Republicans retain control of the House under its seniority rules the chairmanship of the House District committee, held by Representative Zihlman, will now pass to Representative Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, who was acting chairman during the last session of Congress. Mr. McLeod was reelected Tuesday.

Two vacancies now exist in the committee. Representative John W. Palmer, of the Seventh Missouri District, was defeated by Samuel C. Major, a former member, while the death of Representative Florian Lampert, following an automobile accident last summer, created the other.

HOOVER VINDICATED, LUCAS MAINTAINS

Thinking ePople Still Retain Faith in Him, Declares G. O. P. Director.

PARTY HANDICAPS CITED

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, in a statement here tonight concerning the election, said, "Everything considered, the result must be taken as a vindication of the national administration."

Mr. Lucas declared: "It appears the Democrats have taken practically all the normally Democratic districts won by the Republicans in the landslide of 1928. The line-up in the next House of Representatives will be about the same as it was following the off-year election of 1922.

"No national administration has ever gone into a congressional election under such adverse conditions. Everything considered, the result must be taken as a vindication of the policies of the national administration and as convincing evidence of the abiding faith of the thinking people of the country in the leadership of Herbert Hoover."

Mr. Lucas added that Kenetucky Republican leaders were of the belief they would retain the doubtful Fourth and Sixth Districts, and had not yet lost hope of holding three others—the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth.

Rotarians Hear Talks By Gordan and Brown

Linley V. Gordon and George Rothwell Brown yesterday addressed the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon in the Willard Hotel. Mr. Gordon spoke on "International Problems" while Mr. Brown's topic was "The Political Situation."

Thirty visiting Rotarians were introduced by Henry W. Brawner, jr., president of the club. Reports of various committees were read by A. F. E. Horn, secretary. George Whitwell, former president, spoke on the "Buy Now" campaign. A Christmas party and "Ladies Night" were announced for December 27.

WET FORCES SCORE INCREASES IN MEMBERSHIP OF CONGRESS

Whether there is any chance of this being debated in the short session starting next month remains to be seen. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who was reelected, heads the judiciary group. He is an advocate of prohibition.

Although the prohibition question was unrecognized by either major party as a national issue in Tuesday's election, the controversy monopolized the stage in many States. Bound up in the many wet victories, together with the adoption of wet State platforms, are possibilities for 1932 which only time can develop.

The Democrats, with their dry South and wet East, and the Republicans, divided between a wet East and dry West, admittedly are facing a complex problem for the presidential race two years hence.

President Hoover's law enforcement commission is working on its prohibition report. Should it be transmitted to Congress at the next session, the recommendations undoubtedly will be the subject of sharp debate.

The high spots of the election from the wet-dry standpoint were the Senate victories of antiprohibition Democrats in Ohio, Massachusetts and Illinois—Bulkley, Coolidge and Lewis—and the reelection in Delaware of Senator Hastings, Republican prohibitionist, over Thomas F. Bayard, Democrat repealist, and in Montana of Senator Walsh, Democratic dry leader, over Albert J. Galen, Republican advocate of State liquor control.

Senator Metcalf's Republican victory in Rhode Island over former Senator Gerry, Democrat, was a wet gain despite that both were running as repealists. Metcalf came out for repeal during his campaign. He formerly was listed in the dry column.

Representative Dickinson, (Republican), Iowa, chalked up a Senate dry gain by defeating Steck, Democratic incubent, who favored repeal of the eighteenth amendment in replying to the antiprohibition organization's national questionnaire.

Davis Wins For Wet.

Secretary Davis, who stood on the 1928 prohibition enforcement plank of the Republican party, won over a Democratic wet in the Pennsylvania Senatorial race, while former Gov. Pinchot, a prohibition leader, took into camp John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal, who had the support of the association against the prohibition amendment in the gubernatorial contest.

Among the dry leaders returned to the Senate were Borah, Republican, and Robinson, Arkansas; Sheppard, Texas, and Glass, Virginia, Democrats.

Offsetting the dry governor victory in Pennsylvania, was the election in Massachusetts of Joseph B. Ely, Democrat, over Gov. Frank G. Allen, Republican. Ely advocated repeal of the State enforcement act, while Allen wanted it retained.

The beating administered by Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, to Charles H. Tuttle, Republican gubernatorial nominee, brought the following comment from Director Curran, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment:

"The big fact is the Republican party of New York is now for repeal for the first time and for all time. So far as prohibition is concerned, Roosevelt has run away with the New York election because he is for real repeal—without reservation."

Sabin Sees Sentiment Change.

Charles H. Sabin, head of the Crusaders, an antiprohibition organization, saw in the whole election a "changing public sentiment" toward the dry laws.

The majorities for repeal in the Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts referenda do not bind the legislatures to follow the results, but merely are expressions of sentiment.

Complete returns from Rhode Island, one of two States which never ratified the eighteenth amendment, showed 172,218 for and 48,845 against repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Besides voting for repeal of the amendment, Illinois also gave big margins for repeal of the State enforcement act and for modification of the Volstead law.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment later claimed 8 repeal gains in the Senate and 70 in the House as a result of the election.

Curran Analyzes Congress.

"Congress still lags behind the sentiment of the people," said a statement by Director Curran. "Yet even in Congress the 15 repeal senators in the last Senate have now increased to 20 in the next Senate, consisting of 9 Republicans and 11 Democrats. The 75 repeal representatives in the last House have now increased to 145 in the next House, consisting of 74 Republicans and 71 Democrats, almost double the old number."

"In order to measure the repeal strength in Congress," Curran added, "we must add to the senators and representatives who thus individually favor repeal at least as many again who may not yet have come as far as that, but are ready at any time to vote to submit the question to the people of the United States.

"The people are now about three to one in favor of immediate repeal. How long will a hesitating Congress do the dog-in-the-manger act and refuse to let this vital question go before the people for a vote? The demand of the American people today is 'Give us a vote on this.' That is all we want. The question is ready for decision."

RASKOB EXULTANT OVER PARTY'S GAIN

Declares Clean-Cut Victory Won Solely on Issues, Without Abuse.

SAYS AIM IS 'FAIR TRADE'

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The Democratic sweep in yesterday's election was hailed in a statement here tonight by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who said it was "a notable victory on clean-cut political issues, untarnished by misrepresentations and personal abuse from our side."

He declared "the tariff is an economic question" and pledged himself to "do everything in my power to have the Democratic party treat it as such, instead of as a political question, thus removing from business minds all cause for alarm and uncertainty as to how business will be treated in the event yesterday's election and future elections give control of Congress to our party."

Mr. Raskob said his party's aim was "fair trade, not free trade, as the Republicans would have everyone believe.

"Our policy," he stated, "will be to guarantee to our manufacturers that full tariff protection needed to equalize the differences in the cost of production of domestic articles and similar articles of foreign manufacture, giving full consideration to the cost of material, transportation, containers and other charges and expenses incident to placing the article in condition, packed ready for delivery, including advantages granted to a foreign producer by a foreign government and, in general, all advantages and disadvantages in competition which increase or decrease the total cost at which domestic or foreign articles may be delivered in the principal markets of the United States.

"Particularly will we insist that the tariff be such as to enable our manufacturers to pay the high wages necessary to maintain the high standards of living established in this country as a result of the high wage scales installed by President Wilson, during the great World War."

Mr. Raskob gave credit for his party's success to the organization built up within the last 18 months by Jouett Shouse, Chairman of the Democratic executive committee, and Charles Michelson, head of the party's publicity department.

Lawyer Congratulated By Court on Election

Attorney Michael J. Lane received the congratulations of the court yesterday when he appeared in a case before Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court. Lane had been elected Mayor of North Chesapeake Beach, polling a total of 274 votes.

Assistant District Attorney Michael Keogh, prosecuting counsel in the case in which Mr. Lane represented the defendant, also joined the judge in offering his congratulations before the trial proceeded.

Nevada G.O.P. Reelects Arentz and Governor

Reno, Nev., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—All of Nevada's present office holders, including congressman and governor, who sought reelection yesterday, were returned to office by majorities ranging from 2,000 to 6,000.

Gov. Fred B. Balzar, Republican, won over Charles L. Richards, Democrat, for about 2,500 votes, and Representative S. S. Arentz, Republican, defeated his Democratic opponent, Maurice J. Sullivan, who ran as a wet, by about 2,000 votes. The only new face at the capital after January 1 will be Gray Mashburn, Democrat, who succeeds Attorney General M. A. Diskin, Democrat.

Thief Gets $200 Wrist Watch.

William J. Lavarre, of 1215 Emerson street northwest, yesterday told police that a woman's wrist watch, valued at $200, had been stolen from his residence at that address.

WHAT THEY SAID

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Jouett Shouse, of the Democratic national executive committee: "On the assumption that we have carried the three possibly doubtful States (South Dakota, Minnesota and Kentucky), the vote in the next Senate will be 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and 1 senator affiliated with the Farmer-Labor party. Thus, it would appear that the Democrats will probably organize the next Senate. In the House, there is, I believe, an assured Democratic majority."

Vice President Charles Curtis, in Chicago: "We expected the Democrats to be disappointed, but it was we Republicans who were disappointed. However, it will only act as a spur to our party in the drive of 1932—they can't beat us in 1932."

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi: "Without doubt in certain States the prohibition question played an important part, but taken as a whole, it was a Nation-wide rebuke to the Hoover administration for the flagrant violation of campaign pledges."

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee: "I must have time to study this apparent Democratic landslide in Ohio. I do not know whether it is the wet and dry question or not."

William M. Butler, in Boston, former chairman of the Republican national committee and defeated candidate for senator: "Unemployment conditions exploited by our opponents brought about this result. The sad part of it is that no beneficial results can come from this change. It will bring no benefit to the Commonwealth or country. * * * Our defeat is but temporary. Principles are worth fighting for, win or lose."

Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia: "The election clearly indicates that the country does not approve of the policies and enactments of this administration for the relief of existing depressed conditions."

New York—Alfred E. Smith: "It is with the deepest interest that I am following the result of congressional and State elections throughout the country. Our own great victory in New York State is an indication of the present trend. The minority has asserted itself in no uncertain terms and the people of the country have responded to a truthful and direct presentation of the issues. I am deeply gratified by the success of the Democratic party throughout the country."

DEMOCRATS VICTORS IN PRINCE GEORGES

Party Wins Majority on Board of Commissioners and in State Delegation.

CONTEST RAN CLOSE

Saved from defeat only by the heavy and favorable vote of the last four precincts counted, the Democratic party yesterday returned to power in Prince Georges County. Democratic candidates won all the important offices save one, and have a majority on the board of commissioners and in the delegation to the State Legislature inaddition. They carried their State ticket.

There are three Democrats among the five commissioners, and five of the seven legislators are of the victorious party. Alan Bowie, after a race which was close until the very end, won the office of county prosecutor, and Brice Bowie will be the new county treasurer. But a Republican, W. Curtis Hopkins, was selected as sheriff, beating his opponent by a large majority.

The new commissioners are Frank Small, jr., Walter M. Grimes, Robert E. Brown, George N. Bowen and Ormond W. Phair. The legislators chosen yesterday are Charles C. Marbury, Kent Roberts Mullikin, J. Guy Bell, Oliver Metzerott, William P. Keys and Richard C. Zantzinger. Lansdale G. Sasscer was reelected to the State Senate.

Ritchie Given Good Margin.

Ritchie beat Broening by more than 1,100 votes in the 18,000 cast but many of the other offices were won on a much smaller margin. In the race for the treasurship of the county, Brice Bowie topped William A. Duvall by only 543, while Alan Bowie won as county prosecutor with only 564 votes to spare.

Returns came in slowly, and at an early hour yesterday morning there were reports from but five precincts of the 29 in the county. The first of these gave the advantage to the Democrats, but the tenor changed later, and the Republican vote piled up throughout the day. Only the last minute reports from Chillum District, Berwyn, and Riverdale served to turn the scale in favor of the Democrats.

Just before the reports came in from these four places, Albert R. Hassall led Alan Bowie by only 94 votes, after the two had run neck and neck all day. Chillum District had always been considered a Democratic stronghold, but the independents had been particularly active there, and it was feared that their work might cause a lack of Democratic support when it was most needed.

District Saves Party.

Apparently, however, Chillum voters were not to be swayed from their old allegiances, and the district came through to save the party. This was the sort of election where one family, voting as a whole, can swing the tide. Some of the candidates for the House of Delegates were separated by as few as three votes, though both Marbury and Small gained an early lead of several hundred, and held it throughout the day as the returns came in.

Counting of the votes was delayed by the number of split tickets, which increased the work made necessary by the large ballot. Party leaders did not receive any returns at all until more than seven hours after the polls had closed, and judges and tellers labored nearly 24 hours at other polling places before the count was finished.

Summerfield D. Hall was reelected to serve as clerk of the Circuit Court, and William T. Davis was selected as registrar of wills. Thomas Edward Latimer, whose father long served in that position, was chosen as county surveyor.

Democratic Gains Sweep Oklahoma

Lone G. O. P. Representative Survives; Gore Has Lead.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A lone Republican representative survived a State-wide Democratic comeback which swept the Oklahoma election yesterday. Republican hopes of retaining either of the two congressional seats gained in 1928 faded tonight when complete returns, partly unofficial, in the First District gave a lead of 314 to Wesley E. Disney, Democrat, over Representative Charles O'Connor, incumbent.

William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, governor-elect, and T. P. Gore both held imposing leads over Republican opponents. Gore, a former senator, who is blind, defeated W. B. Pine, Republican incumbent. M. C. Garber, veteran of the Eighth District, was the only Republican able to retain his seat in the House of Representatives.

Norris Reelected To Nebraska Seat

G. O. P. Governor Trailing Bryan; Democrats Gain Two House Seats.

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The reelection of United States Senator George W. Norris (Republican) and the defeat of Gov. Arthur J. Weaver in Nebraska were apparent today. Two years ago

KANSAS GOVERNOR MAY BE DEMOCRAT

Only Few Votes Separate Candidates for Office of Chief Executive.

OFFICIAL COUNT NEEDED

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Kansas voters who have contributed a United States Senate seat to the Democratic column, electing George McGill, of Wichita, a newcomer in national politics, over Senator Henry J. Allen, Republican, also have given a Democrat a chance for victory in the governor's race.

With all contests settled tonight except the gubernatorial battle between Harry H. Woodring, Democrat, and Frank (Chief) Haucke, Republican nominee, it appeared that the official count would be required to determine whether this normally Republican State is to have a Democratic executive as well as a Democratic senator.

Only a handful of votes separated Woodring and Haucke in tabulation of unofficial returns with the count nearly complete. Haucke regained some of the ground lost during the afternoon and was ahead by 250 votes when all but 36 precincts out of 2,674 in the State had been heard from. The totals at that stage stood: Haucke, Republican, 213,327; Woodring, Democrat, 213,077; Dr. John R. Brinkley, Independent, 179,725.

While Guy T. Helvering, Democratic State chairman, claimed election of Woodring, Republican leaders made no concessions. John Hamilton, Republican State chairman, said it was probable that the outcome would await the official canvass.

With the result so close, absentee ballots were expected to have an important bearing in settling the contest.

Long to Be Urged To Resign His Post

Democrats, in Close Line-Up, Want Governor in Senate.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Advices were received here today that the Democratic leaders in Washington planned to bring pressure to bear on Gov. Huey P. Long to resign the governorship and take his seat in the United States Senate on March 4 to break a possible even division between Republicans and Democrats as a result of the elections.

Before this word was received, Gov. Long announced that he would adhere to his previous decision to complete his term as governor, ending in the spring of 1932, before going to Washington as the successor to Senator Joseph E. Ransdell.

Gov. Long had expected to remain in Louisiana and carry out his $100,000,000 public building program. Prior to his election to the Senate, Gov. Long repeatedly said he would never let the governorship fall to Lieut. Gov. Paul N. Cyr, his bitter political enemy.

Wine Makers Eye Wet Gains in U. S.

Italian Hopes Are Revived for End of Dry Laws to Cut Surplus.

Rome, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Leaders in the Italian wine industry today displayed great interest in the results of the American elections, particularly as they affected the question of prohibition.

Giornale d'Italia published extensive reports and speculated whether the dry laws were coming to an end.

Experts estimated there are 645,000,000 gallons of Italian wine in storage. Some of the leaders in the industry are making plans to take advantage of any change in the American situation.

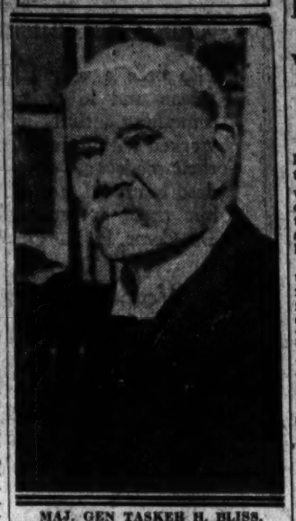
NEAR DEATH



MAJ. GEN TASKER H. BLISS.

Hope Is Abandoned For Gen. T. H. Bliss

War-Time Chief of Staff Is at Walter Reed Hospital; 77 Years Old.

Physicians at the Walter Reed Hospital yesterday abandoned hope for the recovery of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, war-time chief of staff who was recently stricken with a recurrent attack of an intestinal ailment. They said, however, that the general might live several weeks.

Almost 77 years old, Gen. Bliss retired only three years ago, when he relinquished the task of administering the affars of the National Soldiers Home here. Even during his years of retirement, Gen. Bliss has been an active worker for international peace. He is one of two surviving members of the American Peace Commission appointed during the administration of President Wilson.

He has been ill for the last six months, but it was only yesterday that his condition took a decided turn for the worse. His daughter, Mrs. Adolph Knopf, of New Haven, Conn., has been summoned to his bedside. His wife and son, Edward Bliss, are also with him.

DEPRESSION BLAMED FOR RESULT IN OHIO

Majority of Bulkley Over McCulloch for Senate Nears 175,000.

WHITE'S LEAD IS 110,000

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—General economic conditions resulting from the business depression and the drought were held responsible today by United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch and Gov. Myers Y. Cooper for the Democratic landslide which carried them to defeat yesterday.

Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, the Democratic senator-elect, attributed the Democratic victory to disapproval by voters of "the method of tariff making embodied in the Hawley-Smoot law" and their "dissatisfaction with the results of the eighteenth amendment."

The wave of votes that swept Mr Bulkley, into the senatorial seat and George White, Democrat, into the governor's chair, apparently carried with it the lieutenant governorship, probably both branches of the State Legislature and numerous county offices which now are held by Republicans.

Successes of Republicans.

Republicans saved three State offices and two supreme court judgeships by good majorities. The State offices remaining Republican are secretary of state, treasurer and attorney general.

Senator-elect Bulkley, who conducted his campaign chiefly on advocacy of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, will have a majority that is expected to approach 175,000, while Governor-elect White's majority may approximate 110,000.

William G. Pickrel apparently has defeated Lieut. Gov. John T. Brown by a small majority.

Mr. Bulkley and Mr. White carried most of the large-city counties.

Votes in Rural Sections.

Many hitherto staunch Republican rural counties gave small to substantial majorities for Mr. White, but almost invariably they held with Senator McCulloch.

The vote on senator and governor in 8,431 precincts out of 8,985 in the State was: Senator, Bulkley (D.), 969,604; McCulloch (R.), 821,848. Governor, White (D.), 971,605; Cooper (R.), 865,776.

At least six Republican representatives fell by the wayside to bring Democratic representation at Washington to nine. The Democrats had three incumbent members, all of whom, with the possible exception of Robert Crosser, Twenty-first (Cleveland) District, were elected by large majorities. Mr. Crosser and State Senator George H. Bender were in a close contest, with Mr. Crosser maintaining a small lead.

Nicholas Longworth had a narrow squeak, the unofficial count giving the Speaker of the House of Representatives a majority of only 3,101, compared to majorities that ran into five figures in previous contests.

Fairfax Group Donates Fare to Stranded Girl

A group of fifteen Fairfax County residents yesterday came to the rescue of a stranded 15-year-old girl in the county jail and thereby relieved an embarrassing situation.

Held for the past three weeks, since her arrest with a man in an alleged stolen auto on information from Massachusetts, Clara Smith has had no means to return to her home near Boston when authorities came for her companion.

The Fairfax Board of Supervisors tried to evolve a plan to send the girl home despite the fact that the county had no money for such purposes when representatives of the Fairfax Firemen's Association and other citizens attending the meeting donated the necessary $17.50.

Iowa Republican Wins Over Steck

Dickinson Goes to Senate; State Offices Are Taken Easily by G. O. P.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Iowa Democracy in Congress henceforth will be heard only in the lower House, the State's only Democratic senator since the Civil War having met defeat by his Republican opponent.

Dan F. Steck, of Ottumwa, who six years ago won his senatorial seat in a contest with Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, was defeated in yesterday's election by L. J. Dickinson, who rolled up a majority of upward of 75,000.

Mr. Dickinson relinquished his seat in the House to wage the battle against Senator Steck. While he was ousting Iowa's Democratic senator, one of his House mates F. D. Letts, of Davenport, went down before Ben M. Jacobsen, Democrat, campaigning for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Republicans were swept into the State offices by a two to one margin.

Utah in Congress May Remain Republican

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Utah's delegation in the National House of Representatives apparently will remain Republican. Returns today gave Republican candidates in both districts leads which it seemed unlikely to be overturned.

Representative Don B. Colton, Republican, had a margin of more than 8,000 votes over Joseph Bitle, Democrat. In the Second District the race was closer, but Frederick C. Loofbourow, Republican candidate for the seat vacated by the death in office of E. O. Leatherwood, Republican, was leading J. H. Paul, Democrat, by better than 2,000.

Representative Hawley Has Over 6,000 Lead

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Willis C. Hawley, Republican representative from the First Oregon District, and chairman of the House ways and means committee, continued to increase his lead over his Democratic opponent, W. A. Delzell, as returns were tabulated today.

Of the 859 precincts in the district, 617 gave Hawley 39,119 votes and Delzell 32,469.

first aid for fatigue is food with Sugar in it

Mid-afternoon fatigue can be overcome by eating a piece of candy, a cake or a sweetened drink. A glass of water sweetened with refined sugar is invigorating.

RECENT experiments among business men and women have proved that a sweet of some sort eaten in the afternoon will renew vigor in a most speedy and satisfactory way.

The reason for this is that the sugar in the food or drink supplies the system with quick nourishment. The value of refined sugar as presented in candy, sweetened beverages, and small cakes — all readily accessible — is therefore worth remembering.

Prove for yourself the value of refined sugar as "first aid" for fatigue. Take time out for a sweet food or drink. The Sugar Institute.

"A Remarkable Revelation"

Says

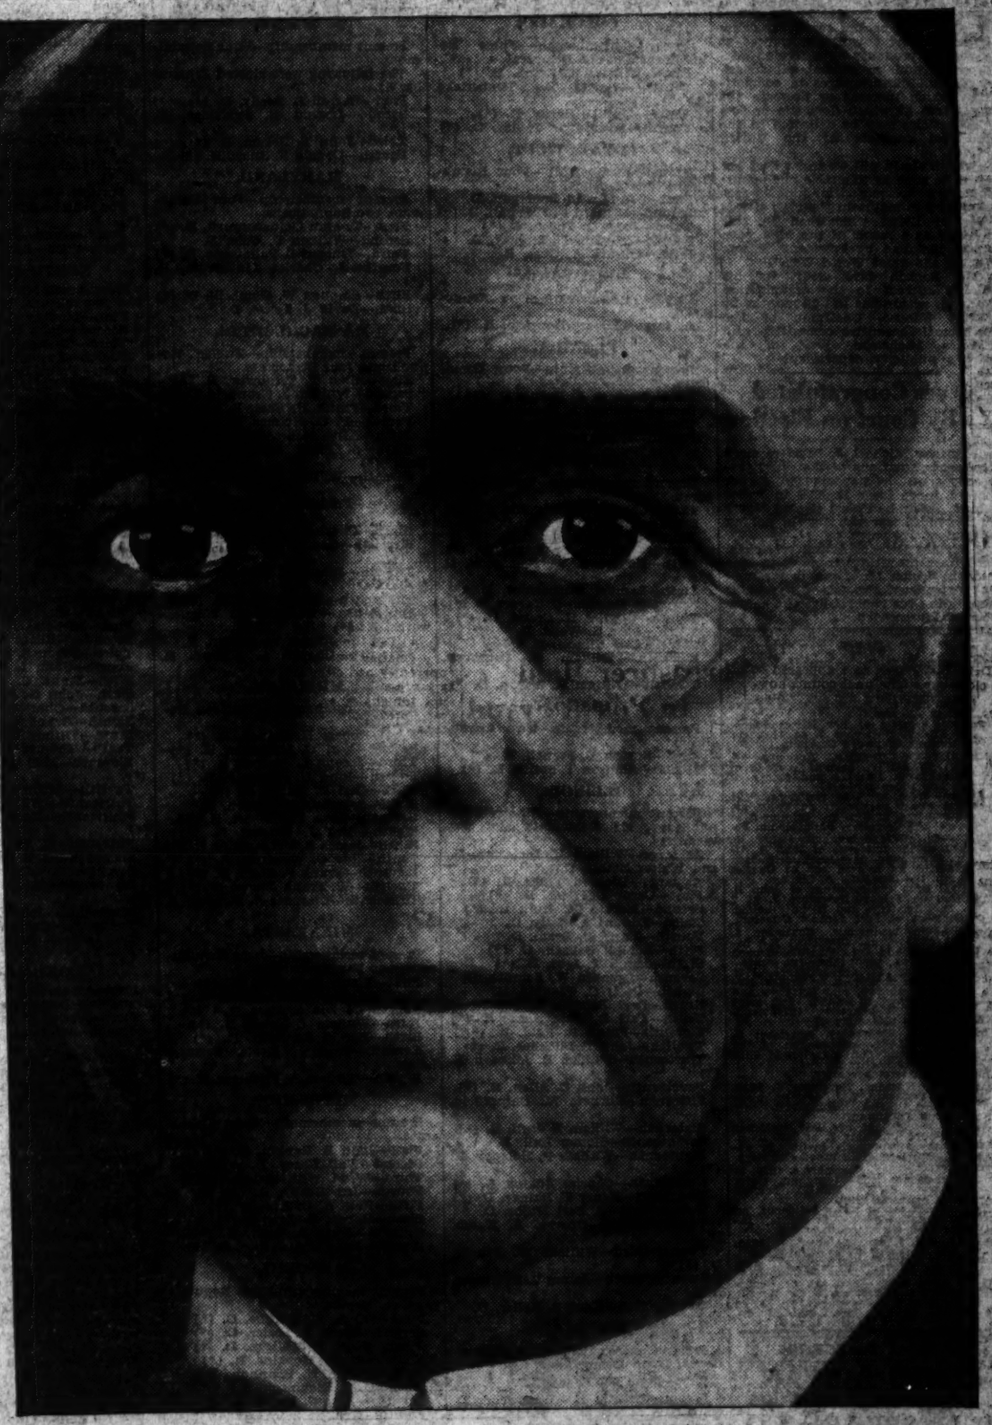
HON. JAMES FRANCIS BURKE

General Counsel of the Republican National Committee

Congressman 1905-1915. Government Director of War Savings during World War.

"Americans love to do their own thinking—but they welcome facts from others. You are wise in letting every smoker know that you employ the modern Ultra Violet Ray principle in 'Toasting' LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. This 'extra secret process' is a remarkable revelation."

James Francis Burke



Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company has invited Mr. James F. Burke to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process. The statement of Mr. Burke appears on this page.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows —that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

RUM CHARGE LAID TO TRACHTENBERG

Man Freed on Bogus Money Passing County Seized for Posession.

POSTS $500 COLLATERAL

Walking from the court of United States Commissioner Needham Turnage after being freed of a charge of passing worthless money on a Hagerstown, Md., merchant, Aaron Trachtenberg, 27 years old, was free only a few hours when members of the special investigation squad of police headquarters arrested him.

Taken to the Second Precinct, where a charge of possession of 24 half gallons of liquor was preferred against him, Trachtenberg offered $500 cash collateral for his release and was permitted to go.

Trachtenberg was arrested on a Federal charge of passing bad money late in September. Police here sought to have him removed to Baltimore for trial, but Commissioner Turnage denied the petition for removal when several persons testified that they had seen Trachtenberg in Atlantic City on the day he was alleged to have passed the money in Hagerstown.

The Government's case was weakened, too, when the merchant to whom the money was given was unable positively to identify the man. Ten days ago Trachtenberg pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting Motorcycle Policeman Vance V. Vaughn and was fined $50.

Man Broke Whisky Jar, Agents Claim

Enforcement Officers Nab Two Folowing Tusle at Sandy Spring.

An unsuccessful attempt of prohibition agents to buy liquor at Sandy Springs, Montgomery County, Md., was revealed yesterday with the arrest of two Negros, John and Archibald Hopkins.

Agents John T. Weigel and M. C. Taylor, of the Washington prohibition bureau, are said to have asked John Hopkins for whisky Tuesday night. He is alleged to have furnished them with half a gallon afterwards, the man resisted and broke the jar, the agents said, during a tussel in which Weigel lost his gun.

The Hopkins brothers were arrested yesterday by Taylor, Weigel, other dry agents, and Sergeant Guy L. Jones and Robert Darby, of the Montgomery County police. John Hopkins was charged with having resisted and fought officers, while his brother was charged with having aided him. They were lodged in the Rockville jail.

Democratic Opponent Defeated by DePriest

Chicago, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Oscar DePriest, Republican and only Negro member of Congress, survived the Democratic landslide in Cook County, defeating his Democratic opponent, Harry Baker, by a substantial margin.

Before nal returns were tabulated the DePriest-Baker race appeared to be a close one. The final count, however, gave DePriest 23,805 votes; Baker, 16,422. DePriest represents the First Congressional District, a part of Chicago.

150 MINERS KILLED IN OHIO EXPLOSION

as they could resist the gaseous air. As one team came out, another went in. They worked in the hope that some of the men had reached a point of safety and had bratticed themselves in against the gas and fire.

Doctors, nurses and ambulances reached the scene as if by magic and soon a temporary hospital was established in an engine room of the mine buildings. Here medical supplies were prepared to care for any who might be brought out alive. Here, too, cots were placed and alert nurses established themselves, preparing for any emergency call. The entire region responded to the call for help. The State was represented by seven officials, sent by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper to render what aid they could and to alleviate any suffering.

Blast of Terrific Force.

After the rescuers had bratticed themselves forward toward the scene of the explosion in the west section of the workings, they decided to explore all the entries, airways and safe ways. On one of the safe ways they found the body of a miner who had made a fruitless flight from the deadly gas.

The men who escaped alive, but bore injuries, told of the terrific blast. They said that the mine officials had entered the workings to examine a new air shaft and inspect the installation of a fan. As the officials walked through one of the west tunnels the explosion came. It was of such a terrific nature that a heavy steel mine car was picked up and hurled down one of the underground passage ways. As the escaped men fled for the cage, they heard screams of those left behind—the men who had been trapped in the fire and had no chance to run for their lives.

Was Considered Safe

In addition to Tytus, the officials who were entombed were P. A. Coen, a vice president of the company; Howard Upson, mine superintendent; Hubert Lancaster, engineer, and John Dean, mine boss. This group was accompanied by the salesmen. Peter McKinley, former sheriff of Athens County, and a mine superintendent, escaped the blast, and within a few minutes after he reached the surface he took charge of and directed rescue efforts, which were hampered at first by a lack of gas masks.

The mine is a shaft operation, with one level about 200 feet below the surface. Normally the mine employs 325 men. The mine was not known as a gaseous operation, and to both miners and officials was considered perfectly safe. But today No. 6 went down in history as the leading figure in the most disastrous mine explosion in the 100 years of coal mining in the Hocking Valley. And unlike other mines, old No. 6 reached out to claim as victims both officials and miners.

The mine is located in a typical coal mining center, a short distance from this village, and about nine miles northeast of Athens. The region has been hard hit by unemployment and poor business conditions. Col. Wade Christy, Assistant Adjutant General of Ohio, one of those sent to the scene by Gov. Cooper tonight, had visited the region only last week on an inspection tour, and he reported to the State's chief executive that much poverty existed in the region and that relief in the form of food and clothing would be needed this winter.

SCHALL CUTS DOWN MARGIN OF HOIDALE

Republican Senator Rolls Up Big Vote as Farming Centers Report.

NOW TRAILS BY 6,000

St. Paul, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—As returns from the farming centers poured in tonight, Senator Thomas D. Schall, Republican, cut steadily into the lead held by Einar Hoidale, Democrat, in the Minnesota senatorial contest.

Practically every return from the rural regions aided the Schall cause while few votes remained to be counted in the urban centers where Hoidale piled up a large majority in the early stages of tabulating the ballots.

When 2,958 precincts of 3,705 had reported, Hoidale's lead, which once reached 26,000 in the tabulating, had been cut to less than 6,000 votes, with 235,040 votes for the Democrat, 229,126 for Schall, 133,480 for Ernest Lundeen, Farmer-Laborite. Charles Lund, independent dry, was running far behind.

For governor, the Farmer-Labor victor, Floyd B. Olson, piled up a heavy majority, his ratio of advantage being about the same throughout the State. His majority over Ray P. Chase, Republican, passed 115,000 votes.

Incomplete returns offered the possibility of one congressional upset. In the Tenth District, Representative Godfrey G. Goodwin, Republican, trailed Erling Swenson, Farmer-Labor. Returns from 219 precincts out of 318 gave Swenson 27,509 votes to 24,973 for Goodwin.

Treasurer Held In Postal Fraud

Books Falsified to Cover Taking of $250,000, Says Complaint.

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—George W. Grimm, 45 years old, said to be treasurer of L. S. Smith & Corona Typwriters, Inc., was under arrest here tonight on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The authorities say the firm's books were falsified to cover the thefts of $200,000 to $250,000 in the last two years.

In another cell at the same police station was Grimm's wife, Mrs. Bessie Grimm, 42 years old, of Syracuse, N. Y. She was charged with felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan antifirearms law. These accusations grew out of her alleged attempt to shoot three detectives.

Democrats Easily Carry New Mexico

Large Majorities Roll Up for Senator Bratton and Entire Ticket.

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Victory for the Democratic ticket in New Mexico virtually was assured, late today, for more than sixty per cent of the precincts had given it large majorities.

In 514 of the 796, Arthur Seligman, Democrat, led Judge C. M. Botts for governor, 45,473 to 32,186.

In 475 precincts for United States Senator, the vote stood 51,620 for the reelection of Sam Bratton, Democrat against 29,463 for H. B. Holt, Republican.

In the race for congressman-at-large, Dennis Chavez, Democrat, led Representative Albert G. Simms, Republican, in 475 precincts, 45,560 to 33,792.

MORROW INCREASES LEAD IN NEW JERSEY

Margin of Victory Predicted to Exceed 185,000 on Later Returns.

DEMOCRATS GAIN SEAT

Newark, N. J., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Compilation of late returns today brought closer to the predicted landslide proportions Dwight W. Morrow's victory in New Jersey's senatorial election yesterday.

With all but 15 of the State's 3,321 districts reported, the Republican advocate of repeal of the eighteenth amendment and State control of liquor had been elected by a margin exceeding 185,000.

His vote was 583, against 396,328 for his Democratic opponent, Alexander Simpson, a plurality of 187,868. The missing districts were in strong Republican territory, indicating possible increase of the plurality.

Woman Snowed Under.

Miss Thelma Parkinson, Democrat, who opposed former Ambassador Morrow for the unexpired senatorial term of Ambassador Walter E. Edge, was snowed under. Returns from 3,134 districts gave Mr. Morrow 515,644 votes, against 348,570 for her.

Raw, rainy weather kept at home a part of the "commuter vote."

Mr. Morrow attracted national attention by his stand for repeal of the prohibition amendment and the substitution of State control of liquor. He abandoned his post as Ambassador to Mexico to conduct his campaign after winning the nomination for the full term from former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Representative Franklin W. Fort. He was unopposed in the primaries for the short-term candidacy.

Prohibition Not Stressed.

The prohibition issue was not stressed in the campaign for election since Mr. Simpson and Miss Parkinson also declared for repeal of the dry law. Mr. Simpson conducted a vigorous campaign, assailing the administration of President Hoover, which he blamed for the business depression.

By his election to the short term, Mr. Morrow succeeds David Baird, jr., of Camden, who was appointed by Gov. Larson when Senator Edge resigned to accept his diplomatic appointment.

Returns from the twelve congressional districts in the State showed the Democrats had gained one seat in the House of Representatives. The victory of William H. Sutphin, of Mattawan, in the Third Congressional District, brought the Democrats three seats instead of the two they held formerly.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of Jersey City, and Oscar L. Auf der Heide, of West New York, the two Democratic incumbents, were reelected by large majorities.

The nine Republicans elected are Charles A. Wolverton, Isaac Bachrach, Charles A. Eaton, Ernest R. Ackerman, Randolph Perkins, George N. Seger, Fred R. H. Hartley, jr., Peter A. Cavicchia and Frederick R. Lehlbach.

O'Connor's Reelection Indicated in Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Charles O'Connor (Republican), apparently had clinched his reelection as representative from the First District tonight when a revision of figures, previously announced by the Tulsa County election board, gave him a lead over W. E. Disney (Democrat), of 824 votes, with only four precincts unreported.

Arkansans Vote Bible in Schools

Teachers Must Read Passage Daily Under Terms of New Act.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—In the same manner that they took evolution teaching out two years ago, Arkansas voters appeared tonight to have put the Bible in the public schools.

Returns from yesterday's election indicated passage by a large majority of an initiated act requiring the reading of portionns of the Bible daily in all State elementary and high schools.

In the 1928 election the voters passed an initiated act forbidding the teaching of any theory "that man ascended or descended from a lower order of animals." The Bible-reading act, submitted after a required number of signatures had been obtained to petitions, was sponsored by the "Moral Culture League." There was little campaigning, however, by either side.

Services will also be held at the grave of the late William Howard Taft, Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, late vice president of the District council; Lieut. Edward Consega, Lieut. Maurice Snyder and Sergt. Lawrence Asbell, past scouts.

1,224 Seeking Work By Chattanooga Drive

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A total of 1,224 persons today had signed for work with a chamber of commerce campaign to provide employment, and 114 had been sent on jobs.

A council has been selected to direct the unemployed in seeking jobs and the municipality, manufacturers and contractors are cooperating in the work. Efforts are being made to stimulate interest of property owners in making necessary repairs and additions at this time so as to relieve the labor situation.

Arizona Governorship Race Is Won by Hunt

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Election of George W. P. Hunt, Democrat, six times Governor of Arizona, for a seventh ter was conceded late today by Gov. John C. Phillips, Republican.

Returns from 455 of 491 precincts showed Hunt 41,879; Phillips, 38,393.

PINCHOT'S PLURALITY CONTINUES TO GROW

Hemphill Concedes Defeat; Davis' Margin More Than 750,000.

PARTY TIES ARE SPLIT

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Figures from isolated rural districts tonight continued to increase the plurality accorded Gifford Pinchot in his second fight for governorship of Pennsylvania.

With nearly all the votes tabulated from the cities of Philadelphia, Erie and Reading, and other centers of strength of John H. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal candidate, all hope of Pinchot's opponents faded and Hemphill wired his congratulations to the victor.

Latest figures gave Pinchot a lead of 74,615 in 8,180 districts out of 8,321 in the State. With 141 districts missing Pinchot's total stood at 1,057,368 and Hemphill's at 982,750.

Davis Has Big Majority.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, winner of the senatorial race, had a plurality well beyond the 750,000 mark. In 7,442 districts he had a lead of 804,801 over Sedgwick Kistler, Democrat. The total vote stood: Davis, 1,276,486; Kistler, 472,135.

The normal Republican majorities for Pennsylvania were received by the party nominee for lieutenant governor and other State offices.

The Republican party lost three seats in Congress, according to the unofficial returns, the Eleventh, Fourteenth and Twenty-second. In the State Senate the Republicans gained two seats, but four were lost in the State House of Representatives.

Hemphill carried every ward in the city of Philadelphia. His total plurality in Philadelphia County approximated 225,000.

In all, Hemphill carried eight counties—Berks, Erie, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton and Philadelphia. The remaining 59 went to Pinchot.

Party Ties Are Disregarded.

Party ties were disregarded by thousands of voters in the gubernatorial contest. The Liberal party, comprised mainly of Republicans who failed in an effort to nominate a wet ticket at their party primary, made Hemphill their only nominee and all Republicans opposed to prohibition were invited to split their ticket in favor of Hemphill.

While the Democratic candidate centered his campaign about the subject of prohibition, capitalizing the wet defections from Pinchot, the Republican candidate declined to discuss that issue. Instead, Pinchot emphasized his differences with the Philadelphia Republican organization and asked for the support of the electorate "to beat the Philadelphia gang." In addition he concentrated on the public utility issue, promising to abolish the present public service commission and substitute an elective fair rate board.

Lonely Folk Form Friendship Society

Dances Will Give Members Opportunity to Become Acquainted, Is View.

To abolish the enui of solitary existence for strangers in a strange city, and also to widen the acquaintanceships of regular residents of the district, a new organization known as "Longevity Legion, Inc.," has been formed by a group of prominent though modest men and women of Washington.

The Legion will hold three free "get-acquainted" dances each week, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, to which the public at large is invited. The dances will be held in the ballroom of the Gordon Hotel at 916 Sixteenth street northwest.

While there will no charge of any kind for the dances, those who attend will have the privilege of becoming members of the Legion, it was explained last night by its president who said that dues would be $3 a year and that the money thus obtained would be used to defray the cost of music for the dancing, and for other social activities planned for the promotion and development of friendship.

TICKET NOT HELPED BY LEWIS' VICTORY

Down-State Republican Vote Swamps Democrats for Illinois Offices.

PERSONAL TRIUMPH SEEN

Chicago, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A backwash of ballots from down-State Illinois further enhanced tonight the triumph of James Hamilton Lewis as United States senator-elect but turned the current against his fellow Democrats running for State offices.

Hour by hour Col. Lewis' lead grew until a plurality of 700,000 became a conservative estimate. The rest of his ticket, however, showed a conspicuous lack of parallel strength, indicating that the Illinois electorate had chosen between Lewis and Ruth Hanna McCormick rather than between the two parties.

The net result of yesterday's election in Illinois, so far as incomplete returns tonight could show, was as follows:

A Democratic United States senator was chosen.

The congressional delegation still is dominated by Republicans but with at least three Democratic gains and four other Democrats leading in uncertain races. The complexion tonight was fourteen Republicans, nine Democrats and four doubtful.

Wets Have Easy Victory.

Sentiment nearly 3 to 1 favoring repeal of the prohibition amendment, modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the State prohibition act was recorded.

Defeat of the State income tax amendment seemed certain.

Approval was given jury service for women.

The election of Francis G. Blair, Republican, for the seventh time as superintendent of public instruction, and of Edward G. Barrett, Democrat, as State treasurer, appeared sure.

A top-heavy Democratic vote in Cook County, where the marking of straight tickets elected virtually an entire Chicago and Cook County slate, gave comfortable margins at the start to the candidates for State offices as well. The returns from down-State, however, coming in large bundles today, showed a decided trend for every Republican candidate except Mrs. McCormick.

Replaced by Democrat.

The seat vacated by Mrs. McCormick as representative-at-large seemed certain to be occupied by a Democrat. William Dietrich, who headed the quartet of candidates with 837,025 votes from 5,560 precincts of the 7,109.

The State-wide vote for senator today stood:

Lewis, 1,245,024.
McCormick, 594,321.
Lottie Holman O'Neill (Independent), dry, had 67,424.

NEELY IS RETURNED FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Fight to Control Delegation in Congress Centers in Three Districts.

BACHMANN IS WINNER

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Democratic and Republican struggles for control of the West Virginia delegation to Congress centered in three districts today, interest in them quickened by a Democratic landslide that sent M. M. Neely back to the United States Senate after an absence of two years, and that gave the party clear control of the State House of Delegates.

Neely, with 284 districts still unreported, had a majority of 122,297 over James Ellwood Jones, Republican. The vote was: Neely, 317,444; Jones, 195,147. Representative Carl G. Bachmann, Republican, was successful in seeking reelection in the First District. Representative Hugh Ike Shott won another Republican seat in the Fifth District, but that from the Sixth District went to Joe L. Smith, a Democrat.

In the remaining three districts Jennings Randolph, Democrat, and Representative Frank L. Bowman were running neck and neck in the Second District; Lynn S. Horner, Democrat, was leading in the Third, while Robert L. Hogg, Republican, held only a slim margin in the Fourth District.

Democratic control of the House of Delegates was assured when 52 Democrats were elected. A majority of 48 is sufficient for control.

New Mail Plane to Be Demonstrated.

A new type of combination passenger and mail carrying airplane is to be demonstrated at 2:30 this afternoon before Postmaster General Brown and other officials of the postal service, at Bolling Field. The machine has mail compartments built into each wing. It is claimed that the ship can carry more than half a ton of mail and [illegible] sons, including passengers and crew.

REPUBLICAN GRIEF.

The Senate and House are in doubt, with the chances seemingly in favor of Democratic control of both houses. Whether the House shall pass under Democratic control or not, the Hoover administration is in for grief from now on. Insurgency in the Senate was coddled so long that the Republican party lost its control, and could pass the tariff bill only with the help of Democrats. Increased Democratic strength in the Senate means that the coalition is stronger than ever. Hence all of Mr. Hoover's nominations are subject to vicious attack. The disappearance of executive sessions means that the Senate will play havoc with international questions. Even if the House should remain under Republican control, the next two years will see such friction between the President and Congress that the public interest will be greatly damaged.

If the people had been intent upon obtaining the best possible results from their Government during the remainder of the Hoover term they would have elected a Republican Congress. But public discontent has been aggravated by hard times, drought, irritation over prohibition, and disappointment over the failure of the Republican party to coordinate in the executive and legislative departments. The voters expressed their dissatisfaction with the state of affairs, without realizing fully that a blow at the Republican party in the middle of a Republican administration could not help the situation. They have merely provided that there shall be paralysis in the Government for two years.

The Republican party is now decidedly on the defensive. It has lost ground in public confidence. The failure of the Republican national committee to function for more than a year, during the tariff campaign, afforded an opportunity to the opposition to spread throughout the country a false but plausible record of Republican failings in Congress and in the White House. The Republican organization was silent under attack when it should have been aggressively pushing through the protective tariff and otherwise legislating for the public welfare. Treason within the party helped the Democratic opposition to convince the country that the party in power was feeble and disorganized and therefore unable to function effectively.

Tuesday's returns reveal a colossal failure of political strategy on the part of the Republicans. The Democrats have proved beyond question the value of a permanent campaign organization. Strength and new energy sprung out of their very adversity in 1928. Conversely, the Republican national committee went into hibernation, content with the victory. An energetic Republican committee might have saved the party from the resentment that clever Democratic campaigners aroused as a result of the depression. But it reorganized too late, and all that its able managers could do was already nullified by the inaction of 1929.

ANTI-AMERICANS LOSE.

Not a single outcropping of radicalism is apparent in the election returns. Socialists and Communists were unusually hopeful of edging their way into the political field this year because of the economic depression. But their aspirations were shattered.

The noisiest Socialist campaign was that of a New York blatherskite, one Heywood Broun, who tried to unseat Representative Ruth Pratt. Broun attempted to make an emotional issue out of unemployment, but he was so overwhelmed that he conceded defeat an hour and a quarter after the polls closed. Other Socialists, including Norman Thomas, who has some personal popularity in New York, made no headway in their races for election to Congress and to State offices.

In Maryland the Socialist vote was much smaller than it has been during several previous years for even the leaders of the ticket. Communists polled only a fraction of the total radical vote. Both Communist and Socialist tickets were nominated in Pennsylvania, Illinois and several other States, but they were mere gestures.

This is an impressive showing in the fact of radical gains in virtually every other country in the world. The recent German election revealed a tremendous increase in the Fascist and Communist ranks. Similar conditions prevail in Austria. The Socialist-Labor party has control of the government of Great Britain. In South America four conservative governments have been overturned by more radical elements.

The American people are dissatisfied with existing conditions, but they are convinced that radicalism is not the road to improvement. The anti-American elements of society who depend upon economic reverses to work for socialism have failed in spite of the hard times.

WETS AND DRYS.

Wets have gained ground in Congress and in the States. The advocates of repeal of the eighteenth amendment are greatly encouraged. Their enthusiasm must continue a long time before it can be fed upon any substantial change in the law, and still longer before the Constitution can be changed. But it is evident that politicians in increasing numbers are no longer afraid to come out on the wet side. Thus, if the tendency disclosed in this week's elections should continue, eventual amendment of the Volstead law may be expected.

The probabilities are that the drys of the country will now gird on their armor for a real fight. In many States they refused to fight, believing that their best strategy was to turn public discussion away from prohibition wherever possible. The intensity of the wet agitation took the drys by surprise in some cases, and they did not develop any leaders comparable with Wayne B. Wheeler, under whom they might have taken the offensive.

Dry leadership of the first order is now necessary if the country is to carry on with prohibition. The drys seem to be in the majority throughout the country, but they can not be expected to lead themselves. Here is a great opportunity for Senator Borah, if he could prevail upon himself to pursue a steady course for a year or two.

HUMAN DERELICTS.

The homeless man, always an object of pity, now is to be made the subject of an experiment in rehabilitation. What causes a man to renounce the comforts and ties of orderly living to play a lone hand against the world as an outcast? What may be done to reestablish the homeless man as a useful citizen? Answers to these and other questions are sought by the Welfare Council of New York City which, as the first step in the inquiry, last April took the first comprehensive census of New York's so-called Bowery bums. Some 14,000 men were questioned and classified in one night by 300 volunteer workers. These outcasts are the members of that down-at-the-heel army which spends its days on park benches or standing in bread lines and its nights in missions, free flop houses, speakeasies or commercial lodging houses where a bed may be obtained for from 35 to 75 cents.

The homeless man, it was found, in most instances is a native American past 40 years of age, unskilled, unmarried and unemployed. More than 10,000 of the 14,000 enumerated were unskilled laborers. Twenty-two per cent claimed to be skilled workers, 3 per cent were office workers, and three-tenths of 1 per cent, or 48 men, described themselves as professional men—doctors, lawyers, preachers or teachers. The unemployed numbered 11,000, almost half of whom had been out of work from one to three months. Single men composed 82.5 per cent of the total.

By far the most interesting highlight of the enumeration is the revelation that practically three out of every four of the derelicts were unskilled laborers. This fact would seem to be of great significance in seeking to fix upon the cause of vagabondage. There is a close relationship between homelessness and lack of a skilled occupation.

Nearly 11,000 of those enumerated were past the age of 40. Here again is evidence that lack of skill in a trade or occupation is apt to make a man a bum. Employers of unskilled labor hire only husky young men. After a man reaches 40 his efficiency with a pick and shovel or in any other unskilled labor decreases rapidly.

Obviously one of the best ways to keep men from becoming bums is to school them when they are young in useful trades. The youthful slackers of today are the derelicts of tomorrow.

PLIGHT OF THE RAILROADS.

The petition of the Western railroads asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to reopen the recently decided class rate case revising freight rates both upward and downward promises to have bearing upon the larger question of consolidation. It was first proposed that the 180 or more trunk lines in the country be grouped into 18 or 20 strong systems when it became apparent that in an era of declining prices a number of the so-called weaker lines would be unable to stand the strain. The fact that the Western lines have come upon hard days, while shippers are clamoring for reduced freight rates and while labor is preparing to demand further reductions in working hours and other concessions, probably will be reflected in Congress and elsewhere in renewed demands that the consolidation program be speeded.

The Western roads assert that their present income "has become insufficient to insure the maintenance of adequate transportation for the future," and that carriers in Western districts can not expect to continue construction programs on capital expenditures in face of further diminution of their inadequate revenue. The decline in passenger travel continues to reduce the revenue of these railroads. Forms of competitive and to a large extent unregulated transportation which have been and are being developed have prevented the normal growth of freight traffic. Freight rate levels fail to reflect the increase in operating costs compared to the prewar level. The great decline in freight car loadings continues, and there is no promise of a restoration to a normal level. The bus, the private automobile and the truck continue to make inroads on the revenues of the carriers. The use of pipe lines for the transportation of liquid fuels and gas is depriving the roads of business. Altogether, the Western carriers tell a sorry tale of the economic distress that has been visited upon them.

The Western roads are not alone in their troubles. The carriers in the Southern district are nearly as badly off and even the Eastern roads are feeling the effect of the new competition. While the net earnings of the Class A roads in 1929 came to more than $1,250,000,000, it is expected that they will be reduced in 1930 by some 30 per cent.

The railroads are the backbone of the transportation machine. They must be preserved. The only solution seems to be consolidations, but the roads can not be forced to consolidate, and thus far no scheme has been evolved that they are willing to accept. The difficulties of the Interstate Commerce Commission promise to be increased by the petition of the Western roads for reconsideration of the class rate structure. Certainly if, as the roads allege, the net operating income has been so depleted in the present year that in the first six months thereof it is less than the interest accruals upon the funded debt, with no margin for either dividends or surplus, the situation calls urgently for consolidation legislation.

RECREANT REDS

Paris Letter to the Boston Transcript.

Establishing a "millennium" on earth has its difficulties, the Soviets are discovering. Human nature is just human nature after all.

The difficulty is that Soviet "missionaries" when they get into contact with the people of the so-called capitalistic countries, become "corrupted;" they simply can not stand bolshevism any longer. They either write Moscow and get in bad by pointing out faults in communism or they desert the "sacred cause." All this is terrible, it was learned today at the Embassy of the U. S. S. R. (Union of Socialist Soviet Republics) in the Rue Grenelle, where Valerian Dovgalevsky, ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to France, seeks with a straight face to maintain Leninian simplicity midst a household equipment of gold plate, exquisite tapestries and plush-seated chairs left over from the Imperial Russian regime.

Iron beds, plain wooden, hard-seated furniture and carpetless floors is the sort of embassy equipment Josif Vissarion Stalin, the "Communist King," would prefer for Paris. Poor Dovgalevsky knows this, but he can not bring himself to dismantle the dignity of a Russia that took centuries to build up. He is sparring for time. Meantime he sleeps in the soft folds of a gorgeous bed with a canopy over it, and rides forth among the French in a smart limousine motor car, dreading the day when an order from Moscow will arrive putting the skids under him.

Once the bolshevists are out of Russia they seldom return there. They turn to anything to escape that ordeal. Here is the Paris record of this "lamentable retrogression:"

Bessedowsky, a counselor at the Soviet embassy, jumped over the back fence of the Paris embassy to get away from sovietism, and appealed to the prefecture of police for protection from the cheka, or secret murder police of Moscow, sent here to "take him for a ride."

Krukov, a secretary-general of the Soviet commercial organization in France, was forced to flee from his home because he wrote a report in which he spoke favorably of the economic methods of the French Republic, it is said. His life is being guarded from his incensed comrades by the French Surete Generale.

Agabekoff, formerly an exterior chief of the cheka, when in Paris has a police bodyguard to prevent him from being assassinated by his old associates.

Naoumoff, formerly director of the fur-trading end of the U. S. S. R., is writing his memoirs in France with a 24-hour shift of police protecting him from extermination before he completes the work.

Then there are—but why list any more of these "traitors" to the cause of Moscow?

Ambassador Dovgalevsky, before coming to Paris, played a prominent part within the Communist party. In Russia there is only one political party. The annual elections are a farce. Stalin runs the party and, incidentally, the U. S. S. R. through puppets, the executive authority being vested in the central executive of the union, which, between its sessions, delegates its authority to a presidium of 21 members.

The "cabinet" consists of the chairman of the central executive committee and ten people's commissars (foreign affairs, army and navy, foreign trade, transport, posts and telegraphs, labor, finance, workers' and peasants' control, trade and supreme council of public economy).

But the whole machinery of government is directed by the Communist party, of which Lenin was chairman until his death. Stalin is general secretary of the party, and from this obscure posts he runs everything. It is the same as if the secretary of the Republican national committee ran the United States Government, and through his power had banished any leader who suggested the idea of a Democratic party. Stalin has two forms of banishment, with honor and without honor.

JUST A MOMENT.

By STEPHEN B. STANTON.

What is not tethered to truth flies off at a tangent.

Persons and conditions that form the very background of our life remain too often in the background of our consciousness.

The test of wisdom lies in the particularity of its application.

Philadelphia Star: Much of the cause of the bad times we have had in business, and which now, happily, appear to be changing, comes because people who have money saved up continue to hoard it instead of spending it to gratify reasonable wants. They have a right to live on a higher plane. They are too timid. They have too little faith in the country and too little faith in themselves.

USES OF RADIUM.

So much is written about the need, and cost, of radium supplies for therapeutic purposes that we rarely think of the other valuable uses to which the strange radio-active substance is put, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune. The deficiency in popular knowledge has recently been corrected, to a considerable extent at least, by the United States Bureau of Mines, with Paul M. Tyler as mouthpiece. He tells of how during the World War there were times when the danger of showing an ordinary light would have been extremely dangerous. Then illumination of a sort was possible through radium. Mme. Curie, herself, says Mr. Tyler, demonstrated the possibilities of radium in fertilization; but later radioactive food containers were found useful in preserving certain articles, and radioactive bottles and pitchers were manufactured to give radioactivity to drinking waters that were regarded as medicinal. More odd still was the use of the stuff in Russian rubber factories to prevent fires by eliminating static electricity. These and many more unexpected employments are doubtless only a beginning of the "talents" of this strange metal.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

PETTY FAILURES.

It might have been a better life, but
I was quick to frown,
And once in rage I used my fists and knocked a bully down.
Though he was wrong and I was right
today I plainly see
That sort of fighting doesn't make a pleasant memory.

And though the victory was mine in that ill-tempered brawl,
It's not among the things I've done which proudly I recall.
And could I live my life again still knowing all I've learned
I wouldn't be so quick to fight when trifles were concerned.

I used to try to hold my own when jibes were being flung,
At saying sharp and cutting things I had a ready tongue,
But wounding friends to get a laugh is failure after all,
And there is many a speech of mine I wish I could recall.

Today as I review the past with all its joy and strife,
The things I've known and most regret were not the griefs of life,
But all the shameful failures which need not have been at all,
When thinking to be wise and strong
I was but cheap and small.

The Best Machine Gets Rusty if the Wheels Never Turn.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

CLARENCE DARROW once said there were not 3,000 intelligent people in the world.

We are fast becoming an educated people, but book learning does not make intelligence. It does not make people think. Too much dependence on books often has the opposite effect.

Much of our ignorance and stupidity is due to the fact that we never learn to observe.

When a storm threatens, cattle look for shelter, hogs bed themselves down and sea fowl fly inland long before weather "experts" are aware that anything unusual is happening. In Florida the Seminole Indians in the Everglades are prepared for a hurricane before the white man has his first warning.

It is commonly said that animals and primitive men feel less pain than white men because they have less delicate sensibilities, yet here is evidence that "dumb" creatures feel something of which civilized men are unaware.

Are they in fact more delicately sensitive than cultured men? Not by nature. Their advantage lies in the fact that they use their senses.

Hermits and castaways who make contact with the world after a period of years almost invariably are stupid. Their minds no longer function well because they haven't been used.

Lie in bed for two weeks following a minor operation and your first attempt to walk is like that of an infant adventuring upright for the first time—not because your vitality was sapped by the operation, but solely because idleness has weakened your legs.

What is true of the body is equally true of the mind. Nature will not support a muscle or a faculty that isn't used. She prompts all young creatures to play because exercise is essential to their growth. She deprives adults of the play spirit because they do not need it.

Men who continue to think and retain their eagerness for ideas grow old with wits undulled; those who retire from active life and shut their minds to new ideas invite stupidity.

The ability to observe and to interpret the evidence of his senses is native to man. He loses it because he doesn't give it employment.

By the time he is grown he can't so much as witness a street fight and report it correctly. His eyes see and his ears hear, but his mind shuts out their messages.

It is failure to use natural equipment that makes men stupid and keeps them ignorant.

The reports brought in by scouts are of little service if the general's mind is fixed on a game of chess.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Why Tuttle Lost.

New York World.

With the odds against them from the start the Republicans not only lacked a magnetic leader but they lacked also a strong, united and effective party organization. Up-State they were frightened and demoralized by the bolt of the drys and by the failure of Mr. Tuttle to speak boldly, candidly and persuasively about the new policy of repeal. Instead of expounding his views in the dry counties with the engaging frankness which Mr. Morrow had when he campaigned last June in southern New Jersey, Mr. Tuttle was silent and evasive in the localities where plain speech was needed. He made no real attempt to rally the hesitant to his standard. Down-State in New York City Mr. Tuttle made a much better campaign, but there he was undone by the pitiable weakness of the Republican party organization. Against one of the most efficient political machines in America there was pitted a Republican machine which begins more and more to resemble the Republican organization in States like Georgia and Alabama.

Republican Inefficiency.

New York Herald Tribune.

The Republicans of the State have another debacle to ponder over. Believing strongly in the policies of the party as we do, we are deeply disappointed at the result. Rarely has the party had a greater opportunity. Never has it been more ineffectually directed.

Consolation.

Milwaukee Journal.

If the G. O. P. does lose Congress it can console itself with the thought that its luck was not so bad as that of the late government in Brazil.

A Big National Job.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The election was an all-day matter. In Massachusetts, for instance, the citizens of the town of New Ashford got up at 4 a. m., went to the polls at 6 o'clock and finished with the election within a few minutes, determined to announce the vote in advance of any other political unit in these United States. In many New Hampshire districts the official closing time was 3 p. m. But out on the West Coast the voters of Oregon were depositing their last ballots at 8 p. m., Pacific time, or 11 p. m., Eastern standard time. Voting in California, Oregon and Washington went on for hours after most of the ballots had been counted in the East.

A national election or a congressional election is a day's job for the country. Banks and exchanges closed yesterday nearly everywhere in the continental United States. Business marked time. Much ordinary travel was suspended. The immediate effects will linger over another 24 hours while the returns are studied, discussed and considered. All this is a part of the price paid for the privileges of the ballot and the right of governing ourselves, and the cost neither in time nor in money is exorbitant. By and large, the American electorate and the time-tested machinery of balloting take pretty good care of these biennial tests of political sentiment.

Topeka Capital.

Hoover Broke Faith, Not Me, is Borah's Cry.—Cleveland Press head. Grammar in language is what a yolk of an egg is in coffee. Now, is Borah represented as saying that Hoover didn't break him, or merely that "me" didn't break faith?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Hickory" Sees Good Chance for Democrats in 1932 if They Do Not Confine Themselves to Wet Issue—Suggests Roosevelt and Lewis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While the result of the recent balloting is not quite as much of a landslide as some of us Democrats hoped for, yet it puts us in line to make a stiff fight for the Presidency in 1932.

What we must guard against is something which is apt to be the undoing of a minority party enthused by great gains in an off year. That something is overconfidence; and this time the necessity for holding overconfidence tightly in check should be obvious.

The mushroom wet-dry vote is, I think, the finest example of an unstable equilibrium in politics that our history has ever furnished. While there is a general belief that the drift against prohibition was to a very great extent responsible for 1930 upheavals, at the same time, if I am not much mistaken, Democracy will sacrifice whatever chance it may have in 1932 if it permits certain purblind politicians to lay great stress on "wetness" as an issue in the latter year.

While a plank calling for the unqualified repeal of the eighteenth amendment should be included in the 1932 platform, it should not take precedence of a "fair tariff" plank, and the far-flung keynote, it seems to me, should be struck in a ringing declaration to revive the spirit of local self-government and against the future ratification of moot reformatory amendments to the Constitution of any nature whatsoever.

Illuminating such a platform, I think a Jacksonian sunburst might greet us in 1932. As things size up today it looks as if the winning ticket might be:

For President, Franklin Roosevelt of New York; for Vice President, J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois.

Conduct of Campbell Case Draws Sharp Questions From a Citizen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to compliment you for your most excellent editorial, "Herbert Campbell Case." It seems to me that your views as expressed therein are based on plain common sense.

Was the science of ballistics on trial? Then, what was the verdict? We, the hoi polloi, have been anxiously awaiting said verdict. How reliable is the so-called ballistic expert, the device known as the comparison microscope? What are its limitations? Haven't we who pay taxes, funds from which prosecutors derive their salaries, a right to know the answers to these simple questions? Why did not Mr. Collins allow Maj. Goddard sufficient time to complete the ballistics? If Maj. Goddard is infallible, then who beside himself is also infallible? Let us have a census taken of all infallible humans; we could then let infallible judges decide the infallibility of each infallible expert.

Members of scientific societies meet to discuss methods of conducting accuracy tests, while such tests are frequently modified so that manufacturers may have the opportunity to meet specifications without involving greatly increased costs of production. Should we do less when human life is at stake? Has any investigation definitely established the probable error in pistol identification? Why should not all jurors know at the outset what grain of salt shall be taken along with a ballistic expert's testimony?

Veteran Insists That Soldiers' Pay Should Be Given Now in Cash.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think you have two million of the boys back of you on your stand in regard to payment of adjusted service certificates. Why would not this winter be a good time to give the veterans what they have coming to them instead of having 90 per cent of them going to the Veterans' Bureau and drawing down the pitiful sum of $10, $20, or perhaps $35 and paying 6 per cent for the remainder of the life of the certificate, on all that is borrowed? Would not this put more money in circulation than any other way? It would enable thousands to pay their just bills with their own money, and would in turn enable their debtors to buy more. Thus the ball of prosperity would again swiftly move.

Whoever heard of the loyal workers at home during the great conflict having to wait until 1945 for their pay? They reaped the benefit of their labor twelve years or more ago.

The veteran has his dollar-a-day loaned out by one of the richest governments in the world at approximately 4 per cent, but if he is compelled to have any of it he must pay 6 per cent per annum.

Farmer's Produce Cut Down 25 Per Cent in Value—How Does That Help Him?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an editorial in The Post of November 3 you say that "Reports from the Department of Agriculture show that prices of farm products have fallen 25 per cent during the last year." This seems to mean that "Hoover farm relief" has taken 25 cents out of every dollar the farmer had a year ago; that he is "relieved" of the trouble of carrying that 25 cents. Can some one explain how the farmer's purchasing power is to be increased if his products sell for 25 per cent less and if his necessities cost more—much more?

Suggests That Alexander Graham Bell Be Remembered in the Naming of Streets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As I am a constant reader of your valuable paper and follow all current events, I note that you are inviting people to propose names for new streets.

Why is it that our great inventor of the telephone, one of the most useful inventions of man, has not yet been thus honored? His name should be in all four sections of this city. We should also have a "Bell place" in all four sections. It would be a very honorable name.

DO-X MAKES START ON FLIGHT TO U. S.

World's Largest Seaplane Alights Gracefully at Amsterdam.

GOES NEXT TO ENGLAND

Flying Boat Is Called Dough-Icks by Germans

Altenrhein, Switzerland, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—About this flying boat, the DO-X—those really in the know do not pronounce it "dee-oh-ex."

An official German pronunciation, for the benefit of radio announcers and others, is "dough-icks." That is what the big ship's commander and crew call her.

Amsterdam, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The great bulk of the German flying boat DO-X, largest seaplane in the world, floated tonight in the Schellingwoude Basin here, at the end of the first lap of her transatlantic voyage to New York.

A full moon picked out the figures of mechanics tinkering with the 12 twin-screw engines which had borne her from Switzerland in less than 5½ hours, and thousands watched them at work from the locks which protect the port of Amsterdam against the Zuider Zee.

No one knew for certain when she would roar off again toward Lisbon, Portugal, where the ocean flight is to begin about November 12, but it was thought likely that only bad weather would cause further postponement of the trip, which already has been delayed so long.

Makes Perfect Landing.

It was 11:25 a. m. when she lifted herself off Lake Constance, where she had begun so many short trial flights. At 4:50 p. m. she pushed her way through the haze over Amsterdam, circled once or twice and nosed down to a perfect landing on Holland's inland sea.

She had scarcely settled when a squad of leather-coated mechanics scrambled about the motors. Commander Frederick Christiansen superintended their operations until darkness fell. When he came ashore, he said it was possible he would devote the next two days to trail flights and that a start for Calshott, England, would be made Saturday if the weather permits. Calshott will be an intermediate halt between here and Lisbon.

Only sixteen passengers made the flight from Altenrhein today in a cabin large enough to accommodate 150 or more. They saw the whole width of Germany pass beneath them as the radio operator sent bulletins on their progress to land stations.

Builder to Meet Ship.

Claude Dornier, of the Dornier works which built the plane, was to meet her here tonight. His brother, Maurice, will go to Lisbon by train and board the plane there. Pilot Merz, who guided the ship on this first lap, probably will be at the controls for most of the transatlantic voyage.

So far, no changes have been made in the original plans for the Atlantic crossing. From Lisbon the plane will fly to Horta, in the Azores, thence to a fuel ship halfway between there and Bermuda.

There will be a layover of a day or so at Bermuda before the flight continues to New York. This is not an attempt for a speed record, her designers have said, but an illustration of the facility with which so large a ship can make a safe ocean crossing.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

because of his work in long-range aerial photography. In January of this year he was awarded the Mackay Trophy, the most coveted aeronautical prize, for his work in this field.

In the fall of 1929 he successfully photographed Mount Rainier at a distance of 227 miles. His first major accomplishment was a flight in early 1929 in which he ascended to an altitude of 37,854 feet, a record for two-place planes. This record was made at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

In June, 1922, he broke the world's altitude record by ascending to the height of 24,206 feet. On this occasion he established another record. He leaped from the plane at this height, in his first parachute jump, and descended in 30 minutes.

NOBEL PRIZE GOES TO SINCLAIR LEWIS

Novel "Babbitt" Is Given as Basis of Award by Swedish Academy Judges.

AUTHOR ACCEPTS FUND

Stockholm, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—George F. Babbit, that rather pathetic, frustrated "typical American" created by Sinclair Lewis in 1922, has taken the Nobel prize in literature to the United States for the first time in the 29 years since the board was established.

Lewis, who declined the Pulitzer prize of 1926 for his novel "Arrowsmith," was selected today as the Nobel prize winner on the basis of "Babbitt," which Sweden regards as his masterpiece. The money value of the award is $46,350, a greater amount than in any previous year.

The red-haired temperamental American writer now joins the notable company of authors which includes George Bernard Shaw, Thomas Mann, Anatole France, Romain Rolland and others who have received the award since the first of the series was presented to the Frenchman, Sully-Proudhomme, in 1901.

Other Novels Praised.

The Swedish Academy made it clear that the choice of Mr. Lewis was based on "Babbitt," but it was understood that appreciation also was expressed for "Elmer Gantry" and "Dodsworth," others of his novels.

Many of Lewis' novels have been translated into Swedish.

In 1926 when Lewis was returning the Pulitzer award of $1,000, George Bernard Shaw received the Nobel prize. Shaw declined to accept the money for himself, but established a fund to create an Anglo-Swedish bureau of exchange for the translation and publication of the great literary works of both nations.

Kipling is the only other writer in English to have won the Nobel prize. It has been awarded five times each to France and Germany; three times to Norwegian writers, twice to Denmark, Sweden and Poland. Other awards have gone to Switzerland, Ireland, Italy, Spain, Belgium and India.

First American Author to Win.

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—"Red" Lewis, the one-time Sauk Center, Minn., boy, left his Connecticut farm today and came to town to hear and talk about his winning the Nobel prize in literature for 1930. "I feel," he said, when he had caught his breath, "the highest honor and gratification at being the first American to be awarded the Nobel prize in literature, and I am accepting it with pleasure.

"I shall use it to support a well-known young American author and his family, and to enable him to continue writing."

The prize is worth $46,350. The young American author is Sinclair Lewis himself.

As for his acceptance in the face of his rejection of the Pulitzer prize for "Arrowsmith" in 1926, he explained that:

Differences in Awards.

"The reason is the enormous difference between the two prizes. The Nobel prize is an international prize with no strings tied. It is awarded on the basis of excellence of work.

"The Pulitzer prize, on the other hand, is cramped by the provision of Mr. Pulitzer's will that the prize shall be given 'for the American novel published during the year which shall best present the wholesome atmosphere of American life, and the highest standard of American manners and manhood.' This suggests not actual literary merit, but obedience to whatever code of good form may chance to be popular at the moment."

As a result, he said, the Pulitzer prize has been given to some mediocre novels.

Owner of Baltimore Yacht Is Saved From Death at Sea

Edward Kepper Taken From Auxiliary Cruiser Belonging to Salvation Lass, Found Abandoned Off Charleston Lightship; Crew's Fate Unknown.

Rescued from a 36-foot auxiliary cruiser by the storm-lashed Atlantic more than 100 miles from shore, Edward Kepper, 26 years old, of Baltimore, Md., is reported safe aboard the tanker Hagood, bound for New York, while the Coast Guard cruiser Yamacraw is steaming to his abandoned yacht.

The fate of a man known only as Mr. Owens, who was also believed to have been on the motorboat, was still in doubt last night. The small vessel, named the Salvation Lass, is reported to be adrift about 50 miles southeast of Charleston lightship.

Mr. Kepper's family received a radiogram from him yesterday morning. It gave no details of the sea rescue or the fate of Mr. Owens. At the Kepper home it was said that he left Baltimore five weeks ago for a cruise in Southern waters.

The drifting yacht was boarded Monday by members of the crew of the steamer El Estoro, who reported finding a note in the cabin signed, "Owens, Master," stating that the craft belonged to Mr. Kepper. The El Estoro wirelessed the Coast Guard of finding the derelict.

An investigation was immediately begun to determine why the Salvation Lass was abandoned by her owner and whether any of her complement had lost their lives in the storm which swept the coast Monday.

Miss Gertrude Kepper, sister of the rescued man, yesterday told The Post that her brother had gone to Florida to spend the winter. He expected to charter the vessel for tourist parties, she said.

The steamship Hagood, a transport of the Cities Service Corporation, is expected to be in New York Harbor tomorrow morning. Efforts to communicate with the captain of the ship by wireless yesterday brought no response.

Washington's Business Larger Than Last Year

Business in Washington was better last week than in the corresponding week of last year, according to Mark Lansburgh, of the Merchants & Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Lansburgh's statement was made yesterday at a meeting of the department store managers of the Merchants & Manufacturers' Association at the Raleigh Hotel. Dorsey Hyde, secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, had directed a communication to the association, asking what effect the "Buy Now" movement of the Chamber of Commerce had on business.

Capital Jews Donate Palestine Relief Fund

Pending a campaign for relief of Jews in eastern Europe and Palestine, several Jewish leaders in Washington have signed a note and borrowed money for immediate relief of the sufferers, it was announced yesterday, following a luncheon.

Harold H. Levy has been named chairman of the drive scheduled for next spring. Oscar Leonard, executive director of the Jewish Welfare Federation, and Rudolph Behrend, are secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the committee in charge.

GIBSON STANDS PAT AT GENEVA'S PARLEY

Declares U. S. Delegation Will Submit No New Arms Cut Plans.

RUSSIA ALSO SIDESTEPS

Geneva, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—No new proposals will be made by the American delegation to the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission which convenes here tomorrow, Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, said tonight.

Mr. Gibson declared he could foresee no change in his Government's opposition to the proposal for reducing armaments by limiting budgetary expenditures, a project championed by France and now understood to be looked upon favorably by Great Britain.

The ambassador would not talk about his conversations with Mussolini and Premier Tardieu, and he appeared unwilling to express either optimism or pessimism regarding the work of the preparatory commission.

The commission will go at its work methodically, he said, drawing up a tentative general disarmament treaty and preparing alternative texts wherever it is found impossible to reconcile divergencies.

There has been little to raise the hopes of those who look for an early adjustment of the Franco-Italian naval difficulty, which will be a major consideration of the commission.

From Russian spokesmen, it was learned today that there is little likelihood of new disarmament proposals at this session from the Soviet delegation.

BETTER BUSINESS

Buying Begets Jobs

Employment is the basic requirement of successful community growth. Cities which can not support their own citizens fall by the wayside in the path of progress.

Washington has a fine record of employment growth. From 1918 to 1928 it absorbed a 50 per cent drop in Government employment and at the same time increased its population eleven per cent.

The current business depression presents a challenge to government agencies, to local business firms, and to all citizens, to meet the present situation, either by creating new work or by broadening present employment by increased buying.

Washington, in this emergency, will not fail to meet her proper obligations. American courage and initiative, in the past, have met and solved successfully problems such as the present one, and we have our full share of courage and initiative here in Washington.

As lasting recovery can come only as the result of business expansion the Washington Buy Now Committee urges all District citizens to Buy Now for better Business.

GIRL SAVES FAMILY FROM DEATH BY GAS

Kathleen Kulp, 7, Roused by Fumes From Coal Stove, Awakens Sisters.

FATHER, TWO COLLAPSE

The miraculous escape of eight persons from death by asphyxiation was brought about, unknowingly, by 7-year-old Kathleen Kulp, of 423 Seventh street southwest, who became nauseated when a coal-burning stove filled the whole house with its fumes early yesterday.

Kathleen awoke about 3 o'clock feeling ill. She called to two older sisters who were sleeping in an adjoining room, who immediately smelled the fumes and attempted to awaken the other members of the family. By the time they reached the child she had become unconscious, and the father, Charles L. Kulp, collapsed as he was going downstairs to call a physician.

The mother and the other daughters, with the aid of a 10-year-old son, Daniel, opened all the windows. During this time the Fire Rescue Squad and an ambulance from Emergency Hospital had arrived and the two agencies worked for more than an hour reviving the father and Kathleen, together with Roberta, 13 years old, and Daniel, who had also become unconscious.

The members of the family who were all slightly affected, were Carl L. Kulp, the father; Mrs. Ellen Kulp, the mother, and Marcella, Roberta, Joseph, 15; Daniel, and Kathleen, whom all agreed had saved the lives of the entire family.

All of the children, who are in school, went about their regular duties yesterday after their narrow escape from death, but the father, who is employed in a stone quarry near Washington, remained at home to catch up on his sleep and repair the stove to safeguard the family against further danger.

VOTE NO HINDRANCE TO SECURITIES' FALL

Utilities Lead in Continued Decline, 20 Averaging 8.6-Point Drop

NEW LOW LEVELS SET

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The downward course of share prices was resumed as the security markets were reopened after election day today.

The stock exchange failed to shake off its recent sluggishness, and the day's transactions aggregated only 2,145,720 shares, but the price average of 90 shares dropped 4 points, the sharpest decline in more than two weeks, and such prominent issues as U. S. Steel Common, American Telephone and Westinghouse Electric reached new low levels for the past two years. Individual net losses in the more active issues ranged from $3 to $9.

What effect, if any, Democratic victories may have had on the trend of prices, remained a matter of opinion. Weakness of the utility shares was most pronounced, however, and there was a tendency in some brokerage circles to attribute selling of these issues to the victory of gubernatorial candidates favoring strict regulation. It has been notable, nevertheless, that utilities have fluctuated more widely than other groups during the past year and a half.

The price average of 20 leading utilities dropped 8.6 points; that of 60 industrials, 3.4 points; and of 20 rails, 1.2 points. The averages of both industrials and rails reached new low levels for the decline, about 13 points under the 1929 minimums, but the utility average held 16 points above the lowest of 1929, although it recorded a new low for 1930.

Man, Woman Dead, Police See Suicide Pact

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A man and a woman were found dead in a boarding house here today, victims of poison which, police said, they had swallowed in a suicide pact.

The man was identified as E. H. Miquette, 42 years old, but there was no means of identifying the woman, said to be about 38 years old.

A note left by Miquette, according to police, indicated they had taken their lives because her marital obligations were an obstacle to their happiness.

American Flier Seized While Fleeing Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Newspapers here received word today of the arrest in Sao Paulo of an American aviator, Orton Hoover.

The report stated that Hoover, an instructor in aviation for the old government, was arrested in the house where he had been a refugee for several days.

Grand Jury Opens Raid Quiz Today

White House Correspondent Charges Perjury on Part of Informer.

The grand jury today will begin an investigation of the raid made last Saturday on the home of William P. Flythe, White House correspondent, of 1806 G street northwest, in an unsuccessful quest for liquor.

Mr. Flythe in demanding that the grand jury investigate the matter declared that the man who had sworn out the warrant on which the raid was conducted had perjured himself. The affidavit specified that the informer had seen another man purchase liquor from "John Doe" in the basement of Flythe's home and had seen a small still.

Preparing to sift the matter thoroughly, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced yesterday he had subpenaed United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, who issued the warrant, and all the policemen who participated in the raid. Mr. Flythe, his wife and any friends he cares to bring along will have the opportunity of going before the grand jury, Mr. Rover said.

At the same time it was announced from the District Building that any action which might be taken against members of the raiding squad will be held up until after the grand jury makes its report.

Woman Says Cab Hit Her; Asks for $25,000

Alleging she was seriously injured June 11, last, when struck down in a safety zone by a Diamond Cab, Ethel B. Brown, of 1418 Chapin street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $10,000 damages from Lewis E. Beacock, of 1342 Meridian street northwest, reputed owner of the vehicle.

The woman states that she had alighted from a Capitol Traction Company street car and was stepping from the safety zone near Thomas Circle and L street when the cab knocked her down. Negligence on the part of the driver, said to be an agent of Beacock, is charged. Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, R. H. Yeatman and Austin Canfield appear for the plaintiff.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Retailers Testify In Packers' Case

Buffalo Man Says Margin of Prices for Profit Is 25 Per Cent.

Testifying for the Government in the hearing in District Supreme Court on the plea of Swift & Co. and Armour & Co., for modification of the Packers Consent Decree, David Van Gelder, retail meat dealer, of Buffalo, N. Y., declared if the retail meat dealer is to make a 5 per cent profit there must be a 25 per cent margin between wholesale and retail prices.

The witness testified that wages for meat cutters have risen from $18 and $20 a week in 1916 to $40 and $50 at present.

Dr. F. W. Miller, assistant chief of the Packers and Stockyards Division of the Bureau of Animal Industry, presented figures dealing with the packers who are affected by the decree as compiled by his division. Attorney Frank J. Hogan, for the packers, drew from him the admission that the bureau's own figures representing actual slaughter of live stock probably were more accurate than those compiled by his division.

Australia Honors Kingsford-Smith.

Canberra, Australia, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The defense ministry announced today that the title of honorary air commodore had been conferred on Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, long-distance aviator, who recently flew from England to Australia in less than ten days.

Two Men in New York Mowed Down by Shots

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Two men were killed by shotgun fire today in the garden court yard of a Pelham parkway apartment house in the Bronx as they were about to enter the building, where one of them lived. The shots were fired from sawed-off guns through two closed windows of a ground-floor apartment in the building, which two men had rented yesterday.

The men slain were Stephen Ferrigno, 34, married, an electrician, and Alfred Mineia, in whose hip pocket a revolver was found. The only furnishings in the apartment from which the shots were fired were a couch and two chairs. In the turmoil aroused in the quiet court yard by the shooting the slayers apparently leisurely made their way out of the building and got away.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC RADIO CERTIFIED INSPECTION PLAN

—makes Assurance doubly Sure!

The one paramount desire throughout the General Electric Radio organization—from the "House of Magic" to the dealer from whom you buy your G-E Radio—is that you—and every other owner of a G-E FULL RANGE Radio—will be completely and entirely satisfied with your receiver.

Hence the G-E Radio Certified Inspection Plan. This radical innovation in the radio business leaves nothing to chance. It calls for a signed statement from you expressing your satisfaction only after you have had ample time to prove that your set is operating as you have a right to expect.

No sale of a G-E set is counted complete until that statement is signed.

Go to your nearest G-E Radio Dealer. Ask him to give you details of this important plan that safeguards your interest and assures your complete satisfaction.

This G-E Certified Inspection Plan applies to each of the G-E Radio models. See and hear them—learn the new thrill of FULL RANGE Radio.

Any G-E Radio may be bought on the Budget Payment Plan.

Women Hope To Form Polo Team in City

Society Members Plan to Play Asheville or Cleveland.

"Yip! Yip!" In true Western rodeo fashion the cry echoes and the spectators hold their breath while the clouds lift and the thunder of the horses' hoofs dies away and in the clearing air we see, not cowboys lassoeing steers, but the figures of several young women in Washington who are playing polo.

Among those of a little group who hope to form a team which will give Washington the distinction of being one of the three cities in this country to have a woman's team are the Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil, Mrs. A. McCook Dunlop, Mrs. Joseph I. Weller, Miss Persis Myers and a number of others.

Asheville and Cleveland are the two cities which may one day be challenged to a contest, the former city having started its women's polo career last summer and a team having been in existence in Cleveland for some time.

Every Monday and Thursday the future team meets at the Riding and Hunt Club and forms sides on the spur of the moment which will soon be in championship form under the coaching of Mrs. Frank M. Andrews, daughter of the late Gen. Henry T. Allen, who has the enviable record of having played on men's teams while she was in Coblentz when Lieut. Col. Andrews was stationed there after the war.

Mrs. Cecil, Miss Eliza Coxe and Miss Elizabeth Martin, of Asheville, are giving the benefit of their experience which they have gained in real riding country. Miss Martin is teaching at the Riding and Hunt Club this winter.

A few years ago a team was in the making, sponsored by Mrs. William D. Thomas, formerly Miss Helen Marye; Mrs. Elliot Strauss, who was Miss Lydia Archbold; Miss Maud Preece, Miss Elizabeth Jackson and numerous others. But fate seemed to intervene and with the marriage of several of the number and their leaving town, it was not until this year that it was revived.

Now the new team, strengthened by the presence of some of the members of the old one, may aspire to a place in the sun and conversations must be of "goals" and "chukkers" and players in the midst of hard-fought games, as is the custom in polo, will make the welkin ring with their cries of "Yip! Yip!"

Envoy to the Netherlands Is Capital Guest.

The American Minister to the Netherlands and Mrs. Gerrit John Diekema arrived in Washington yesterday following a two months' visit to their home in Holland, Mich., and will be guests at the Mayflower until Friday. They are sailing for The Hague on Saturday.

Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and newly elected senator from Pennsylvania, has made reservations for the card party of the League of Republican Women in celebration of the nineteenth birthday anniversary to be given at the Willard Friday, November 14.

Others who have made reservations are: Mrs. Henry W. Watson, Mrs. Overton Lee, Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, Mrs. E. St. John Grebble, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Frank Hight, Mrs. David H. Blair, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, Miss Margaret Beer, Mrs. Marcus Benjamin, Mrs. John H. Bartlett, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Brown and their daughter, Miss Julie Brown, of Princeton, N. J., spent yesterday in Washington. They were in Williamstown, Mass., for the summer and are going abroad very soon to remain all winter. Mr. Brown was one time Minister to Honduras and has been professor of international law at Princeton since 1915.

Judge and Mrs. Paul J. McCormick, of Los Angeles, who returned to Washington several weeks ago from California, have just made a brief visit in New York and are back at the Mayflower. Judge McCormick is a member of the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement.

Mme. Prochnik to Aid Bud Dance Committee.

Mme. Prochnik, wife of the Austrian Minister, is on the committee for the fourth annual debutante dinner dance which will be given at the Willard December 10.

Others on the committee are: Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mrs. Ogden Mills, wife of the Under Secretary of the Treasury, Mrs. Walter E. Hope, wife of the assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Mrs. Chandler Anderson, Mrs. Cecil Barret, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. U. S. Grant, 3rd., Mrs. McCook Knox, Baroness Serge Korff, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, jr., Mrs. James F. Mitchell, and Mrs. Nathan Wyeth. Mrs. Walter Tuckerman is chairman.

Of interest to Washington is announcement of the engagement of Lieut. Alfred Pace Randolph, U. S. N., son of Mrs. Alfred M. Randolph, of Warrenton, Va., and grandson of the late Right Rev. Alfred M. Randolph, Bishop of Southern Virginia. Lieut. Randolph will wed Miss Lucy Dabney Tunstall, daughter of Mr. B. Gray Tunstall, of Norfolk, Va. Miss Tunstall made her debut in Norfolk last winter and is a member of the Junior League. Lieut. Randolph is a graduate of the Naval Academy, the class of 1924.

The wedding will take place in January.

Mrs. Floyd P. Waggaman, who left recently for a visit in Florida, is now at the Hotel Everglades in Miami, where she will be for some time.

Miss Helen Eck Will Be Wed to Admiral's Son Next Spring.

The engagement of Miss Helen Eck, daughter of the late Mrs. Caroline Eck, of Easton, Pa., to Mr. Thomas Tingey Craven, jr., son of Rear Admiral Thomas Craven, U. S. N., and Mrs. Craven, of Washington, has been announced.

Mr. Craven attended the United States Naval Academy, but resigned from the Navy to enter business. He is a brother of Mrs. Rodman Drake de Kay, of Port Washington, Long Island, and of Miss Olga von K. Craven. Miss Eck is a member of an old Pennsylvania family.

The wedding will take place in the spring, in Easton.

German Diplomat Sojourns in Capital.

Dr. A. Fuehr, chief of the Division for the United States in the Foreign Office at Berlin, was the guest in whose honor the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Klep entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening. Dr. Fuehr has come for a brief visit to this country. Frau Fuehr, whose former home was in Vermont, remained in Germany.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Marion Williams, of Palo Alto, Calif., leaves today for Norfolk, Va., to visit the former's sister before returning West. They motored through Canada and the New England States prior to their arrival in Washington the first of the week and were the guests of President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House for several days. Dr. Williams, a retired physician and surgeon of Palo Alto, was the family physician of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover when they lived in California.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Eberhart Haynes have as their guest Miss Eleanor Bryan Smith, daughter of Commander and Mrs. George Leonard Smith, who have made their home for nearly two years at Rockford, Ill. Miss Smith made her debut in Washington two years ago.

Mrs. William Charles Meekins, of Hendersonville, N. C., and her two sons, William Charles Meekins, jr., and Frederick Chapin Meekins, are the guests of Mrs. Meekins' mother, Mrs. Frederick E. Chapin, on R street. Judge Meekins will come to Washington late in the week to join his family.

U. S. Officials Receive Honor At Coronation

Several Honored by New Emperor Haile of Selassie.

Members of the American mission to the coronation of Emperor Haile of Selassie are being showered with honors by the Abyssinian government. The highest Ethiopian decorations which can be conferred upon untitled foreigners have been awarded to the visitors. The emperor, whose coronation filled the capital with splendor on Sunday, made the decorations, which were received, however, subject to regulations of the State Department.

Mr. H. Murray Jacoby, of New York, received the Grand Cross of the Order of Menelik. Mr. Addison E. Southard, American Minister to Abyssinia, was decorated with the Order of the Holy Trinity, and was the only minister so honored.

Brig. Gen. William W. Harts, who has just given up his post as military attache at the American Embassy in Paris, was made Commander of the Order of Menelik. Mr. Charles L. Cooke, ceremonials officer at the State Department, and Mr. James Loder Park, consul at the American legation also received decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Ramsay 2d spent a few days here last week with the former's mother, Mrs. Martin M. Ramsay. Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay are on their way to Mexico, where they will be for a year or more in Mexico City.

Commander W. P. Le Clair and Mrs. Le Clair have just returned to Washington after spending the summer in France. Commander Le Clair is Naval Attache at the Embassy in Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Greiner entertained at dinner last evening at Wardman Park Hotel.

Any little miss of 6, 8, 10 and 12 years would be delighted with this smart, comfy lounging robe.

It's made of soft woolen in a splashy yellow and brown plaided pattern. The deep shawl collar, cuffs and pocket trim are of plain woolen in matching brown shade. You may use a brown tie cord for the belt or make a narrow belt of the plain brown woolen.

Style No. 858 takes but 2¼ yards of 40-inch material with ⅞ yard of 36-inch contrasting in the 8 year size. This pattern also cuts in adult sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inch bust.

Made in an hour! Four seams to close; set one-piece sleeves into armholes and stitch the shawl collar and pockets in place and it's ready to wear.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, 406 World Building, New York City.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE District of Columbia has the most receiving sets in proportion to population of any State in the union although it is two points under its quota in the matter of broadcasting facilities.

A tabulation by the engineering commission of the Radio Commission shows that its percentage of receivers over-quota is 133, while the nearest approach of any State is 74 by Mississippi.

It's such jolts as these that make one reflect on the futility of fame:

A Pennsylvania mining company has been uncovered which has been operating a small broadcasting station without a license because its officials never heard of the Radio Commission or knew that a license was needed.

Observing their tenth broadcast tonight (WMAL, 7:15), R. Harris & Co. will offer the following program by electrical transcription:

"Dancing Tambourine," "Lonely," "Soaring," "Broadway Melody" medley.

THE oldest of the local programs, Radio Joe, celebrated its 100th consecutive weekly program on the air Tuesday night. The oldest national program is the Eveready Hour, which began in 1923 and is now nearing its 364th performance.

Henry Burbig and Nat Brusiloff are plotting to broadcast several burlesques of Columbia programs. Recently Mr. Burbig gave his version of the Crockett Mountaineers, which became the "Crooked Racketeers."

Upon first reading a press notice we gained the impression that the 110-piece orchestra of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia was to try to finish Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." However, the students are simply going to play it. WMAL, 4 p. m. tomorrow.)

Engaged under a thirteen-week contract, Willie and Eugene Howard are together supposed to be receiving $1,500 each Thursday night for their work in the Beck Brevities. (WABC net, but not WMAL, tonight, 7 o'clock.)

IF you should happen to tune in on the martial strains of "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli," you can be sure that you are listening to Sergt. Chick Godfrey, "the singing marine," who is returning to the air for a series of Thursday evening concerts. (WJSV, tonight, 8:15 o'clock.)

Creator of "Frank Merriwell," "Frank On the Gunboat," and others of the series, William Gilbert Patten will give a few highlights of these gripping boyhood characters today (Radio Homemakers Club, WMAL, 11:15 a. m.). Mr. Patten wrote under the name of Burt L. Standish.

At the age of 16 Mr. Patten could not afford to stop writing to go to college, so he sent Frank Merriwell to Yale, and lived through the excitement of college days by proxy.

The use of experimental radio channels "merely as a hobby" by persons not technically qualified should not be permitted, Chief Examiner Ellis A. Yost declared in a report to the Federal Radio Commission on the application of Jesse P. Lutz, of Southampton, N. Y., for two short waves for experimental purposes.

Pointing out that the applicant was "just trying to see if he wouldn't work out something" and was neither a radio engineer nor a wireless operator, Mr. Yost recommended the denial of the request.

PAUL WHITEMAN was formerly a taxicab driver. He weighs 275 pounds, and the baton with which he directs orchestra broadcasts measures almost 3 feet in length.

As a result of their stipulation that David Ross be their announcer, he has journeyed from New York to St. Louis tonight from where the Lutheran Laymen League will be broadcast (WMAL, 10 o'clock). Already Mr. Ross has journeyed first to Chicago and later from New York to Cleveland especially to announce this program.

Jane Interprets the MODE

Of white satin is this lovely strass-trimmed evening gown, made with an empire waistline and low skirt flares, and a bustle-like bow below the low back decolletage. (Courtesy of Tollmann, Paris.)

New York, Nov. 5.

AND in its soul a more mystic language—the little understood language of scent!

"In Eastern lands they talk in flowers,
And they tell in a garland their loves and cares;
Each blossom that blooms in their garden bowers
On its leaves a mystic language wears."

For centuries the subtle art of employing perfume has been one of woman's cleverest weapons. Not that the use of perfume was unknown to men, but this custom gradually came to be looked upon with disfavor. Yet its use is still known to men in some Oriental and some tropical countries.

* * * *

But what I really started to write about was Miladi's changing fancy in perfumes. All the exotic, composite perfumes are losing favor in her sight, and the simple flower odors are becoming more popular every day. Gardenia is one of the most popular perfumes of the season—so popular, indeed, that one hesitates to use it despite its undeniable charm. Rose, lilac, sweet pea, jasmine, all follow in favor.

The mystic language of flowers!

Did you ever make a gift for a very dear friend, and work so-o-o carefully on it, and have it turn out to be the most beautiful thing in the world, something that you yourself just "couldn't live without?" That's what will probably happen to you when you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet of new luncheon, breakfast and tea sets. It won't be a real tragedy, though, when you see that the work, elaborate though it looks, can be done in the quickest time you ever heard of—so you can make two sets for yourself, of linen or crepe de chine, or, sh-h-h georgette, and one for your friend herself in the same length of time that you used to be able to make one, if you see what I mean.

* * * *

Dear Dare: Will you please tell me what the new fur you see advertised so much, "lapin," is?

My Deah: Lapin is a French word, and in any French-English dictionary you can see that it means common or garden variety rabbit, nothing more! And that's what it means, and nothing more, when applied to fur trimmings, too.

* * * *

Tollmann always favored bows, and here again the typically Tollmann bow, reminiscent of the bustle, in the lovely white satin evening gown I have sketched for you today, with its empire waistline, and strass trimming.

* * * *

Of course you're looking for the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:15 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are not of a stimulating nature, and there will be a tendency to let things drag, and the day's rightful business may be postponed. "Tomorrow is an old deceiver and his cheat never grows stale." Health should be specially guarded.

Children born on this November 6 will be brilliantly successful as boys and girls, but, as with most precocious children, their adult achievements will fall flat in comparison. They should be encouraged to go in for athletics, as they will always want their noses stuck in a book.

You are a very nontalkative being, and although not an ungrateful one, your silence is often misunderstood. In quality to spoken appreciation. Silent appreciation is always inferior. You have an inconspicuous character, and court neither popularity nor unpopularity. You belong to the vast army of clean and sane and temperate livers—the best and most dependable citizens of your country (if not the most conspicuous). There is much stubbornness revealed in your character, and you often hang on to an idea long after you should let go of it. This trait is probably your weakest one. You hate to outwardly admit that you are ever in the wrong, although your errors may be staring you in the face.

You are morally very upright, almost a prude—the animalism in your nature is pretty well conquered. You are capable of very sincere, clean emotions, as expressed in your love for children and for animals. You are always sorry for the "underdog," and go to his assistance if it be possible. Men born on a November 6 are fitted for agricultural pursuits, and should never attempt to lead sedentary existence. You will make good where patience and industry are essential. You are not a promoter or a speculator, and although the fruits of your efforts may be modest, they will always be sure. You are too retiring to make friends easily, but you are very loyal to those few whom you have.

Successful people born November 6: Gail Borden, inventor of a method of condensing milk.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Melting Pot.

SOME of the letters that come to this column reveal great shallowness on the part of the future mothers of this land. What will the next generation be when the girls of today put the most tawdry and trivial considerations above all the real considerations, seek happiness at "parties," and call homemaking kitchen slavery. What will their daughters be like?

Nita tells of two boys who love her. One of them she loves. The other "can not tell the truth to save his life"—but comes of a good family. She believes that the good family can compensate her for the misery and shame of being the wife of the town's best liar, and probably the mother of half a dozen little liars—also of good family. Where do these girls get their ideas? Nita hesitates to marry Dan because of his family. "His mother used to work out and everybody knows about it." How terrible! Better a dishonest husband than one whose mother worked to raise him! Do these girls realize that this Nation is the melting pot of the world? To it come the gallant and the adventurous of each land. They are poor in this world's goods but rich indeed in courage and faith. They come prepared to make their fight and they make it. They work. They prosper. Their sons imitate their example. They are successful. They meet American-born girls and love them and offer them their all. And the American-born girls sniff. Little snobs without brain or imagination, they care nothing for the magic of the melting pot, nor the value of the fusion of bloods. His mother worked. So she marries the fair-haired boy down the street. He is a liar but his family are right. Read Nita's ideas on the subject. Are they perhaps you own?

Dear Miss McDonald: I would appreciate a few minutes of your time as I simply can not make up my mind about a very important matter. Two men have asked me to marry them. I love one of them and he says I will never regret it if I trust my future to him. I believe him. He is highly thought of, and holds a position of public trust. We will call him Dan. The other comes of a very good family, but is sort of a black sheep. His trouble is that he simply can not tell the truth to save his life. That makes me hesitate. But his folks are wonderful to me, and very anxious for the match. My mother is against it because she says he is worthless. However I always have a wonderful time at his home and believe I could make a go of it and know that no matter how he acted his folks would always stand by me. My father says if I take him I will regret it and can never come home afterward.

My people do not like the other one either. They say I should forget them both. Their objection to Dan is that his folks are Irish and his mother used to work out. Everybody knows about it and it annoys mother. It seems Dan's father died and his mother had to bring him up somehow and she used to work wherever she could. She is very young looking and has a nice home now and is all right in her way. She seems glad to see me when we meet, but she had another girl picked out for Dan. He lives with her and thinks she is just about right. We would have our own home if we marry, but I would still be her daughter-in-law. Mother says she is tired of the whole subject and if I marry Dan she will not come to the wedding. Father says he would rather have Dan than Louis.

I do not know what to do. Dan is big and dignified, and nobody meddles in his affairs. But we all live within a few blocks of each other and I feel it is going to be a constant annoyance hearing about how "hard his mother worked to raise those boys." Every time Dan is mentioned, some one comes in with how his mother took in washing. Sometimes I decide to forget it and marry him, then next minute I want to forget him and his mother, and Louis and his lies and be an old maid. What can I do?

NITA.

Such a lot of psychic hash over nothing. If you love a man who is worth loving, what else matters? What better blood could you ask than the sort that this man's mother possessed? You will marry above you, girl, when you join that clan.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WE MADE a fish pond in a charming setting of rhododendrons and young spruce trees, overshadowed by balsam. The size of the pool is 6 feet by 8 feet and the depth is 3 feet. The vertical sides are covered with waterproof cement. As we have no drain near the pool we will have to syphon off the water from time to time. Please tell me what to put in the bottom of the pool. What plants do you suggest? Where shall I purchase roots, seeds or bulbs? CHARLES L. W.

Your pool did not have to be over 2 feet deep to grow lilies successfully. Lilies 2 feet under water do not grow as fast as those covered by only 1 foot of water, the reason being that shallow water warms up faster and growths start more rapidly. As your pool is 3 feet deep it will be necessary to run in only 1 foot of water in the spring and allow it to stand at this level until the growth of the lily pads are well established. As soon as growth develops you can raise the level of the water from week to week. Lily bulbs can not be procured until after all danger of frost is past. I am sorry, but we can not publish names and addresses in this column; if you care to write again and will inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope I will send you the names of several dealers listing these bulbs. Water lilies will grow in any good garden loam with which has been mixed a generous quantity of well-decomposed manure and bonemeal. In addition to this it is best to give the plants some bonemeal twice during the season. In planting lilies do not shovel the soil right into the pool, but place it in cypress boxes which are later placed in the bottom of the pool. Any day-blooming tender nympheas, dentata magnifica or tuberosa rosea are worth while.

Please tell me what is the trouble with my English ivy, of which I am inclosing a few leaves. I washed it once with cold soapsuds, but so far I see no improvement. MRS. J. I.

Your ivy is covered with mealy bugs. One application of soapy water has little effect, but continued daily spraying of soapy water should in two weeks rid the vine of these insects.

Please tell me through your column when to transplant a spirea van houtei. MRS. A. G.

All shrubbery may be transplanted in the late fall or early spring.

Kindly tell me the name of the inclosed leaf. MRS. THOS. H.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to identify the leaf, due to its being practically in powder form when it reached my desk.

I attempted to prepare ground for madonna lilies and when digging found it infested with white grubs. Is there anything I could have used to get rid of these pests?

A CONSTANT READER.

Had you saturated the ground with liquid Bordeaux mixture and also used this material in dry form, incorporating it with the soil, you would no doubt have got rid of these worms.

Please tell me the name of the shrub of which I am inclosing a leaf and tell me if I am safe in attempting to move it this fall.

MRS. A. Y.

Your shrub is an althea (rose of sharon). Better wait until spring to move it.

I have a plant known as house maple, at least that is what I have always heard it called. Please tell me how to prevent the buds from falling just as they are ready to open. It is in the sun and has no insects on it. I just transplanted it.

MRS. M. S.

Your plant is an abutilon. You have checked its growth by transplanting it just as it was coming into bloom. In a few weeks you will find that it has recovered from the shock and will begin to unfold its buds naturally.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

COTTAGE CHEESE BALLS.

(Bureau of Dairy Industry.)

One-half cupful of thick white sauce, made from one and one-half cups of milk.
Two tablespoons of flour.
One tablespoonful of fat.
Two cupfuls cottage cheese.
Two cupfuls mashed potatoes.
One egg beaten.
Bread crumbs.

Make white sauce. Gradually beat cottage cheese into it. Add mashed potatoes, season, make into soft balls, roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs again. Fry in kettle of deep fat until golden brown. These cheese balls are delicious served with tomato sauce.

PERFECT DEFENSE.

The above hand was played at two tables of Duplicate Auction in the first match for the Faber Trophy a little over two years ago. Mr. Culbertson and Baron von Zedtwitz, of the winning team, employed a play that is not generally known.

At both tables South bid one No Trump and the other three players passed. Had it been played at Contract instead of Auction, South, having all four suits stopped and a count of 21, should have bid three No Trumps.

Game is made on many hands by a Declarer's deceptive play which causes the adversaries to misread its object and give up a trick by a lapse in their defense. In such cases Declarer has nothing to lose should the play fail to deceive, because he could not go game without trying it.

In this hand at both tables West's opening lead was his fourth best Diamond (the Five), which closed hand won with the Jack. Declarer could count eight tricks—two Spades, one Diamond and five Clubs. He needed one more trick for game and he had it in the Heart suit unless East had the Ace of Heart and the original lead was from five Diamonds, in which case the adversaries will save game.

Both Declarers tried the expedient of leading the Ace and King of Clubs to tricks 2 and 3; and then the King of Hearts to trick 4 to give the impression that they held no more Clubs and were attempting to force out the Ace of Hearts, thus making dummy's Queen a needed entry to cash the three remaining high Clubs. The play accomplished its purpose at one table, inducing East to hold up the Ace of Hearts; and Declarer, after winning with the King of Hearts, made game with his remaining Clubs and the Ace and King of Spades.

At the other table Mr. Culbertson (West), played the Four and Deuce on the Ace and King of Clubs, completing an echo which showed two cards in the suit. Consequently when the King of Hearts was led, Baron von Zedtwitz knew that closed hand held the Ten of Clubs and did not need the Queen of Hearts for an entry. He won the trick with the Ace of Hearts and by returning his partner's suit (Diamonds), held the Declarer to two-odd.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"When, owing to the bolshevik regime, the armies began to disband, Maj. Dudley came to Petrograd, where I first met him. I met him frequently at one place or another at the houses of mutual friends, and we got to know each other fairly well, I thought. In fact, not many weeks passed by before we became fast friends. I am very fond of Englishmen, and like England next best to my own country. And I respect the honor of Englishmen. Still, there are exceptions to the rule always, and the war, as you all know, has undermined a man here and there. But I won't go into all that.

"This man became a constant visitor to my house, where I made him welcome. I must remark that he had an exceptionally fine voice and as my wife was a gifted pianist, she often accompanied him. At the beginning of our acquaintance, though Natasha—that is my wife's name—and I were both fond of our new friend, we were still very much in love with one another. I was sometimes called away, and I left them playing together, with no thought that in this lurked any danger. My friends jokingly warned me, but I, foolishly perhaps, waved their warnings aside. I hate to mistrust people, and certainly did not mistrust Maj. Dudley.

"As the times grew worse and the bolsheviks made it harder and harder for men of my class, I had to bethink myself of the safety of my wife and myself. I was anxious for her to leave for England. At the same time I wanted to remain behind, to see what I could salvage of my fortune. I didn't think at the time that the bolsheviks would last out, and I was building secret places in my house where I could hide some of my art treasures and the best of my jewels.

"At first I couldn't prevail upon my wife to leave the country while I remained behind. But as the times grew more dangerous and it was becoming increasingly difficult to leave Russia, she finally consented. Then the question came up of the means. She and I and Dudley often discussed the question. One day Dudley came in and said that he would undertake to transport her safely out of the country across the Finnish border. He had a well-planned scheme, and another man whom he could trust had promised to help him. At that time I did not know who the man was, nor did I inquire. I trusted Dudley completely.

"At last they got off. You may imagine how pleased I was a few days later to hear of their safety in Sweden. Meanwhile, things went badly with me. I was arrested by the bolsheviks and thrown into prison without so much as a trial. I finally escaped and managed to make my way across the Finnish frontier. My first efforts were to get news of my wife, for I had not heard of her since the first message of her safety. I at last was successful. I leave it to you to imagine what my feelings were when I heard that Natasha and Dudley were lovers.

"I remember well when I first heard of it. You see, I failed to get any news for a long time, and one day I happened to stroll into a hotel lounge in Stockholm, where I ran into a friend, a countryman of mine. I told him of my worries, and he looked curiously at me and said: 'Boris, I keep your secret, for I am going to tell you something that will fire you with murder!' I somehow guessed about Natasha, but still I didn't think it was Dudley. So, controlling myself the best I could, I asked: 'With whom?' When he told me, I felt sick at heart. I wanted to die. Then my friend turned to me and said: 'I can tell you another thing, Boris. I think you ought to know.' I managed to gasp: 'What is it?' 'Well,' he replied, 'Dudley and your wife are in this very hotel now!'

"I let you judge for yourselves, gentlemen. Had I desired, I could have killed Dudley there and then, but I didn't. I thought to myself: why soil your hands on such a dastardly man? Why bother about a woman capable of such an action? Why, then, should I think of killing a mere accomplice, as I considered Lord Winston to be? Why, indeed, should I, gentlemen, I ask you? Especially as I only learned Lord Winston's name long afterward. If you'll think over the matter carefully, you're the more likely to reason that precisely because I wouldn't shake Lord Winston's hand was proof that I shouldn't think of murdering him; certainly not if I wanted to cover my tracks afterward!"

Prince Pocolevsky paused, with a sad smile; then he added wearily:

"That is my whole story, gentlemen."

It was to be seen that the telling of the narrative had been a difficult ordeal. But he spoken unfalteringly, and with obvious conviction. His voice and manner had the ring of truth. His conclusion was certainly consistent with the facts as he had told them.

His story impressed both listeners. It sounded plausible. There was about it an air of verisimilitude, even if he had unwittingly exaggerated Lord Winston's part in Maj. Dudley's escapade. Inspector Linscott, while in a way disappointed, accepted his failure to arrive nearer the solution of the murder as philosophically as becomes a detective accustomed to such performances; but Bruce Armstrong took his unworthy suspicion more to heart, and began to pour out the most profuse apologies to the prince. But the prince only waved the explorer aside with a suave generous gesture.

"Never mind that. I suppose you have only done your duty! . . . By the way," he said suddenly, turning to the inspector with a startling suddenness, "I had almost forgotten to say that when at the inquest Mr. Flint spoke of seeing a cigarette light in the garden on the night of the murder while the thunderstorms hovered about, I wanted to contradict him . . . but hesitated. You see, I also commanded a full view of the garden . . . and I saw no light flickering and no shadow or figure of a man. It is usual in a storm to have optical hallucinations, I know. . . . I merely wanted to put my word in, in case the exact time of the murder should ever be in question. I believe, for my part, that Lord Winston met his death before the young poet left the room."

Inspector Linscott listened gravely while the prince was speaking, but made no comment, merely thanking him for his information, and with the explorer, taking an abrupt leave.

As soon as they were clear of the building in which the prince had his flat, Armstrong turned to the inspector.

"What do you make of it?" he asked.

"He tells a pretty straight tale, as far as I can make out," returned the inspector slowly, as if weighing each word. "Still, I don't feel we can strike him from our list yet. That last remark about not seeing Lord Winston and yet caricaturing the same view of the garden as Mr. Flint is either mighty interesting . . . or a lie."

"You think . . ."

"Nothing definite! I'm still feeling my way. But for an enigmatical fellow, I'll say that Russian prince deserves the prize!"

"But about Mr. Flint. You don't think he deliberately made up that story about seeing Lord Winston?"

"No, I don't" was the emphatic answer. "What object could he have? Ask yourself that, Mr. Armstrong. If he were guilty . . . and I'd say the night of his betrothal was a darn queer time to choose to murder his fiancee's brother . . . but supposing he were guilty, he'd be the last person to make a statement which might be questioned, or so it appears to me."

"You're right, Linscott! But it must be someone! Who in hell is left?"

"Well, there's you, Armstrong . . ."

The explorer started as if stung and roared:

"What the devil do you mean?"

"Calm yourself!" the detective smilingly advised. "I only answered your question. There are plenty of persons left in this world who might have done it. I was only mentioning one."

"Yes, there are several million," was the sarcastic reply. "Do you propose we interview them all separately?"

"I propose we get the first train from Victoria and get back to Alsten Manor and find out whether anything has happened in our absence. I may have some news from the fellers I put out through the Yard."

"Right-o!" The explorer was restored to his customary good humor, which had been a bit ruffled by the failure of their visit and the detective's reference to him as an object of suspicion. He had not thought he stood in that light and he did not relish the idea.

On the return journey the two men spoke little. The inspector was wrapped in his own thoughts. The fatal knife obtruded again and again. He couldn't get away from the fact that it was a French-Canadian weapon, and the belief that when the criminal was found he would prove to be a Canadian. It was too awkward and bulky a weapon for a fastidious civilized primor; he had felt it from the first. The murderer would be a big, virile fellow, used to the woods and wilds, not hesitant when to kill was necessary. It was for such a man that he was searching. He resolved to see Lady Gwendolen that very day and get as full an account as possible of how her brother came to be possessed of the knife which had so closely resembled the fatal blade and of his past life in Canada. Somewhere out there, his instinct told him, lay the real key to the mystery.

Hollywood Screen Life

By MILDRED KEAVY.

Hollywood—Mary Pickford's used footgear is just a lot of second-hand shoes so far as the curious public is concerned.

LOIS MORAN.

More specifically, the Screen Stars Shop that America's sweetheart sponsored to sell clothes, jewelery, books and knick-knacks once owned by film players is doing just about enough business to pay the rent.

Miss Pickford's idea in opening the store was to raise through its sales additional money for the motion picture relief fund.

She believed that shoes (autographed), gowns, suits, costume jewelry and the like, worn in pictures or otherwise by film luminaries, would sell readily.

For Visitors, Extras.

The shop would attract visitors mostly, it was expected, who wanted to take home from Hollywood something more personal than a picture postcard of their favorite's residence.

It was supposed to be a place, too, where extra players could replenish their wardrobes at a small cost.

Many have come to the shop since it opened six months ago, but few have bought. Decks of playing cards (new), whose kings, queens and jokers bore celebrities' autographs have been the best sellers.

But as far as second-hand clothes —nobody seems to want them—famous as they are.

Busy Lois.

It seems to me that Lois Moran has the right idea. She works only six months each year.

A contract she recently signed with Fox gives her four months consecutively to do as she pleases and another two months away from the studio to be taken some time between the three pictures she will make each year.

When possible, the six months will run concurrently.

Now Miss Moran is in New York, where, instead of doing the conventional things that people do during long holidays, she will study.

She intends to take several courses at Columbia University, in addition to continuing her lessons in singing. She speaks French well, having attended school abroad, but now Lois wants to brush up on Spanish and Italian. Her studies may also include psychology.

The young player's desire to study probably is inherited. Her mother and business manager, Mrs. Gladys Moran, took a course, which included political economy, at a university this summer.

Liver and Bacon.
Baked Liver and Bacon
Baked Potatoes
Escalloped Cabbage
Biscuit Currant Jelly
Fruit Gelatin Mold
Apple Roll Lemon Sauce
Coffee or Tea

Baked Liver and Bacon, Serving 6.

1 pound liver, sliced.
1-3 cup flour.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon paprika.
¼ teaspoon celery salt.
6 slices bacon.
½ cup water.

Soak liver in cold water 5 minutes. Dry and sprinkle with flour, salt, paprika and celery salt. Fit into baking dish and top with bacon and add water. Cover and bake 25 minutes in moderate oven.

Escalloped Cabbage.

5 cups cooked cabbage.
1-3 cup butter.
1-3 cup flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
2½ cups milk.

Melt butter and add flour, salt and paprika. Blend well and add milk. Cook until creamy sauce forms, stirring frequently. Add cabbage and pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Fruit Gelatin Mold.

(Using canned fruits and juices.)

1 package lemon flavored gelatin mixture.
1 cup boiling water.
1 cup boiling fruit juices.
1-3 cup diced pineapple.
1-3 cup diced peaches.
¼ cup diced celery.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1-3 cup salad dressing.

Pour water and fruit juices over gelatin mixture. Stir well and cook until little thick. Add rest of ingredients and pour into mold. Chill. Serve on lettuce.

Apple Roll.

2 cups flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons fat.
2-3 cup milk.
2 cups cooked, sweetened apple sauce
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
2 tablespoons soft butter.

Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in fat with knife. Mixing with knife, add milk. When soft dough forms, pat it out until ¼ inch thick. Spread with remaining ingredients and roll up. Pinch ends tightly. Place on greased pan and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm, cut in slices.

$150,000 Estate Left By Mrs. M. C. Markham

An estate valued at approximately $150,000 was left by Mrs. Matilda C. Markham, who died October 15, according to the petition for the probate of her will filed yesterday in District Supreme Court. The estate consists of premises at 1326 New York avenue, valued at $128,512, and personal property estimated to be worth $20,622.78.

Under the will, Herman C. Gasch, trustee and executor, is directed to convert the estate into cash and give one-half to Edward B. Markham, a stepson; $3,000 to Anna M. Thyson, and the remainder to the children of her dead half-sister, Mary McKeldin. Attorneys Tobriner & Graham appear for the executor.

Magna Charta Dames Celebrate Anniversary

The National Society Magna Charta Dames yesterday celebrated the 716th anniversary of the preliminary gathering of the English barons, prior to the signing of the charter, with a luncheon-meeting at the Willard Hotel.

This organization, started in Washington in 1909, is composed of women who claim to be lineal descendants of one or more of the English barons who sponsored the historic document.

Dunbar Graduates Vie In Politics of Harlem

Defeat of Francis Ellis Rivers, Dunbar High School graduate, who is a member of the New York Legislature, for election as a municipal judge in Harlem Tuesday, was effected, according to advices received yesterday, by another colored graduate of the high school here, Ferdinand Q. Morton, Negro Tammany leader, wh threw the support of his organization solidly behind colored Democrats for the judgeships created by the bill which Rivers sponsored.

The result was the election of Charles A. Toney and James S. Watson to positions which will pay $15,000 a year after January 1, and for which the term of office is ten years. Rivers is the son of the Rev. D. F. Rivers, pastor of the Berean Baptist Church.

Neighborhood Houses Marks It's 29th Year

The Neighborhood House yesterday celebrated the twenty-ninth anniversary of its founding with an "open house." During the day there was an exhibition of work done by inmates. The Boys and Girls Clubs and the junior kindergarten gave demonstrations. Dinner was served by the women's clubs.

The house, at 407 N street northwest, receives daily about 200 child and adult visitors. Its workers assist residents of the vicinity in finding employment. Founded in 1901 by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weller, it had an original clientele of 200.

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Forbes" is of Celtic origin. It is generally applied to families who originally came from the City of Forbes, in Aberdeenshire, Scotland. This place-name is probably derived from the Old Gaelic "forss" meaning "a field." However, in some cases "Forbes" has been adopted as an Anglicized form of the Irish "MacFirbhisigh," which means "the son of Fearbhirigh." "Fearbhirigh" was an old personal name meaning "man of prosperity."

The family name "Sackville" is of French origin, but it seems to have become established in England about the time of William the Conqueror. Its source is the Norman French "seque-ville," and its full significance as a family name is "he who lives at or near the dry town," that is, a town which is built on high land or which is adequately drained. In some old documents this name is given the Latinized forms "de Sicca Villa" and "de Arida Villa." The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain John de Sakawyle and a Jordan de Sakeville, both of whom were living in County Suffolk.

The family name "Mauser" is of German origin. It means "mole-catcher," and obviously indicates the occupation of the persons who were first so called. Common variations in the spelling of this name are "Meuser" and "Muser."

The family name "Almy" (also spelled "Almey") is of English and ultimately of Scandinavian origin. Its source is the old Norse "almr," meaning "elm," and "ey," meaning "island." It was first applied to persons who lived on or near an island with elm trees growing on it.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

No Appetite.

Occasionally one finds a child who eats poorly for no one definite cause that can be discovered.

The doctor finds nothing wrong with him. His food is intelligently planned. He is not permitted to eat between meals.

There has been no undue attention, fussing or strain connected with meal times, and yet he has no interest in food served him.

With such a child there are probably several factors all indirectly contributing and forming a chain of cause and effect that will require a change in his entire manner of life to break.

Such a chronically unhungary child in all likelihood does not play well. He is not interested in games or in any of the simple physical activities that cause children to come tired but ravenous to the dinner table.

Of course, his lack of exercise affects his appetite.

Because he is undernourished he has not the surplus energy which makes him interested in the world about him, and because he takes no interest he does not exercise.

Such a vicious circle can not be broken in a day or a week. We should make a special effort to provide him with congenial playmates who will stir him to normal active play.

He should be given attractive playthings that will require the expenditure of physical energy for their enjoyment.

He should be made as happy as possible in order that his frame of mind may be such that he will welcome every new kind of experience.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. W. A. EVANS.

WHY THEY DRINK.

FOR years a very important controversy has been waging. The question is: Are men nutty because they drink, or do they drink because they are nutty? The answer seems to be—both. There is no question as to mental disturbances which result from alcoholism. These are several. As the result of somewhat acute intoxication we have acute alcoholism, manic a potu, delirium tremens, and some cases of Korsakoff's psychosis. Among the chronic effects are chronic alcoholism, some cases of Korsakoff, and various forms of alcoholic insanity.

On the other hand, it is pretty well established that when a person becomes a drunkard some mental or moral perversion lies back of the habit. Among the social causes of drunkenness which register on personality, and which prepares the ground for alcohol addiction, Dr. Hart gives the following: Constitutional inability in the family stock, particularly if in the family there has been parental discord, alcoholism, want of discipline and lack of sensible direction in childhood; pampering, particularly if the person is an only child; being ill adjusted to life; cyclothymic maxeup, or personality. He says: "Because of its emotional significance alcoholism cannot be regarded as a disease such as typhoid fever or pneumonia, which runs its course and from which the patient is glad to recover."

"On the other hand, the personality type among which alcoholic addiction is most apt to develop is one which craves to make use of the alcoholic solace because it is, for him, a desirable release from a feeling of inadequacy. It is not easy to find a satisfactory substitute for this means of release, and release he feels he must have. Curing a person of the alcohol habit is an emotional and moral problem."

Getting the drug out of the system is a fairly easy matter. Making the patient temporarily dislike his drink and causing him to vomit when he smells or tastes it is fairly easy. The difficult part of the job of breaking the whisky habit is in changing the personality, the emotional and mental makeup which underlies the habit.

CRAMPS AT NIGHT.

A. H. writes:

1. In changing position in bed, why do the legs sometimes cramp, and can this tendency be overcome?

2. Also, when taken with cramp, how can the attack be most easily relieved?

REPLY.

1. Insufficient bed clothes is the most frequent cause. Wear heavier nightwear, especially on your legs, and use more bed cover. Eating a full supper is another cause. Going supperless is one way to prevent.

2. Putting the feet on the floor gives quick relief. A warm floor is better than a cold one, but use whatever floor is in reach.

NO ALUMINUM POISON.

P. M. writes: I have heard a lot about aluminum poisoning. My mother uses aluminum pans and we have never suffered from the effects. Would you publish something on the matter?

REPLY.

Try to find who put out the stuff about poisoning from aluminum pans and why they put it out.

There is no such poisoning.

WHY CHANGE FOREHEAD?

O. D. H. writes:

1. The back of my forehead, over the eyes, is curved outward. What is the cause of it?

2. I am told it can be straightened by an operation in which they break the curvature and reset same.

3. Would an operation of that sort destroy my features?

REPLY.

1. Your supra-orbital ridge is larger than the average. Probably you have a rather large supra-orbital sinus and thus the large ridge. It does no harm. Some women prefer men that way and some men are partial to foreheads of that type.

2. You have been misinformed.

3. It would leave you less good looking than you now are.

CONFESSION IS LAID TO PAIR IN SLAYING

Alleged Hired Killer and Victim's Husband Admit California Crime.

ALIBI HELD PUNCTURED

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Two confessions to the shotgun murder of Mrs. Merle Ells, 22-year-old mother, were claimed by police today, one allegedly by the hired killer and the other by the woman's divorced husband.

The verdict of a coroner's jury also directly accused Emory Ells of hiring Benjamin Franklin Brown, itinerant glass moulder, to kill the mother of his own son.

"Mrs. Ells died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Benjamin Franklin Brown, employed to do the killing by Emory Ells, with homicidal intent," the jury verdict read. Immediately after the verdict was returned both men were remanded to jail without bail.

The confession of Brown amazed police detectives by its unexpected solution of a murder which had puzzled them since Sunday. They quoted him as confessing that Ells offered him $2,000, but that he had received only $2.20 in dimes.

Shown the signed confession of the assertedly hired killer, Ells, the detectives said, fully corroborated Brown's story of the slaying. For three days Ells had stuck to an ironclad alibi that he had worked throughout Saturday night, when his divorced wife was killed as she slept.

State Rests Case In Lynching Trial

Witness for South Carolina Mayor Brings Applause in Courtroom.

Walhalla, S. C., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The State rested its case here this afternoon and four defense witnesses had taken the stand when court adjourned in the trial of 17 men on charges of murder in connection with the lynching last spring of Allen Green, 52-year-old Negro. Green had been charged with attacking a white woman.

Immediately after resting the State's case, Solicitor Leon W. Harris announced he would be willing to accept verdicts of not guilty in trial of four of the defendants—Jake Wilbanks, Ibra Patterson, Joe McCall, jr., and Pete Epps—because he considered the testimony as to the four insufficient to go to the jury.

Court was adjourned amid much handclapping resulting from testimony on Morris Brown, who testified concerning movements of R. L. Ballentine, Walhalla mayor, and Alvin Jones, night policeman, on the night of the lynching. Brown saw them in a cafe at 11:15 p. m., about 45 minutes before Green was taken from the jail, he added. Ballentine and Jones left the cafe and went to the fire station, the witness continued, and immediately after they reached there the alarm was sounded that a mob was attacking the jil. They were at the first station when the mob passed through with the Negro, he declared.

Gas Poison Fatal To Jobless Man

Wife Returns to Apartment to Find Husband Dead in Closed Room.

Frederick L. Eldridge, 35 years old, died last night in the Drake Apartments, H street near Twenty-first northwest, of gas poisoning taken, police say, with suicidical intent.

Eldridge had been unable to obtain work, according to his wife, and had seemed despondent for several weeks. His wife, Frances Eldridge, had obtained a position on Monday with a local women's wear establishment. When she returned home from work last night she found the door to her apartment shielded by a rug. Gas jets on a kitchen range were open. Her husband was found on a cot clad in a bathrobe.

Apartment house employes summoned the Fire Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital. Efforts to resuscitate Eldridge failed. Dr. A. L. Delgrego, of Emergency Hospital, pronounced him dehad.

Alleged Purse-Taker Held in $10,000 Bond

John Byrd, colored, was held under a $10,000 bond for the action of the grand jury when he was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of purse snatching. He was said to have taken a pocketbook from Mrs. Laura Carleton, of 35 M street northwest, Sunday afternoon.

The high bond was set by Judge Isaac R. Hitt when it was disclosed in court that Assistant District Attorney Michael Keogh expected to prosecute two other cases of the same character against him. The man was arrested by Privates J. F. Dankmyer and C. N. Strange, of the Second Precinct.

BAD-CHECK CHARGES CONTINUED BY COURT

Receipt of More Complaints Results in Action of Judge McMahon.

TRIAL HERE TO BE FIRST

Charges of passing worthless checks which had been preferred against Robert Rogers, 32, were continued in Police Court yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon when he was told by headquarters detectives that complaints were still being sant in to them about the man.

Rogers, who has used more than twenty aliases in his alleged operations, is charged with giving worthless checks to real estate salesmen, ostensibly as part payment of property which he wanted to buy, but always making the check larger than the nebessary amount so that he could collect money and leave town. He is said to have operated in many cities and towns along the Atlantic seaboard.

A telegram was received from A. R. Ressler, of the Pennsylvania investigating bureau at Reading, Pa., while Rogers was being arraigned in Police Court yesterday asking Washington police if they would let them have him, to be tried in that State on similar charges. He was known in Pennsylvania as Henry E. Barbehenn, and admitted his identity.

Police here have stated that he would be tried here before he was turned over to outside authorities.

Army Officers to Ride In National House Show

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Metropolitan New York will pay homage to King Horse when the national horse show moves into transformed Madison Square Garden for a six-day session starting tomorrow.

The show will reach its climax on Tuesday night, when eighteen of the finest jumpers from the armies of Germany, Sweden, Hungary, the Irish Free State, Canada and the United States compete for the coveted military team trophy. On the following nights the same daring officers mounted on the same horses will battle over the fences for the individual honors.

Senator McNary's Auto Tags Reported Stolen

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, has lost a set of automobile license plates, according to a report made to police yesterday by his chauffeur, George Smith, of 1204 Twentieth street northwest.

The plates, said to be No. 513, were taken from the car while it was stored in a garage near the Mayflower Motel, where the senator is living. They had been taken during the past three weeks, the chauffeur said.

Washington, Wednesday, Nov. 5—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Fair and much colder Thursday; Friday fair and continued cold; fresh to strong northwest winds, diminishing by Thursday night.

For Maryland—Generally fair and much colder, except snow flurries in west portion Thursday; Friday fair and continued cold; strong northwest winds, diminishing by Thursday night.

For Virginia—Fair and much colder Thursday; Friday fair and continued cold; northwest gales on the coast, diminishing by Thursday night.

The Atlantic Coast disturbance has moved northeastward to New England with considerably increased intensity. Portland, Me., 29.46 inches. It has been attended by rains in the Atlantic States as far south as the Carolinas and in the Appalachian region and the upper Ohio Valley and by strong easterly winds and gales along the North Atlantic Coast. Fair weather has prevailed elsewhere in the United States, except for snow flurries in the Lake region. There has been a further deepening of the depression over and south of Alaska. Kodiak, 28.62 inches, and pressure remains low over the Greenland-Iceland area. Godthaab, 29.44 inches. Pressure is high from the Arctic Ocean southward to the Middle and West Gulf coasts and the Rio Grande Valley, Winnipeg, Man., 30.66 inches. The temperature has risen in the South Atlantic States and it has fallen almost generally between the Rocky and Appalachian Mountains. The weather has become much colder from the Lake Superior region southwestward to Kansas and Missouri.

Except for snow flurries in northern New England, the interior of New York and in portions of Pennsylvania, the weather will be fair Thursday and Friday east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will be lower throughout the Washington forecast district Thursday and Thursday night and the weather will become much colder in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States. There will be a reaction to somewhat higher temperature during Friday, however, as far east as the Appalachian Mountains.

BAILEY GETS 100,000 MARGIN FOR SENATE

Democrats in North Carolina Score Overwhelming Victories.

2 HOUSE SEATS REGAINED

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—North Carolina swung back to the Democratic fold yesterday with all the vehemence with which it followed Hoover in 1928. Additional returns from the general election today revealed details of such an overwhelming Democratic victory as the State had not known before in modern times.

Two congressional districts lost to the Republicans two years ago were regained. Josiah W. Bailey, Democratic senatorial nominee, received the greatest percentage of votes ever given a candidate, and his majority appeared likely to set a new record.

Charles A. Jonas, Republican, Representative from the Ninth District was unseated by A. Lee Bulwinkle, the Democrat he defeated in 1928. Zebulon Weaver, Democrat, was victorious in the Tenth District over Brownlow Jackson. Two years ago Weaver lost the district to George M. Pritchard, this year the Republican party's Senatorial standard bearer.

Bailey's majority over Pritchard with 1,128 of the State's 1,811 precincts reported was approximately 100,000. The vote stood Bailey 219,467; Pritchard 116,468.

The largest Democratic majority ever registered in a North Carolina senatorial race previously was 111,011, rolled up by Senator F. M. Simmons in 1924, a presidential election year.

The last off year, Senator Lee S. Overman, Democrat, won by 76,043 votes.

With Weaver leading by 10,000 votes, Jackson this afternoon conceded defeat. Jonas refused to concede victory to Bulwinkle, but was 7,000 votes behind with all but 43 small districts reported.

Other Democratic congressional nominees won easily, while Democratic county tickets made heavy inroads in normally Republican counties.

Hosiery Stolen From Truck.

Cartons containing more than $125 worth of ladies' hosiery were reported stolen from a truck belonging to the Tidewater Line, Inc., at 929 C street northwest, yesterday. Howard W. Clark, who made the report, said that the hosiery was consigned to D. Brown, in Baltimore, Md.

Gasoline From Well Makes Car Motor Run

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 5.—Lennie Burwell's natural filling station has become the talk of Caswell County, where he lives, and the Negro's farm is being visited by many persons who have heard of the strange phenomenon.

On Burwell's farm is a well which for years has been known for its cool, clear water. Last April the water became undrinkable because it was impregnated with oil. In succeeding months the flow of water gradually ceased and a fluid which has the potentiality of gasoline has taken its place. He now draws from four to eight gallons of the fuel a day in the old oaken bucket and, when placed in the gasoline tank of an automobile, the motor runs smoothly.

Fifty-two of 67 counties in Alabama are now covered by full-time health officers.

Alleged Source of Rum For Soldiers Arrested

Claiming to have eliminated the source of the liquor supply for soldiers stationed at Fort Myer, Va., Arlington County police last night arrested A. E. McNichol, of Radnor Heights, Va., on charges of possession of 12 gallons of whisky.

The raiding party consisted of policemen James D. East, William E. Thompson and Roger Orrison. Judge Harry R. Thomas in Police Court will give McNichol a preliminary hearing today.

Articles Stolen From Auto.

Luther C. Hatton, of 319 L street southwest, yesterday reported to police that a black windbreaker, a pair of goggles and a leather helmet were stolen from his car, which he had parked in front of that address Tuesday. The value of the missing articles was said to be $34.

WASHINGTON TREE PLANTED BY D.A.R.

Virginia Conference Ends Annual Session at Lynchburg.

DATA IS ASSEMBLED

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Nov. 5.—With an honor to the memory of George Washington, the thirty-fourth annual conference of Virginia D. A. R. ended at Randolph Macon Woman's College tonight. One of the last acts of the conference was the planting of a memorial tree on the college campus, for which Dr. James D. Paxton, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker.

Reports from chapters showed education and patriotic education are first objectives of the chapters. Large loan funds are being maintained and data of historical nature is being assembled and made available for other generations. Reports also showed much interest in locating historical markers. The constitution was amended to give the State regent authority to name a corresponding secretary. A visit to Sweet Briar College was abandoned because of bad condition of a detour.

Russia and China were declared to be sources of influence against home, state and church, by Mrs. A. C. Ford, of Clifton Forge. She urged the chapters to maintain an offensive against these "subversive forces."

Mrs. Hampton Fleming, Richmond, said Virginia newspapers often appear to be more willing to give space to activities of Reds and Communists than to the work of the D. A. R. Miss Claudine Hutter withdrew a resolution which was intended to direct attention to an error in a history published in Missouri.

The conference decided to publish a report of historical trees, which was brought to the conference by Mrs. Arthur Robotham, of Alta Vista.

Boy Is Hurt When Hit By Minister's Machine

William Vandeveere, 13 years old, 1611 Riggs place northwest, was seriously injured yesterday when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile making a left turn at Fourteenth and Fairmont streets northwest. He is in Children's Hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries.

The driver of the machine which hit the youth, police said, was the Rev. Kenton Moomaw, 3608 Norton place northwest. After a preliminary investigation, police did not hold Mr. Moomaw, declaring the accident unavoidable.

Wedding Deferred, Man Ends Own Life

Carolina School Teacher's Fickleness Fatal to Sweetheart.

Special to The Washington Post.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 5.—Because his fiance, Grace Hensley, pretty school teacher, wanted to postpone their wedding ceremony after traveling to Burnsville to have it performed, Sam Bennett, 22-year-old Asheville bondsman, killed himself at the home of Charles Hutchins, Burnsville attorney, his uncle.

Authorities investigating the suicide said Bennett and Miss Hensley had been sweethearts for some time in Asheville, where both live, and that they left this city in company with James Hinner, friend of Bennett, and another young woman, for Burnsville, where the ceremony was to be performed.

They had planned to be married at the Hutchins home. The license had been obtained. When Miss Hensley requested postponement, Bennett, according to authorities, went into the kitchen of the Hutchins home and fired a pistol bullet through his brain.

Charleston, S. C., has a library founded in 1748, and a museum begun in 1773.

So that the individual can purchase more..

The economic problem of today is one of consumption rather than production. People speak of over-production in times of business depressions. This is a theoretical situation which is given reality by the limited spending power of the public. It would be hard to imagine such an over-abundance of goods that there would not be enough people on the earth to consume them—if they had the money to pay for them.

The problem is to enable people to consume more. Over-production is in reality under-consumption. One way to help solve this problem is by reducing the price of a commodity so that the individual can purchase more and consume more. The Washington Gas Light Company is working toward this end so that it may prosper and grow, and in its small way help the general growth and prosperity of Washington and the Nation.

The reduced rates here have taken gas out of the expensive necessity class and put it into the utility class. Your gas company is most gratified by the whole-hearted response which the public of Greater Washington has made to the reduction of gas rates. That this response is favorable is shown by the fact that the sale of gas appliances in October increased 400 percent over the same month last year. It was the biggest month—by $100,000—for the sale of gas appliances that we have ever experienced.

The Washington Gas Light Company is appreciative of the Good Will of the Public, and is encouraged to continue its efforts to become a better public servant.

"I was always irregular until I began taking your wonderful medicine. I had tried several other remedies but none of them helped me. Lydia E. Pinkhams' Vegetable Compound has certainly straightened me out. I can go ahead with my work now, do not have to lie down and I am feeling fine. I have only taken two bottles, and I am now on the third. I believe the Vegetable Compound is a fine medicine for women and young girls. I am telling my girl friends about it for I feel that it will help them as it did me."—Opal Covey.

MRS. L. E. ALLAN
R. F. D. No. 1,
Pomona, Kansas

"I was weak, rundown and tired all the time. Some days I would get my work done, other days I did not. My husband got me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after we read an advertisement about it in Comfort. Now I get my work all done by 8.30 or 9 o'clock almost every morning and I enjoy doing it more too. My nerves are more steady and it has helped to build up my body before my baby came. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and if any woman cares to write I will try to answer her letter."—Mrs. L. E. Allan.

MRS. PAULINA PASCUZZI
316 Tremont Avenue,
East Orange, New Jersey

"I never had any appetite and I could not sleep well, and I was irregular and often suffered from headaches because of my age. I read about the Pinkham Medicines in a booklet which was left at my door, and so I took eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine. I feel stronger in every way now. I have gained in weight and am not nearly so nervous and can do my housework without getting too tired."—Mrs. Paulina Pascuzzi.

EDNA SLURAFF
1129 Daly Street,
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

"I was completely rundown from nursing. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I took four bottles with very good results. This medicine has helped me in every way. My nerves are better, my appetite is good, I sleep well, and am able to work every day. I have been a nurse for twenty years without losing a patient, I am proud to say. I will continue to recommend the Lydia E. Pinkham products at any time and you may use my name. I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Edna Sluraff.

—Now you can

Carry your medicine with you!

For the convenience of busy women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now sold in tablet form. These tablets are chocolate coated, easy to swallow and are just as effective as the liquid Compound. Each package contains 70 tablets or 35 doses, the same number of doses contained in a bottle of liquid medicine. Slip a package into your handbag. Take your medicine regularly, wherever you are—shopping, traveling, at the theater, or at your desk in the office.

LA GORCE, 25 YEARS IN SOCIETY, HONORED

GLOBE ATLAS IS TOKEN

On the twenty-fifth anniversary of his association with the National Geographic Society, Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the society and associate editor of the National Geographic Magazine, last night was signally honored by a representative group of leaders of the business and professional world.

The tribute, a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Willard, brought forth explorers, scientists, educators, bankers, business executives, writers and editors. Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, presided at the festivity.

The Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University, conferred upon the guest of honor the honorary degree of master of arts, saying, "There is probably no medium that has ever contributed so much to international peace through education as the National Geographic Magazine."

In behalf of his associates on the board of trustees of the society, Dr. La Gorce was given a globe atlas of the world. The presentation was made by Dr. Grosvenor.

Those who attended the dinner are: Dr. George K. Burgess, Dr. Frederick V. Coville, John Joy Edson, Dr. David Fairchild, Robert V. Fleming, Dr. John Foote, Mr. J. BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

It has always been one of my livelier suspicions that there is more to this Hollywood "extra" business than meets the eye—or the pay envelope. My conjecture now seems to be confirmed by an interesting communication from Mr. Hubbard Keavy, chief of this column's West Coast stop, look and listen department.

Adolph Faylauer, says Mr. Keavy, is the most famous dress-suit extra and bit player in Hollywood. He has eaten more movie banquets, drunk more colored water from champagne glasses and worn out more evening clothes than any other man in pictures.

When casting directors start filling the chairs in a big banquet scene, a wedding or a fashionable foreign scene, they put in a call for Faylauer. Sometimes they speak in advance for his services, he is kept that busy. In his ten years in Hollywood he has appeared in more than 700 films. He has a complete record of casts and directors and what he did in each picture.

Faylauer estimates that he has eaten 400 movie banquets. Now a movie banquet, you should know, is not one of those casual affairs that can be attended to in a single evening. Not at all. They usually last three or four days, what with retakes, shooting from different angles and one thing and another. In each scene and from each angle the banqueters must eat.

"One eats something on an average of every half-hour," he says. "It is rather strenuous on the digestion, especially as the food, originally hot, soon gets cold. I don't think I have ever enjoyed 'prop' food. I don't like it, but I have to eat and then my appetite is spoiled for everything else that I might really like."

Faylauer wears out four suits of evening clothes a year—all before the cameras. He wears them so much for screen purposes that he can not be induced to don one for any other reason.

He estimates that he has discarded 50 top hats in the last ten years—where the average man seldom owns one and never wears one out.

He is always in demand for formal weddings and has seen practically every important star in pictures trudge to a make-believe altar and plight his troth to a bogus bride—or hers to a counterfeit groom.

Faylauer's selection is no mere accident. He is German by birth, and university educated. He speaks four languages perfectly and has traveled extensively. Because of this, combined with his "foreign appearance," he fits perfectly into any fashionable scene.

He is the author of a number of short stories, which he writes under a pen name that he refuses to divulge. He likes picture work, he says, because it gives him time to write. But he doesn't write about Hollywood.

So I evidently was wrong and Mr. Keavy really did write this, after all.

It would be my personal and wholly unsolicited suggestion to the Federal Government that Rudy Vallee be pensioned by the Postoffice Department in partial acknowledgment of his postage stamp sale promotion. Every time his name is mentioned in print, it seems, all those fluttering hearts leap into the mails to say something about it to the one responsible for the mention.

Last Saturday this space was so thoughtless as to say something about Lehigh's little brother's hold on the public and all those who previously had bombarded us with brickbats and other species of alley apples forthwith began to pelt us with violets and hyacinths.

It must be a racket.

It would not surprise me to learn that a bit of sentiment had entered into the making of Norma Talmadge's "Du Barry, Woman of Passion," current at Loew's Palace.

It will be recalled by all who have followed the development of the cinema with any degree of thoroughness whatever that one of the greatest fist fights ever filmed was staged by William Farnum and Tom Santschi in the original silent production of Rex Beach's story of "The Spoilers," recently given a feeble dialogue rendition by Gary Cooper and William Boyd.

It furthermore is common knowledge that William Farnum is playing the role of Louis XV with Miss Talmadge in "Du Barry" to celebrate his debut upon the articulate screen. I very much doubt, however, that as many as 1 out of 100 who have viewed the film have given any heed to the fact that Tom Santschi also appears in "Du Barry." He is the captain of the prison guard in the closing sequences of the picture.

The passing scene presents other instances of notables shrouded in virtual obscurity, too. The most gorgeous of the maidens who ride down the mountainside, like a band of Indian Godivas, in the "Song to the Setting Sun" episode in "Whoopee," at the Columbia, is Dorothy Knapp, "the most beautiful girl in the world," whose star fell into the descendant with her exit from Mr. Carroll's production of "Fioretta." Heigh-hō! Life is like that!

Other duties having precluded the possibility of attending the press showing of "The Cat Creeps," at the Rialto last midnight, I nevertheless am willing to go on record with the guess that no picture could be indifferently enacted by a cast composed of Helen Twelvetrees, Raymond Hackett, Neil Hamilton, Lilyan Tashman, Jean Hersholt, Montagu Love, Lawrence Grant, Theodore von Eltz, Blanche Frederici and Elizabeth Patterson.

Every one a "name."

The new attractions for the ensuing week, incidentally, will be as follows: Earle, Dorothy Jordan and Robert Montgomery in "Love in the Rough;" RKO-Keith's, Evelyn Brent and Louis Wolheim in "The Silver Horde;" Palace, Walter Huston and Kay Francis in "The Virtuous Sin;" Fox, Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, in "Renegades;" Rialto, Helen Twelvetrees in "The Cat Creeps;" Metropolitan, Winnie Lightner in "The Life of the Party," return engagement, and Columbia, Eddie Cantor in "Wheepee," second week.

Stage shows, as usual, at the Fox, Palace and Earle, with the Fox and Metropolitan inaugurating their programs on Friday.

Well, after looking at the vote, what'll ya have, gents, light or dark?

Work of World Alliance Via Churches Outlined

The work of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches was explained to the Washington Lions Club at its luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday by Harry N. Holmes, field secretary. He cited the meeting to be held here next week.

The movement was characterized as "glacial," which is "making great progress in causing nations to resort to friendship instead of arms."

Strikers Annoyed By Security Act

Danville Workers Are Told Move Is Entering Wedge for Troops.

Danville, Va., Nov. 5.—The wrath of textile union officials was directed today toward the Pittsylvania Board of Supervisors, which yesterday took cognizance of the strike situation by empowering the finance committee of the board to provide for the security of people and property independently of the sheriff's office if necessary. Addressing a meeting of strikers, C. W. Bolick, organizer, declared the proposed expense was unfair to the taxpayers and was unnecessary since the union "has conducted the strike in an orderly way." It was further asserted that it was the "entering wedge for bringing troops to Danville."

The union adopted a series of resolutions sharply condemning the supervisors.

Today it was learned from a union authority that the union is preparing to make another effort to secure a conference between H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, and a committee of workers. Hitherto Fitzgerald has declined to treat with the union people and has said he would not do so.

James W. Harp, a nonunion worker, whose garage was set on fire on October 25, was visited last night by a group of unidentified men who, he says, showered brick-bats on his dwelling near the city. No material damage was done.

UNDISCOURAGED DRY TALKS ON ELECTION

Tells W. C. T. U. Session Here "We Are Not Losing Strength."

OFFICERS ARE RENAMED

All officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia were reelected yesterday at the closing session of the organization's fifty-sixth annual convention, held in the Calvary Baptist Church at H and Eighth streets northwest. Mrs. N. M. Pollack was again chosen the union's president. Others reelected were Dr. Lauretta E. Kress, first vice president; Mrs. James M. Doran, second vice president; Mrs. H. E. Rogers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles P. Grandfield, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles Montgomery, recording secretary; Mrs. William J. Peters, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. George A. Ross, treasurer.

The feature of the closing session was an informal talk on political conditions by Edward B. Bunford, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League. Substituting for Dr. F. Scott McBride, who was unable to attend, Mr. Bunford said that the election had not weakened the drys' strength in Congress. Wets elected Tuesday, he declared, in most cases merely supplanted other wets. Referenda on prohibition, he said, carried no significance in that they were held in sections known to have been wet. "The drys have no reason to be discouraged," he added. "We are not losing strength."

At the morning session, which was devoted mainly to the reading of committee reports, Mrs. James M. Doran discussed her recent book, "Prohibition Punches." In an impromptu talk during the afternoon, T. B. Jarvis, of the Anti-Saloon League, attributed the wets' "apparent victory" in the elections to over-confidence on the part of dry forces. He joined Mr. Bunford in urging the delegates to "be of good cheer," and predicted that the drys would "correct their deficiencies" before the next election.

Brief addresses on the organization's work and future plans were given by Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. O. C. Christgau, chairman of the publicity committee, and Mrs. Charles T. Windle. Mrs. H. E. Rogers was named delegate to the world convention of W. C. T. U. units, to be held in Toronto, Canada, next June.

Aerial Bombing of Mine Sends 5 to Penitentiary

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Paul Montgomery, Murphysboro, Ill., aviator, and Edward Heckelbeck, Ziegler, Ill., miner, were sentenced to serve a year and a day each in the Atlanta Penitentiary by Judge Charles I. Dawson in Federal court here today.

Ewing Riley, Esel Grant and Noble Harris, striking coal miners of Providence, Ky., were sentenced to serve 2½ years each in the penitentiary. These cases grew out of the airplane bombing of mine properties in Webster County, Ky., August 11.

Orphanage Funds Case Nears Close

Jury to Get Embezzlement Charge Against Jones Late Today.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The case of James P. Jones, charged with embezzling orphanage funds, will reach a jury late tomorrow.

Today was consumed by Judge John L. Ingram and attorneys in studying instructions to the jury, which will be called on to decide whether Jones as treasurer of the Virginia Methodist Orphanage used $4,944.50 of orphanage funds in his furniture business. Arguments are to begin at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Jones, a member of the State Legislature, was indicted by a hustings court grand jury on six charges of embezzlement and grand larceny involving $37,976.40.

Walter Reed Hospital Robbed of Cigarettes

More than 200 cartons of cigarettes were reported stolen from the Post Exchange at Walter Reed Hospital Tuesday night, the cigarettes bearing Red Cross stamps on them in lieu of the regular Government tax stamp.

The report was made to police yesterday by Maj. Frank T. Chamberlin, in charge of the professional service office at the hospital. Police have sent a warning out to all places where the loot may be offered for sale. Value of the cigarettes was said to be $130.

Husband, Left by Wife, Asks Children in Court

Charges that his wife frequently stayed out late at night before she finally deserted him are contained in an action for limited divorce brought yesterday in District Supreme Court by Harry Cedar, of Twelfth street northwest near I street, against Mrs. Natalie Mary Cedar, of Fourteenth street northwest near Allison street.

Cedar also asks the court to award him custody of the two children, alleging that his wife is not giving them proper attention and has left them with strangers. The couple was married June 20, 1923, and the wife deserted the husband, taking the children with her, on October 2, last, the husband asserts. Attorneys Albert E. Steinem and Milton D. Korman appear for the husband.

Rome, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A total of 232,594 young men have been inducted into the Fascist party during the past few days' observance of Italy's armistice day anniversary. The new members are "young Fascists of combat," aged between 18 and 21.

Reno Divorce Judge Defeated in Reelection

Reno, Nev., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—District Judge George Bartlett, who in the last decade has severed the matrimonial ties of scores of prominent persons attracted to Reno by Nevada's easy divorce law, was defeated for reelection yesterday.

Benjamin F. Curler, district judge twenty years ago when the Reno divorce "industry" began, was victor over Bartlett by a narrow margin. Judge Bartlett has sat in thousands of divorce cases. Curler stated during the campaign he believed in a "liberal construction of the Nevada divorce statutes."

EQUIPOISE CAPTURES FUTURITY FROM TWENTY GRAND;

NAVY OFFERS TO MEET ARMY ELEVEN IN CHARITY GAME

CONTEST AT CHICAGO FOR BENEFIT IS NEW CHALLENGE TO ARMY

Naval Academy Head Is Eager to Renew Grid Relations.

Would Play on Order of Hoover; Gate of $1,000,000 Seen.

say for me that we all hope that it goes through, from our captain to our lowliest substitute.

Would play G. W. U. for Charity.

Declaring that Navy was always willing to aid a worthy cause, Admiral Robison announced that the Naval Academy stood ready to show its good faith immediately and would turn over the entire receipts of the George Washington-Navy game scheduled at Annapolis November 29 to charity if it was agreeable to the George Washington authorities, who had not yet been consulted.

As is the custom at Annapolis, admission is not charged for games played at the Government reservation, but Admiral Robison indicated that the rule would be waived to permit a charge of $3 per seat, which, with an expected crowd of 20,000, would net a $60,000 "gate" for the benefit of the unemployed or other charities.

Earlier in the day Athletic Director James E. Pixlee of George Washington had announced himself as willing to play the Naval Academy in Washington, with the proceeds to go to charity.

New interest in the possible renewal of relations between the Army and Navy was crystallized a few days ago when New York newspapers urged games between major colleges for the aid of the unemployed with New York University the only metropolitan institution offering to play. Admiral Robison was receptive to the movement when first interviewed yesterday.

Urges Colleges to Donate Share.

"I don't want to embarass any other colleges but I have read why many refuse to play for charity," said the Admiral. "If they seriously wanted to and were prevented by conference rules or otherwise, they could turn at least 10 per cent of the receipts over to charity."

Chicago was discussed as the site of the Army-Navy game by reason of the large capacity of Soldiers' Field where the service game was played in 1926 before an audience of 110,000 persons.

December 6 looms as the likely date for the game if it is arranged. This is the day on which Navy scheduled Penn for a game to be played in Philadelphia with the understanding that if relations were resumed with the Military Academy Penn would waive its right to the date. Indications that the Navy had hoped to play the Army this fall are seen in the fact that George Washington, too, had been scheduled last winter with the understanding that the game would be subject to cancellation if the date were needed for an Army contest.

Army ends its schedule on November 30 against Notre Dame at New York and would be free to oppose the Navy the following Saturday at Chicago.

Army Unimpressive In Drill for Illinois

West Point, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Despite a wet and muddy field, Army was given a bag of tricks to try against Illinois Saturday. Maj. Sasse was not especially pleased with the way the cadets handled the new plays, but hopes to have them functioning on all four by Saturday.

Talbot, of Harvard, Injured in Practice

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A muddy field added another injured player to Harvard's long list today. George Talbot, varsity guard, slipped while running through a signal drill, injuring his leg to the extent that he will be unable to play against Michigan Saturday. George Kuehn, lineman, also was discovered to have an injured back, which will keep him out of play for the remainder of the season.

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—There has been no impetuous rush of college presidents, athletic directors and coaches to offer their football teams for benefit games for the relief of the unemployed. The colleges have agreements and contracts which will make it impossible for them to support the proposal, and if the unemployed can't understand the sanctity of such things, then that probably tends to explain why they are unemployed.

The proposal, incidentally, seems to have been spontaneous in several places and no private idea of any newspaper or politician. Football is the most popular sport in the country. It has received lavish support from the public for years, the cost of producing a big game is negligible and the players, by word of the coaches and athletic directors, are enthusiasts who play for the joy of the game. It was natural, therefore, to look to football for a return favor when the unemployment situation reached the dimensions of a national emergency.

Hoover Commission Might Take Steps.

Possibly, if President Hoover were to appoint a commission of sportsmen to consider plans to take steps toward the presentation of a report, something could be done to modify the agreements and contracts in time to effect help in the unemployment crisis of 1940. But for the present a fund that might easily be swelled to $5,000,000 or more, if the colleges were to show any enthusiasm at all, probably will not be worth collecting. New York University alone in the East has volunteered to play a game for charity and Michigan and Chicago are to play one in the territory of the Western Conference.

Of course, if President Hoover should order the Army and Navy to play, this recognition of the importance of the game in relieving the poverty of the unemployed might stimulate the whole movement, if the present stall could be called a movement. But, unless he does something of the kind, the coaches will pass the buck to their athletic directors and they will pass it to their faculty committees, who will then go into secret sessions and report that owing to the nature of their rules nothing can be done.

Triple Pass of Buck Made at Harvard.

Mr. Bill Bingham, the Harvard athletic director, made a very remarkable triple buck-pass this afternoon, explaining why the Harvard Team would be unable to volunteer. He passed it to two committees and Arnold Horween, the head coach, and in the confusion some one pocketed the buck. At any rate, Harvard has a rule, and, while the present emergency undoubtedly is quite lamentable, still there are always lamentable emergencies, what with people needing new hospitals, churches and community centers every year.

"If we were to play an extra game this year," he said, "some one would come to us representing some worthy cause next year. And, anyway, did you ever know a coach to agree to an extra game?"

I have a suspicion that the coaches are the least willing to approve any extra games for the benefit of the unemployed, as unemployment is ever the dread of the football coach. A man with an undefeated team bears in mind the fact that most of the credit for this record will be given to him and will count in the negotiations for his next contract, to say nothing of his pickings from various kinds of activity and acquiescence. If, however, he agrees to an extra game and his team is beaten, his reputation is considered to be marred. A coach who has had a mediocre season naturally isn't looking for trouble and a man whose team has been a consistent flop isn't even asked to participate in the charity show.

Wiggle of the Hook, Citing Petty Rules.

It would have been a good thing for football if the college presidents generally had shown some voluntary willingness to help out. The game is the most romantic one this country plays and, considering its chivalrous pretensions, I would have thought that the big schools would have taken the initiative, not for public credit but just because football has always stood for bigness in the popular mind. This wiggling off the hook, the citation of petty rules, as an excuse for

Argentine Poloists To Invade U. S. in 1931

Buenos Aires, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—An Argentine Polo Team will invade the United States early in 1931, returning the visit of the American Army team now in Buenos Aires, it was announced today.

Battalino-La Barba Bout Sought by Garden

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Efforts to match Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, conqueror of Kid Chocolate here on Monday, with Christopher "Bat" Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., featherweight champion, for a title bout at Madison Square Garden December 12 were under way today.

The contest was sought for the New York American Christmas fund boxing show proposed for the Garden for that date, since plans for a meeting between Jack Sharkey and Max Baer, San Francisco heavyweight, have been practically abandoned.

Wisconsin Declines To Play for Charity

Madison, Wis., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The University of Wisconsin Athletic Council has refused to sanction the proposed football game for charity between the university and Marquette University, President Glenn Frank said today.

"In view of the expressed policy of the Western Intercollegiate Conference regarding postseason games and in view of the fact that as a State-supported institution, the University of Wisconsin would not be free to restrict the proceeds of a benefit contest to any one city, the athletic council does not consider feasible the proposed postseason game for the Milwaukee charity fund," President Frank said.

The game was proposed by a Milwaukee newspaper several weeks ago. The suggestion met with approval on the part of Marquette football authorities.

Don Leon Is Winner Of Latonia Feature

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Don Leon, a Kentucky-bred colt by Lee O. Cotner—Water Willow, scored his second straight victory of this meeting and his eighth as a 2-year-old, when he easily defeated his field to carry off the honors in the Turkey Ridge purse, the featured attraction here today. Back Log, from Gallagher & Combs stable, was next best, with Ben Blair from J. O. Whitlow's stable third.

The Turkey Ridge was an allowance affair for 2-year-olds over the six furlongs sprint distance and carried a net value of $900 to the winner. Don Leon stepped the six furlongs in 1:13 flat and paid off at $2.92 to $2 in the mutuels. Taking command right at the springing of the gate, Don Leon was kept in front by a comfortable margin although racing under heavy restraint. He increased his lead entering the stretch to three lengths and won easily by a slightly less margin of a length and a half.

Walter Johnson Judge At Whippet Races

The National Capital whippet races will be run at Griffith Stadium November 10 at 2:30 p. m., under the auspices of the National Capital Kennel Club and the President's Own Garrison, Army and Navy Union.

There will be eight races, including a steeplechase and a match race. Forty-four of the lastest whippets in the East will compete in these races. The match race, which it is expected will determine the championship in the East, will be run between Sumner's Beauty, owned by W. C. Sumner, of Bethesda, Md., and Bonnie Doon, owned by J. Inglis, of Perth Amboy, N. J. Sumner's Beauty is 3 years old and weighs 15 pounds, whereas Bonnie Doon is 2 years old and weighs 23½ pounds. KoKon Kahn, a fast whippet owned by Walter Johnson, famous baseball star, will also compete in the races.

The following are the officials for the races: Starter, Marx S. Kaufman, of Baltimore; timers, Charles S. Brosoner, of Baltimore, and Dudley Browne, Chevy Chase, Md.; judges, Walter Johnson, A. Evans Brimble, of Baltimore; W. Kennedy Boone, of Washington; Judge A. L. Moore, of Bethesda, Md; George M. Norris, of Washington, and Robert E. Acorn, of Washington; handicapper, Marx S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EQUIPOISE, $3.90, $2.40, $2.30; TWENTY GRAND, $3.30, $3.60; MATE, $2.80.

EQUIPOISE, practically left, saved ground when rounding the first turn, was not hurried after his field, settled fully in his stride after a half mile, went to the outside, withstood severe punishment and, in a very rare finish, wore his opposition down through the final three furlongs. He was clearly the best. TWENTY GRAND, outrun early, improved his position steadily to finish in game fashion. MATE, clear of interference at the first turn, was raised in front, saved ground and held on well. AEGIS, prominent early, weakened in the final drive. GIGANTIC tired. B'AR HUNTER ran out entering the home stretch. TAMBOUR was badly roughed around at the first turn. BACKGAMMON stopped badly. The race was not truly run.

Evelyn Colyer, Star Of British Tennis, Dies

Bishnath, Assam, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hamish Munro, the former Evelyn Colyer, English tennis player, who was widely known in the United States, died today.

Mrs. Munro was married in 1929 to Hamish Munro, a tea planter. She gave birth to twins two weeks ago.

As Miss Colyer she represented England versus the United States at Wimbledon in 1924 and with P. D. B. Spence won the hard court and covered courts mixed championships. She visited the United States in 1925 and 1929 and went to California on her last trip.

Miss Colyer, a daughter of Sir Frank Colyer, and regarded as one of the best of England's women tennis players, met her husband in Switzerland early in 1929 and five weeks later was married to him at Christ Church, Streatham, England. She then went to Assam, India, with him, where he had a plantation.

Tunney, on Stand, Relates His Rise From $5 Week Job

Describes to Packed Courtroom Career Climaxed by $1,000,000 Purse, Motion for Dismissal of Mara Suit Is Denied.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A drama of the prize ring, the tale of a youngster who rose through the World War from a $5 a week office boy to heavyweight champion and $1,000,000 purses, played to a packed house in State Supreme Court today, with Gene Tunney in the title role and twelve jurors hanging on his words.

The retired king of the fisticuffs, Shakespearan scholar, who quit the ring to wed an heiress to more millions, pulled back the curtain on the scenes in his defense of the $500,000 suit brought by Tim Mara, Broadway bookmaker, for alleged breach of contract.

Tunney was so voluble, so intent on missing no details in painting the picture of his career and reciting his own version of the events that led to the suit, that Justice Peter A. Hatting took under advisement a motion to throw out much of his testimony. But he let Gentleman Gene ramble on, telling his tale in his own words.

Denies Tunney Motion For Dismissal.

At the start of the session, despite the pleas of attorneys that their demand was "sure fire" under the law, Justice Hatting denied Tunney's motion for dismissal of the suit. On Monday Justice Hatting dismissed for lack of evidence the case against Billy Gibson, formerly Gene's manager and joint defendant, and Tunney's lawyers insisted that this left no case against their client, inasmuch as one could not be liable unless the others were.

As the first witness for the defense, Emory Buckner, former United States Attorney, called Mrs. Rose Salzberg, now of Los Angeles, Calif. She was a stenographer in the law office of Alan Carruthers here in 1926 and typed the three contracts upon which Mara bases his suit. Mara claims Tunney entered into a verbal agreement in May, 1926, to pay him 25 per cent of his ring earnings if he became champion of the world. He also alleges Tunney contracted to give him 10 per cent of his $200,000 purse for a fight with Jack Dempsey in return for Mara's help in getting the match, advice and exploitation.

New York Stipulation in Original Contract.

Mrs. Salzberg testified that Gibson and Mara came into the office in 1926, and had a contract drawn up giving Mara 10 per cent of Tunney's purse for a Dempsey fight, but that the original stipulation was that the match, barred in New York State at that time because the State Athletic Commission recognized Harry Wills as the logical contender, must take place here. This stipulation was removed, she testified, when Mara insisted:

"We'd better leave New York out of this. If the boxing commission or the license commission or the newspapers get hold of it there'd be trouble. You and I are good friends, Billy, we understand each other."

Tunney later signed this contract, but failed to sign two others which would have given Mara a total of

North Carolina Clash Advanced to Friday

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—North Carolina State College and the University of North Carolina will play their football game this week Friday afternoon at Chapel Hill instead of Saturday, as originally scheduled, Dr. R. R. Sermon, athletic director at State announced this afternoon. The shift in date of the game was done so as not to have it conflict with the game at Durham Saturday afternoon between Duke University and Kentucky, Dr. Sermon said.

Women's Golf Par Yardage Increased

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Definite improvement in the quality of golf played by American women was indicated today by a marked stiffening in the yardage standard for determining women's par.

The new figures, adopted by the women's committee of the United States Golf Association and announced by H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the U. S. G. A., are as follows: Up to 200 yards—par 3; 201-375 yards—par 4; 376 yards and over—par 5.

These yardages exceed the old by 10 yards on the shorter holes and more than 25 on the longer ones. Holes of more than 500 yards formerly were par 6 but par 5 now is the maximum for even the longest holes.

A uniform yardage never before has been officially adopted by the women's committee of the U. S. G. A. but the former standard was in general use by the women's Eastern, Western and Southern Associations. As the handicap eligibility for the women's national championship in the future will be based on the new figures.

Group Due Here to Urge Navy-Fordham Game

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Despite apparent obstacles, a committee of prominent men interested in booking a postseason college football game for unemployment benefit in New York plans a trip to Washington tomorrow, seeking official support for a contest between the Naval Academy and Fordham.

The committee is headed by Richard Patterson, jr., commissioner of correction; Grover A. Whalen and Henry P. Taft. The plan is to confer with Secretary Adams, who already has taken cognizance of efforts to restore relations between the Army and Navy in football for benefit purposes.

Workman Gets Mount Home Half Length in Front.

Mate Sets Pace and Runs Third; Purse Worth $50,360.

By GEORGE DALEY.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Equipoise, practically left at the post and a bad last in the run up the back stretch, closed a gap of ten lengths with a dazzling burst of speed to win the Pimlico Futurity and its riches of $50,360 over the sloppy, racing strip of the Pimlico Track this afternoon. In the famous little blue, brown cap of the late H. P. Whitney.

No more thrilling and spectacular race has been seen this year and in many years. The son of Pennant—Swinging looking hopelessly beaten worked almost a miracle of racing to win by half a length from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand and with A. C. Bostwick's Mate only a neck away.

Race Fans Show Sentiment Not Dead.

The thousands who packed the enclosure of the Maryland Jockey Club in the gray of a drizzly, gloomy day all but lost their reason in the wild excitement of the furious stretch drive. They gave voice to the spontaneous roar which ever greets the winner of a turf fixture of such prominence and then suddenly were still. The hush was more expressive of the deep feelings of the throng than the excitable outburst of rollicking tumult. It was a tribute to one who only two weeks ago was looking forward to this very day with high hopes for a horse he loved.

Sentiment is not dead. They cheered the gallant colt for the race he ran and game desperate fight he made; they cheered the popular colors now transferred to Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney, the third generation to carry on the vast thoroughbred holdings, and then they turned in silence in thought of the sportsman, whose express wishes were being carried out in having Equipoise and his other horses keep their engagements with no thought of the mourning period. To the very end, H. P. Whitney put the sport above himself and the crowd today recognized it.

The son, who is carrying on, set aside his own feelings to look on from a quiet spot in the clubhouse, and he must have enjoyed one of the big thrills of his life to see those popular colors, now his own, carried to such a triumph by such a speedy, hard-fighting colt.

Aeg's Causes Long Delay At Post.

Walter M. Jeffords' Aegis, a son of American Flag and a grandson of Man o' War, all but ruined the race by his crazy antics at the post. He first reared and plunged about, hanging himself over one of the stalls. Then he refused to go back and danced about behind the machine until he tore loose from his bridle. Time was lost in sending for a new one and the other boys did their best to keep the weight off their mounts by standing in the sides of the stalls.

After a delay of a full ten minutes Aegis was moved to the outside and a start came. But what a start for a race with a gross value of $63,8701 B'ar Hunter swung across and fairly blocked Equipoise as he came out of the stalls. It looked like a death blow to the hopes of those rooting so hard for financial as well as sentimental interest. Equipoise, known for his liking for the mud, was a hot favorite.

The very start, however, made the race the more brilliant. Those who looked on will never forget that drive through the stretch. Sonny Workman never showed to better advantage. The crowd gave up hope, but not the boy. He patiently rated his mount far in the rear for

HAWKS ROUT KNICKS BY 26 TO 0

Touted Stars Fail to Threaten! Abbey Is Offensive Hero.

TEAM play is now necessary on the sandlots. Time was when a group of hastily gathered star players could successfully handle, or at least press, the topnotch clubs about town. That day is gone. This was demonstrated last night when a group of football players, carrying the once proud colors of the Knickerbockers of Georgetown were out classed by a smoot-working Mohawk eleven before some 1,200 fans under the light at Griffith Stadium. The final score was 26-0.

It was evident from the start that the only hopes of the Knickerbockers rested in an effort to stop the Mohawks from scoring and intercepting a few passes. Individually, the Georgetown team played a bang-up defensive game. Collectively, on the offensive, the Knicks could do little more than hold the ball for four downs.

An authentic list of the members ably never be known. When the crowd of the Knickerbocker squad will probgathered close to the outside lines there were whispers of "Hhe played at Pitt" and "That's a Cornell man." One thing is certain, there were some real star players on the field in those Knickerbocker jerseys.

Old Favorites Shine For Knicks.

However, many of the Georgetown fans were of the opinion that the regular Knickerbocker Team could done a better job. In fact, it was the boys who have been taking the knocks for the Knicks all season who bore the brunt of the pounding the Mohawks had to offer. They were Goldsmith, the Joseph brothers and McAlwee.

G. U. PREP MIDGETS WIN.

The Georgetown Prep Midgets defeated the Episcopal High Midgets yesterday, 6-0, on the loser's field in Alexandria.

Tommy Keating, diminutive full back from Garrett Park, lead a drive from midfield in the last quarter and carried the ball for the last ten yards through left guard.

EQUIPOISE WINS FUTURITY, BEATING TWENTY GRAND

furlongs, then sent him up on the outside. It still looked hopeless rounding the turn, but Workman drew his whip and Equipoise responded and, accomplishing what looked like the impossible, charged up and actually fought his way to the front and victory. None could question his triumph. He was the best horse and won on his true merits.

Twenty Grand Performs Brilliantly.

Twenty Grand also ran a brilliant race. He was outrun early and did not seem to be running freely in the mud, but he came from behind to be a fighting second and to his greater credit was in rather tight quarters on the rail through the last sixteenth.

Mate had everything in his favor. Breaking well, he went right to the front and escaped all crowding and the shower of flying mud. McAtee rated him along with fine judgment of pace and going off the backstretch appeared to have the rich prize at his mercy as both Gigantic and Aegis were showing signs of the strain.

But Mate was not equal to the final call on his resources. He, too, battled on gamely, but could not withstand the rush of Equipoise and Twenty Grand.

Vander Pool, with a clean record of 11 straight, was scratched. In breezing for the race on Tuesday, he twisted an ankle and a slight fever and "filling" followed. It was a hard blow to Mrs. M. P. Allen and even more to D. R. McDaniel, her trainer, who has the utmost faith in the son of Campfire. The colt had trained particularly well for the race and is a natural runner. It would have been a conclusive test as to his standing among the leading 2-year-olds and general regret was felt that he should suffer a slight accident on the very eve of his big chance.

Equipoise Now Leads Juveniles As Money Winner.

Equipoise did more than win. He passed Jamestown as the leading money winning 2-year-old of the season. The purse of $50,360 added to his previous winnings brought his grand total to $156,835. Jamestown, which beat Equipoise a head in the Futurity at Belmont Park, was retired with $151,925 to his credit in winning six out of seven starts. Equipoise now has won eight races in 16 starts.

A distinguished crowd looked on from the clubhouse including William Woodward, new chairman of the New York Jockey Club; Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, J. E. Davis, Admiral Cary T. Grayson and George Bull.

The Wheatley Stables filly, Transformation, led all the way in the first race for 2-year-olds, but was pressed to withstand the fast stretch run of the Tranquillity Farm's Mine Sweeper, which was second, beaten a neck. Mrs. E. Trueman's Earfull was third and Meek, fourth. For a time, eight horses of the field of twelve were heads apart. Transformation was coupled with Ronald Grey of the Belair Stud as the Trainer Fitzsimmons Entry. The start was good Justiciary was closing fast in the stretch when pocketed. The track was so muddy that the colors were difficult to distinguish when the horses reached the home stretch. The winning entry was favorite and paid $3.70.

Ral Parr's Indian Chief graduated from the maiden class in the second race and Workman was cheered on his return to the scales for the strong finish he made on the winner, beating the champion maiden Aziz, which has never been out of the money but twice in more than a dozen starts, but could never win. The Palmwood Stable's Gunman was third and Joe Teddy, fourth.

Aziz, Choice, Loses Lead At Turn.

Aziz, the favorite, led to the far turn, when Indian Chief came to the front. Joe Teddy was forcing the pace in the early part of the race. The time for the mile and seventy yards was 1:49 2-5, which gives an idea of the condition of the track, which was growing worse. The winner paid $9.50.

Judge Schilling was scratched from the Stafford Handicap, third race, which caused W. R. Coe's Maya to be made odds-on favorite, and he led all the way after disposing of MabeHe to win by five lengths. French Lass came fast in the stretch and held the place safe by three lengths. J. E. Widener's Winnipeg, which has not run since he was a 2-year-old, now 5, was third. Mabelle showed much early speed, but could finish no better than fourth. Sandy was the other starter. The winner paid $3.60.

Kathryn E. Hitt's Sunvir won the Emerson Purse by three lengths, it being fourth on the program at a mile and one-sixteenth. Voltear, although left at the post, closed fastest of all and got the place by a head from Racoon, of the Brookmeade Stable. Boot to Boot was fourth.

Racoon led to the far turn, when Sunvir moved up, displacing Boot to Boot, and took the lead, to be overhauled by Sunvir, F. Slate up. Voltear, which formerly ran for Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana Farm, ran today for his new owner, A. T. Sansome, with Romano up. He was claimed at Laurel for $7,500. The winner paid $6.40.

Torch won the sixth race, coming from behind and getting the decision by three-fourths of a length. Danger Signal was second and Fair Man third. Hat Brush set the pace, but yielded to Danger Signal on the back field. It was not till the field had come into the stretch that Torch got in striking distance and moved up on the outside with courage until he finally won. He paid $6.50.

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. T. Webster

By J. B. SNOWGRASS

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov 5.—A good midweek feature for Thursday, following the richer Riggs Handicap and the Futurity, is the Baltimore Handicap for all-aged horses, $3,500, at a mile and 70 yards, for which twelve have been nominated. This race, fifth on the program, will be run on a heavy track.

Suited for this kind of going, W. R. Coe's fleet filly, VANITY, which defeated Sun Beau at Laurel, and then ran second to him in the Washington Handicap, seems to have the advantage. She gets in with 111 pounds and showed in her second Laurel race she could run on a heavy track. Sun Beau, generally regarded as the foremost handcap horse in the country at this season, was beaten by her in that race, but in the Washington Handicap, on fast track, VANITY was the contender. Her record all year has been brilliant and consistent. She is coupled with MAYA, winner here, also a mud runner, and the team has the best of it on form.

J. E. Widener's MR. SPONGE won his last two races at Laurel, beating Hot Toddy, but picks up 7 pounds, giving him 117. Pretty high impost for a 3-year-old compared with that carried by older horses. But he should, be the contender against VANITY. THE HEATHEN, with 120 pounds, should cut a figure in the race, and is rated third in this field. The track is made to order for PETEE WRACK, which also has light impost for him, but his form has been so bad that it is unsafe to assign for him any part of the stake. INCEPTION is in top form and may be dangerous, if his last race should be thrown out. It was very bad.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for 2-year-olds. TIMELY, a Jamaica winner over a strong field, which McAtee will ride, looks best, but ROBIN'S EGG, from the Greentree Stable, will be a dangerous contender. She won from Viola at Empire City in the mud. The two fillies are well matched. AVENGER, which will carry the Whitney colors, looks best of the others, but is a bad post actor. The race is for 2-year-old fillies.

SECOND RACE—High-class platers go in this race. ELEUSAGON, beaten a nose by Ring On in her last Laurel race, is selected to win. She has not been out of the money in twelve starts and is suited to a heavy track. The contender, and a dangerous one, is PAULA L. Her racing in Canada recommended her. BRIDEGROOM, an uncertain horse, seems to be coming around and a soft track will aid him.

THIRD RACE—The Harford Steeplechase, third on the card, is the secondary feature, and is for maiden jumpers. JOE MARSHALL, which was a fast one on the flat, has run with better horses through the field than he meets here. He now belongs to Rigan McKinney, and probably will be ridden by him. McKinney is one of the leading amateur riders. SUN ECLIPSE, which was second to Icicle, a veteran jumper, is the dangerous contender. MESSMATE II has run in stronger fields.

FOURTH RACE—CON AMORE should win the Wicomico Purse, fourth race. This filly beat Vanity three lengths in 1:11 3-5, and that is all that is necessary to be said. She takes off weight. She has never run in the mud, but is bred to it. J. Y. Martin was lucky to get her out of the claiming race for $4,500 from Audley Farm. THE SPARE may be the contender. THE SPARE won her last race over First Lady, giving notice of her return to good form. MORSEL can hold the others safe.

SIXTH RACE—Cornelius V. Whitney's PENNATE is a standout in the sixth race for 2-year-olds. He failed in the Laurel Stake, won by Tarpaulin, but Mate failed also, and several other good ones. AVALON, a front runner which won over Spirit River in his last start at Laurel, should hold the others safe for place. KHORASAN, winner of five races in a row this year, must have some consideration, and should get the show money.

SEVENTH RACE—VIMONT may win the seventh race, but will have to do his best to beat CANDY PIG. The last named horse won his last two starts at Laurel. VIMONT beat Upset Lad eight lengths on opening day at Pimlico, and is a good mudder. He should repeat. SUN CHEN will take a heavy track and should garner third money.

PARR POINTS HER GRACE FOR ROUTE

Filly Will Compete in Distance Races at Bowie Track.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 5—Trainer Elmer Trueman says he will point Ral Parr's Her Grace for the distance races to be run at Bowie, figuring she will like the track better than she does this one. It was at Bowie that Her Grace received her first racing lessons and it may be that she will justify Trueman's plans. The 3-year-old has won $31,000 in purses this season.

W. E. Caskey, jr., claimed My Scoop out of yesterday's sixth race for $2,000.

P. J. Malone came down from New York to make the riding engagements for Linus (Pony) McAtee, former Baltimorean.

E. P. Summerfield, of Baltimore, states that Scared O' Nothin' spread a foot in yesterday's curtain affair and that he will rest him up until next spring.

O. P. Woodward's Chatover, 4-year-old chestnut son of Chatterton-Days Over is ill with influenza and won't race again until next spring.

Ral Parr, of Baltimore, just received a yearling colt from Kentucky. He bought the yearling on the advice of a friend who saw it work a quarter in 0.23 over the Lexington course. He has turned it over to Elmer Trueman to make ready for 1931 racing.

Guy Bedwell has sold Fair Bob, 4-year-old bay gelded son of Fair Gain-The Lark to Rigan McKinney, who plans to convert him into a steeplechaser. Fair Bob is a half brother to Fore Lark, a jumper who fell and broke his leg recently at Warrenton, Va.

Dick Thompson, trainer for Edward R. Bradley, will leave on November 8 for Europe, where he will attend the November horse sales in London with a view of purchasing some new material for the master of Idle Hour Farm. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Thompson.

Among the clubhouse visitors here for the Futurity were: Maj. Thomas C. McDowell, Lexington, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Saportas, Melvern, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Labrot, Annapolis, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Walden, Middleburg, Va.; Alfred Hennen Morris, New York; Charles R. Fleischmann, New York; Wilton Greenway, Havre de Grace, Md.; Joseph E. Davis, New York; Thomas W. Murphy, New York; Duncan K. Brent, Baltimore; Robert V. McKim, New York; G. H. Bostwick, New York; H. Granger Gaither, Westbury, N. Y.; Breckenridge Long, Washington; Willis Sharpe Kilmer, Binghamton, N. Y.; Commissioner Donohue, New York; Mr. and Mrs. David G. McIntosh, New York; Schuyler Parsons, New York; George Bull, New York; Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, Glen Riddle, Pa.; Dr. and Mrs. Stidler, New Windsor, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Merryman Black, Baltimore County; Capt. P. M. Walker, Boyce, Va.; Capt. Ral Parr, Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Salmon, of New York.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau, a candidate for the Bowie, a mile and one-half race to be run next Tuesday, went a mile and one-quarter this morning through the stop in :25 2-5, :52, 1:18, 1:45 1-5, 1:59 2-5 and 2:14.

James Rowe, jr., who will take over the Greentree Stable horses next year, is making 41 yearlings ready for 1931 racing.

Trainer T. J. Healey has a half-brother to Equipoise in training at the H. P. Whitney farm at Redbank, N. J. He is by St. James—Swinging, and is said to be a much better looking yearling than was Equipoise.

Jack McPherson purchased Fairy Maiden at private terms from Jimmy McGee and will ship her to Kentucky, where she will be bred. McPherson shipped his stable to Lexington, Ky., today.

Spengler Post Nine Feted Tomorrow Night

A banquet at the Racquet Club will be given tomorrow night in honor of the baseball team of Spengler Post, American Legion champions, and title holders in the Sport Mart league.

The Spengler nine represented Washington in the American Legion regional championships, held late in the summer at Hagerstown, Md.

Citations from Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, grand potentate of baseball, will be distributed to the players. Gold baseballs, the gift of The Washington Post, will also be presented.

Race Run Twice at Empire; Winner, 20-1 Shot, Repeats

Horses Off to False Start and Facts Not Known Until Race Was Over and Numbers Hung on Board.

EMPIRE CITY, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—For the first time in many years, a race had to be run twice here this afternoon before the result could be officially determined.

The first event, a gallop over the mile and a sixteenth distance, which attracted nine ordinary platers, found the field getting off to a false start, which was also a bad one. Nobody seemed to know it was a false race until after the horses had finished, the numbers had been placed on the board and the running time hung up. Then it was discovered that the race was not official and the stewards ordered the race rerun.

Negodale, 20-1 Shot, Wins Second Time.

Great confusion and excitement reigned while the horses were taken back to the starting point. In the unofficial running, Miss Blanche Watson's Negodale, a 20-to-1 shot, just lasted to beat Jack Biener a neck, while Infinitus, the favorite, was third, six lengths back.

Then the crowd was treated to the strange spectacle of Negodale repeating his original victory. He came right back under Jockey Foden's urging and again lasted long enough to win, this time beating Rasselas by a length. Jack Biener again was in the money, finishing third fifteen lengths back of Rasselas. Infinitus was fifth.

The ruling regarding the wagering was that all original bets stood.

The original running time, made over a heavy track, was 1:50 3-5, while the official and second running was 2:00 2-5.

It was at this track about five years ago when Genuine was left flatfooted while the rest of the field went the full 5 furlongs of the race to a false start. When the real start came Genuine went away flying and led all the way, winning by several lengths.

CENTRAL UNIMPRESSIVE IN WIN OVER BUSINESS

Stenogs Lack Punch and Bow, 24-0

De Lisio Leader of Attack After Scoreless 1st Period.

Fumbles and Ragged Play Mark Series Encounter.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IN as raggedly played a game as the high school series probably will see, Central defeated Business yesterday, 24-0, in the presence of about 1,000 persons, who barely filled a section of Central's Stadium.

Fumbles galore by both sides featured the day, with Central showing the way in this respect. Coach Rauber presented a different team yesterday, partly because of delinquents and partly to give a raft of new men a chance to see service, but the revised squad lacked effectiveness in all departments, despite the size of the score.

De Lisio Outstanding Star For Central.

Big Ed DeLisio, a bulwark in Central's back field for the last two years, played Central's winning game yesterday, far outshining his confreres in defensive as well as offensive play. The first two touchdowns were contributed by him, and his constant plunging up until a few minutes before the end of the game, when he was retired, kept Central a fairly potent team.

Business was punchless without Duryee, who is out for the season. While Central's line play was not of the first order, Business' back field could make little headway. Only one first down was gained by the Orange.

Until he was forced out of the game with a badly wrenched ankle in the second quarter, Bert Kallinsky, chubby Business guard, played a good defensive game, frequently squirming through Central's front wall and grounding the ball carriers for losses. He nipped Pinckney and DeLisio for 5 yards each on successive plays in the first quarter.

Larry Pinckney lacked most of his accustomed punch yesterday, and started the day of fumbles when he dropped the opening kickoff in midfield after a 10-yard run. Business recovered but could do nothing in the way of gaining territory. DeLisio led the first Central drive after this opening skirmish when he sprinted 30 yards around right end to the Orange's 18-yard line.

Ball Near Business Goal Line.

From here to the end of the quarter the ball was dangerously near Business' goal, helped by Plant's poor kicking and the brief runs of DeLisio and Pinckney's plunges. But Central lost the ball for the second time on downs within the 15-yard line when DeLisio failed at center. Gibbons broke in and blocked Plant's kick as the Business booter stood on his last line. Gibbons recovered on the 12-yard line as the quarter ended.

DeLisio took the ball across on the second play of the second quarter, after Pinckney had hit left guard for 7 yards. Gibbons missed a drop kick. After the kick-off to Central, Feldman, Rauber's diminutive signal caller, got away for a 30-yard gallop to Business' 10-yard line and DeLisio plied over again, dragging several Business tacklers with him. Gibbon's drop kick was blocked.

Central scored quickly in the third period, when a drive from Business' 45-yard line, with DeLisio and Feldman bearing the brunt of the attack, placed the ball on Business' 18-yard line. Feldman squirms through most of the Business team for the touchdown. Central failed to add the extra point on a line buck by Feldman.

Lofstrand Intercepts Pass.

Although Central produced a touchdown in the last period, the fumbles of the Blue and White bordered on the fantastic. The tally came when Lofstrand intercepted Johnson's short pass and after evading one tackler ran unmolested 28 yards to the touchdown. LeLisio's pass for the extra point failed. Three times was Central near Business' goal after this only to have the ball snapped back to a back field that suddenly was not there.

NAVY IN SCRIMMAGE.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Another heavy scrimmage session today ended the Navy Football Team's preparation for the intersectional clash at Baltimore Saturday with Ohio State University. Coach Bill Ingram expressed himself satisfied that he had found his strongest combination and would rely on it Saturday, with Kirn, Tschirgi, Hagberg and Bauer in the back field.

LIONEL, shown in yesterday's Strange As It Seems, looks as if there were a story behind him. Here it is:

When Lionel, the lion-faced one, sits in a barber chair he calls for a hair cut on the face, and it costs him $3. What a big hit he would make with the Italians!

The phenomenon is caused by unusual activity of the adrenal organs. He is perfectly normal in other respects.

A sick whale gives off ambergris, highly important in the manufacture of costly perfumes. This substance is sometimes found floating in the Indian Ocean where it is presumed to have been deposited by big mammals in need of a whale doctor. Ambergris is always found in warm waters, or in the aforementioned sick fish, er-beg pardon, a whale is not a fish.

Possibly Col. Amos W. Woodcock, in charge of prohibition enforcement, overlooked a bet when he failed to enlist the services of Jack MacGrath, the beer-drinking champ, to dry up New York. He could, at least, make the brewery boys double up on their working hours. MacGrath drank 7 pints of beer in 17 seconds at a picnic. Veterans of Foreign Wars held near Paris, there it was perfect legal to drink his beer.

The solution to the problem of how to cut the star is given in the picture above. Simple, isn't it? When you know how. JOHN HIX.

V. P. I COACH CHANGING TACTICS

Seeks Better Teamwork, Interference for Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 5.—New back field combinations are in action on V. P. I.'s practice fields this week. Coach Orville Neal is combing the ranks of the Gobbler ball toters for good interfering backs to hurl at Virginia in the homecoming game here Saturday.

The Tech mentor demands interference that is far better than that which too often missed its mark against Washington and Lee last week. Because big Mit Owens, veteran full back, can clear the way with a vengeance for the other backs, he is running as an interfering back and Capt. Bird Hooper is calling signals from the half back position.

Hall and Spear Take Turns In Other Half.

Bus Hall and Phil Spear are taking turns as the other wing back, and Frank Howard is pepping things up at full back, where he showed nice drive in the clash with the Generals.

The Gobblers boast no ball carrier this fall who can go places with the pigskin as Frankie Peake did in the two shutout wins over Virginia here in 1926 and 1928, or as Phil Spear did on Lambeth Field last fall. So the cry at Tech is for better team work and interferers to clear a path for the ball toters. Neal ran the new combination of Owens, Hooper, Howard and Hall in long signal drills Monday afternoon and had this quartet plowing through the mud and rain Tuesday in scrimmage.

Bunt Ottley is also in action again. When the game little 150-pound half back suffered a rib fracture at Davidson ten days ago it was thought that his playing days of 1930 were over, but the hurt is coming along so well that he may be ready for action against Maryland at Norfolk next week. Ottley will not be used until medical authorities say that all risk is past.

Group scrimmages are preceding the rough work this week. From the groups where detailed instruction is given in charging and blocking, the Gobbler warriors are being rushed to the firing line to clear the way for the new back field combinations.

The new tactics brought results in the Tuesday scrimmage and, again today throughout almost an hour of rough work in which the first eleven was pitted against a fighting third team and then against a stronger second team. Hall and Howard gained ground consistently and Charlie Morgan continued the shifty running that boosted his stock last week. The Tech eleven shows evidence of more drive as the invasion of the Cavaliers draws near.

Second Trip to Kent, O. For "Fives" Gridmen

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 5.—In their race for a second national midget football championship the Charlottesville Fives are having a difficult time finding teams to play. Consequently they are going out for a second contest with the Bearcats of Kent, Ohio.

This game, which will be played tomorrow night under the lights of the League Park in Akron, Ohio, was scheduled to fill in between their next carded contest with the Greenbriar Military Academy. The West Virginians come to Charlottesville on Armistice Day, November 11. Two contests with Carolina teams follow. The Y. M. C. A. Juniors, of Rock Hill, S. C., 1929 champions of South Carolina and Georgia, come here November 22. On Thanksgiving morning, before the Virginia-North Carolina game, the Fives play the '29 midget champions of North Carolina, the Presbyterian Orphanage, of Barium Springs, N. C.

W. & L. STAR POINTS FOR MARYLAND

Generals Rest Mattox to Have Him at His Best Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 5.—Washington and Lee's coaching staff is letting nothing interfere with the week's practice for the major tilt with the Maryland Old Liners at College Park, Md., Saturday. Despite inclement weather, the Generals have worked out on Wilson Field and yesterday the varsity was sent against the scrubs and then pitted against Cy Young's freshman in a lengthy scrimmage.

Both varsity and freshman teams invade Maryland this week-end. The freshman meet the Maryland yearlings on Friday afternoon as the curtain raiser to the Generals-Old Liners scrap on Saturday.

Monk Mattox has still been allowed to stay away from practice, as the coaches are taking no chances on further injuring the back field ace. Whether or not Capt. Page Bledsoe or Eddie Bacon, ends, who were injured in the V. P. I. game will be able to play against Maryland, depends on the rapidity with which their bruises heal this week.

Scouts who saw the Terrapins work against Virginia report the Old Liners to have a strong eleven, and the Generals are anxious to analyze their strength with that of the Virginia team, who lost to Maryland, 14-6.

Coach Gene Oberst further worked on the double shift, a modified Notre Dame shift in the back field, and an innovation in the line, which he hopes to spring against the Old Liners Saturday.

SPENGLERS DRILL.

Spengler Post holds its first basket ball practice of the year tonight at the Boys' Club promptly at 8 o'clock.

School Football Teams Are Hard Hit by Injuries

Hard Fields as Result of Drought Blamed for Large List of Casuals; Central Emerson and Gonzaga Worst Sufferers.

ONE more thing that might be laid to the drought is the number of local scholastic stars injured since the start of the season. It is doubtful if any campaign of recent years has taken such toll as has 1930.

Central High was hit the hardest. The peak of their injury graph was reached on Central's tough field during the Tech game when Paul Hinkel, stellar half back, cracked his collar bone when grounded heavily after receiving a 30-yard pass from Larry Pinckney.

Cumberland, Hinkle Hurt In Same Game.

In the same game Whitey Cumberland, Rauber's pet signal caller, finished his season's play when his already weak ankle gave way late in the third quarter. Gene Colella has been ailing off and on all season with a bad knee and ankle. Cassasa, Black and Fitzwater, regular line men, are all laid up.

Tech escaped a tough season well enough until the Central game, when perhaps the team's one outstanding man, Dick Nelson, quarter back, broke his hand.

Eastern and Western got by the hard-ground season pretty well. Nearly all on Western's squad received many minor contusions while scrimmaging on Western's barren field. Coach Kelley, of Eastern, has practically his whole squad in good shape.

Business, a team which needs men more than any local club, suffered the fate of losing its best performers through hurts. First Bud Kengla, a tall, alert end, went out early in the season with a broken foot. Bill Duryee, Business' only threat man, has been removed from the game by a general all around battering.

Emerson, Gonzaga Have Been Hard Hit.

Emerson and Gonzaga have been hit hardest among the prep schools. Emerson has been without the services of Quincey Owens, former all-high center, nearly all season as a result of a broken hand. Kenney, Kelso and Draper have been on the ailing list throughout a measurable portion of the season.

Gonzaga, besides being hit in four places by scholastic ineligibility, has also been forced to dispense with the services of Gill, Benjamin and Eppard, stalwarts of the Purples' line.

Berger, Novice Last Year, Now Star Maryland Back

LOUIS (BOZEY) BERGER, University of Maryland's tall, lanky and fleet half back, who has done considerable stepping and forward pass catching for the Old Liners this fall, will get his first real chance to show his stuff for the benefit of the home folk Saturday at College Park. Maryland that day will play Washington and Lee in the Old Liners' home-coming engagement and the old grads, as well as just plain football fans, will be on hand in force.

Berger's rise to football distinction has been exceptional. When he entered Maryland in the fall of 1928, Bozey had quite a reputation as a basket ball and baseball player at Tech High, but the gridiron pastime was not on his list. And he didn't intend that it should be.

Berger Changed From End To Back.

However, he was urged to come out for the 1928 freshman squad, but could not enthuse over the game and played in only two contests as a substitute end. He joined the varsity aggregation the next fall and Coach Curley Byrd, wishing to utilize Berger's unusual speed, changed him from a wingman to a half back.

Still Berger had not really warmed up to the grid pastime, and, although it was natural for him to give his best to anything he tried, he could not engender the enthusiasm essential to success in football. He went along learning and trying and finally the spark was added that "made" him a grid star.

It came in the Yale game in November, 1929, when Berger was called upon to replace Augie Roberts, who had been injured. This was in the second half and Maryland was trailing by 13 points. Before the game was over Berger had caught two passes from Chalmers, one that netted a touchdown and the other which put the ball in position for him to cross the goal a second time. These touchdowns with an extra point added by John McDonald enabled the Old Liners to tie up the game at 13-all. And Berger has had a warmer spot in his heart for football ever since.

Berger Now Great All-Around Player.

Berger, who has scored seven touchdowns this season, has developed into a fine all-around back, not only being able to tote the ball in fine fashion and catch passes in a sensational style but also to do his part in blocking and on defense.

Berger already has won his letter in basket ball and baseball and is sure to gain his insignia in football this fall. He is a junior, so has two more years of basket ball and baseball and another season of football after the present one.

He is a cool, smart athlete, with a fine personality, the type of fellow who is an asset in every way to his university.

Navy Names Backs For Ohio State Game

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The Navy went through another heavy scrimmage today in preparation for the game with Ohio State at Baltimore Saturday. Coach Bill Ingram said he was satisfied he had found his strongest backfield combination in Kirn, Tschirgi, Hagberg and Bauer.

Navy Soccerists Beat Syracuse Team, 5-2

Special to the Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 5.—Navy defeated Syracuse University on the soccer pitch here today by a score of 5 to 2. Play throughout was fast in spite of the heavy condition of the turf, and both teams showed power on attack.

Syracuse drew first blood early in the opening period when Luckman scored on a corner kick. The Tars lost no time in evening the count, Mackenzie crossing one from the wing and Hollister butted the ball into the net. The Orange players were unable to find the net in the second quarter, but the Middies scored twice, Rice and Kelly each booting the ball through from long fast drives which proved too much for Simmons to stop. Syracuse held an edge in the third period, scoring one goal and holding the Middies at bay. Navy, however, rallied to get two more counts in the final stanza.

Powell played a brilliant game at goal for Navy, making a number of sensational stops of Orange shots. Hollister shared honors of the game from the Navy standpoint, while the work of Luckman and Eaton stood out for Syracuse.

Navy.	Position.	Syracuse.
Powell	Goal	Simmons
Hutchinson	R. F.	Lebrun
Corson	L. F.	Stern
Veasey	R. H.	Sandholzer
Steere	C. H.	Eaton
Corby	L. H.	Ludy
MacKenzie	O. R.	Schantz
Hollister	I. R.	Deberois
Kelly	C. F.	Schloss
Gurnette	I. L.	Haucek
Gilbert	O. L.	Luckman

Navy	1	3	1	0—5
Syracuse	0	0	2	0—2

Substitutions—Navy, Rice for Gilbert, Bellis for Kelly, Masterton for Bellis; Syracuse, Hair for Haucek, Altheter for Lebrun. Navy scoring—Hollister (2), Rice, Kelly, Masterton. Syracuse scoring—Luckman. Hall. Referee—Gordon, of Baltimore. Time of periods—22 minutes.

Plebes Defeat Devitt 13–6 in Practice Game

A downpour which turned the Plebes Field into a unplayable rectangle of mud caused the practice game between Devitt Prep and the Navy Plebes to result in such an exhibition of stumbling and hampered play that officials decided to call it no contest.

Navy gained an edge of 13-7 before the final whistle blew. The game proved so cumbersomely played that officials of the Naval Academy have promised to replay Devitt later on in the season if the occasion arises.

The entire student body accompanied the team and had dinner with the midshipmen.

PETWORTH PTNNANTS, NOTE

The Petworth Pennants will practice tonight and Saturday on the Iowa Avenue Playgrounds. Tonight's drill commences at 8 o'clock.

On aSturday all players are asked to report at 6 o'clock when jerseys will be distributed.

Alexandria Sports

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 6.—"Bick" Cardwell's Episcopal High School Football Team will mix with Virginia Episcopal gridders of Lynchburg, Saturday afternoon on Hoxton Field at 3:15 o'clock.

The Maroon and Black Team will be bidding for its sixth consecutive victory. It has yet to taste defeat in it's campaign for scholastic honors in the Old Dominion. This is one of the feature games on the schedule.

On Friday afternoon, the Virginia Juniors will trek to Episcopal High School for a game with the Episcopal lightweights or 125 pounders. This is the feature contest of the season for the Alexandrians.

Coaches Briscoe and Whitestone have called two practices to be set for the game. On Thursday the Virginia Midgets will scrimmage against the Alexandria High School scrubs.

"Shorty" Scrivener, one of the leaders of the Alpha Delta Omega eleven is attempting to book a game here for Armistice Day, November 11. He hopes to book the National Training School Team for the contest. The game will be played in Baggett's Stadium.

On Sunday the Praters will mix with the fast St. Stephen's eleven in the Capital City League. This contest will be played on Hunton Field.

Maurice Given, athletic director of the Alexandria High School, delivered a talk over radio station WJSV on the outlook of the Alexandria-Fredericksburg High School contest here on Friday. These two teams are fighting for the leadership in the Third District.

Jack Allen, manager of the St. Mary's Celtic Basket Ball Team, has started to line up games for the incoming season.

Virginia Expects to Show Top Form Against V. P. I.

Cavaliers Show Steady Improvement Since Season Opened and Promise Poly a Battle Saturday; End Problem Believed Solved.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 5. Observers of Virginia's football team, as it has developed on Lambeth Field under the direction of Earl Abell and his assistant coaches, Gus Tebell and Johnny Sloan, have been fascinated by the gradual development of the eleven up to its present point.

Virginia plays Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg next Saturday. The Cavaliers are sending no "miracle" team, no undefeated contender for any championship, to Miles Field. But the Virginians will go into their last game away from home with a much finer, harder playing eleven than seemed possible a month ago.

Defensive Weakness Shown Against Duke.

By scoring 85 points in two early games with Roanoke College and Randolph-Macon the Virginians gave an illusion of great offensive strength. Against an up and coming Duke team this illusion of power vanished. Instead, defensive weakness appeared.

During October Coach Abell and his assistants have had to rebuild their team almost from the ground up. After a week they made such progress in strengthening the defensive that their charges were able to hold Pennsylvania to one touchdown through 30 minutes of play.

The team that will face V. P. I. in Blacksburg will have little in common with the one that went to pieces before Duke except some of the same names in the line-up and basic similarity in its general style of play.

Two ends and a center have been developed by the coaches within the month. Two veteran linemen have been shifted so that they play different positions. In the back field there has been much sifting of material to find the best men for each job.

While this has been going on the coaches have had to work a lot and talk very little. They have tasted defeat several times, and victory only once, when they licked V. M. I. But now they have a team that is going to give a good account of itself in remaining games just as it did against Maryland.

End Problem Seems to Be Solved.

This Virginia eleven may not win all three of the games to come. There are many who doubt its power to defeat both V. P. I. and Washington and Lee, and there are few who think it strong enough to down North Carolina. But it is ready to fight to try to win.

With Segar Gravatt and Bill Condon on end the problem of the flanks seems to be solved. Lewis Reiss is making a better center each game he plays. The shifting of Capt. Hunter Motley to guard for part time has helped tighten the line. And in the back field all the ball carriers are scrapping for their jobs.

Duke Sees Kentucky Game As Season Turning Point

Victory Saturday Would Bolster Hopes Against Carolina, W. & L., Carolina State; Alabama Warned of Florida Aerials.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—The gridiron engagement with Kentucky at Durham Saturday may be the turning point of the season for Jimmy Dehart's swan-song edition of the Duke Blue Devils.

A victory would inspire the fast-stepping Devils to later conquests over North Carolina State, Wake Forest, Washington and Lee and the University of North Carolina, but a loss after their long winning streak might break the morale of the Durham outfit.

Dehart regards this game as the hardest on his slate and is whipping his squad into shape for the encounter.

The Blue Devils started their second year as Southern Conference members with a sluggish game against South Carolina and lost, 22 to 0, but Dehart rallied his forces and beat Virginia the next week, 32 to 0. Then followed four straight triumphs, including two intersectional victories over the Navy and Villanova.

The Duke team, with Kid Brewer and Bill Murray as the big offensive guns, has gained power each we and will furnish stiff opposition for the Kentuckians.

Georgia Leaves Today For N. Y. U. Game.

With the squad in good shape following its final home drill today, Georgia's gridiron forces entrain tomorrow for New York and the Saturday tilt with Chick Meehan's N. Y. U Violets.

After a victory over Yale last year the Georgians lost to New York University, 27 to 19, as a closing period rally fell short. Coach Harry Mehre hopes to reverse the decision this year, but with the important conference tilts with Tulane and Alabama ahead Mehre will be unable to shoot the works against the New Yorkers.

The Georgia varsity had little trouble with the enemy formations as presented by reserves in practice this week.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute plans to pin its hopes for victory over Virginia on Phil Speer, speedy half back, who personally brought about the Virginia downfall last year with four touchdown romps.

Two other important State duels are arranged. In North Carolina the university Tarheels face North Carolina State at Raleigh, while in the neighboring Palmetto State, the University of South Carolina opposes Furman.

Tarheels Favored Over Wolfpack.

The Tarheels figure stronger than the State Wolfpack, but a real battle is forecast as the Gamecocks tangle with the Purple team from Greenville.

Word from Gainesville, Fla., is that Alabama will encounter a powerful aerial attack as it battles the University of Florida in a home-coming engagement Saturday.

Realizing the strength of the Alabama line, Coach Bachman has worked out a series of forward and lateral passes formations which he hopes will go against the Crimson. Florida lines repulsed the best efforts Georgia put forth last Saturday and it is believed the Alligator forward wall will offer the Crimson rush line plenty of trouble.

Navy's New Cheer System Is Feature at Grid Games

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 5.—At every game played this year spectators have become enthusiastic over Navy's new cheering features between the halves. The new system of cheering combines sound, color, outline and movement, in such a way that large moving pictures with sound accompaniment can be presented to the spectators.

At the Princeton game nearly two thousand midshipmen participated in producing a caged tiger that lashed its tail and growled loud enough to be heard a mile away. A moving, growling jungle cat nearly 300 feet large had never before been presented in an Eastern stadium.

Under the present idea the cheering sections are required to put in almost as much practice each week as the football squad, as new features are developed. Each week new sets of pictures are worked out by a design committee. When this is complete mimeograph machines run off special instructions for the entire student body. During the week numbers are assigned different groups of midshipmen and large sheets of cardboard in different colors assigned the group.

When all details have been completed the cheer-leaders flash a signal and instantly the 2,000 midshipmen bend low. On a whistle they suddenly appear again and the picture they present is probably a bursting bomb in colors and with sound. Much of the system is original with the Navy cheering-section, though the idea is of far western origin.

In several of the games this season there has been difficulty in clearing the field of spectators in front of the cheering section so the second half could start on time.

The complicated nature of presentation is such that only cheering sections accustomed to drilling together, and trained in mass timing, could present it in interesting and varied form.

Western Maryland Plays In Cleveland Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 5.—The Green Terrors of Western Maryland College will entrain Thursday for Cleveland, Ohio, where they are scheduled to clash with John Carroll University on Saturday in the second intersectional contest in which a Western Maryland Eleven has engaged in the history of the college.

The last intersectional appearance of the Terrors occurred in 1926, during Dick Harlow's first year of mentorship at Western Maryland, when the team traveled up to Massachusetts for an encounter with Holy Cross. The game had been scheduled by the New Englanders as a "breather," but the Terrors performed so creditably that the game was turned into a real contest, and although Holy Cross saved the day, the Terrors were not taken back on their card for the next season.

This Saturday's contest with the Ohioans is certain to prove anything but a set-up, and is likely to give the Terrors a real struggle. In their clash with the heavy All-Marine team in Washington last Saturday night, the Western Maryland machine was pushed to the limit to obtain a victory and emerged from the fracas badly bruised and battered. This extremely hard fought battle, together with the short practice period this week which has been brought about by the long trip, may prove the determining factor in the John Carroll game.

Western Maryland will invade the Ohio city with a splendid record to preserve and is not in any frame of mind to take the coming contest lightly. John Carroll presented a strong eleven last season, which reached its peak in holding the undefeated Davis Elkins Eleven to a 12-point victory.

This season the Clevelanders got off to a rather slow start, but have been coming up ever since, and will undoubtedly be in top form for Saturday's intersectional clash with the Terrors.

JUNIORS GIVE N. C. U. VETS BATTLE

Capt. Nash, Magner May Not Start in N. C. State Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 5.—The Junior Partners of Carolina Backfield Corps, Inc., played the big roles in Carolina's 6-6 game with Georgia Tech Saturday, and indications now are that Carolina's flagging vets must pick up a lot, or the rookies will get the starting call against N. C. State here Saturday.

Individual honors went to Johnny Branch, stubby junior who runs at quarter back, and to Rip Slusser, 10-second junior half back, who started in the place of Capt. Strud Nash.

Branch Received Six Of 14 Passes.

Branch received six of fourteen passes Carolina completed, ran his usual brilliant broken field game, and contributed a sensational run for Carolina's one touchdown. Slusser, on the receiving end on three other passes, topped all ground-gainers with 70 yards, for an average of 5 yards a clip.

Stuart Chandler, sophomore, who started at left half in place of the veteran Jim Magner, also ran a good game and showed lots of drive, while such veterans as Magner and Capt. Nash still lagged.

Hagner's passing in midfield was most effective, the Tarheel sharpshooter completing five before a throw was incompleted, but neither he nor Capt. Nash could seem to get going against the mighty rushes of Tech's heavy and stubborn charging line.

Slusser and Chandler ran harder all round and played better ball. It looks as if the veterans will have to shake off their "staleness" and turn in some mighty good work this week if they want to start against the Wolfpack here Saturday.

Tarheels Met Ga. Tech At Its Peak.

The Tarheels met Georgia Tech at its "peak" Saturday, and played a good game all round in holding Tech's massive eleven playing with all their experience and with the stubborn determination born of a couple of defeats following their early-season 45-0 win over the South Carolina club that beat Duke, 22-0.

Coach Chuck Collins thought Tech played better ball tying the Tarheels than Tennessee had played beating them, 9-7. Carolina played an improved game, Coach Collins thinks. Underwood, stalwart at right tackle, was the only casualty, and Carolina plans to polish its attack and be in fighting form to resume its Big Five campaign against the Wolfpack.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY.

THE 1931 Capital college football fare will be much more satisfying, both in quality and quantity, than that of this fall, if reports emanating from well-informed circles at Georgetown, George Washington and Maryland are correct.

Our informants state that the 1931 home season will break out in a rash of attractive games. And the most interesting part is that the season will extend well into November, longer season by far than any we've experienced in recent years.

There is a possibility that Washington will lose the Georgetown-West Virginia game, although strenuous efforts are being made to retain it, but if it is lost Georgetown will bring another foe equally as strong and possibly more attractive than West Virginia. They say that Maryland plans to present a famous Southern eleven and that George Washington will offer a well-known Mid-West team.

All of which will atone for some shabby treatment of Washington fans during the past three or four years.

Gallaudet's "Timing" Rules Notre Dame's.

Timing is said to be one of the most important factors in this working of the Notre Dame system. But in the system of Teddy Hughes, Gallaudet's chieftain, timing is relatively more important.

Owing to their deafness, the Gallaudet players are required to time their movements perfectly in unison when they begin a play on offense. They get the signal through sign language from the quarter back in a huddle, and then count in their minds a certain interval before putting the play in motion.

So perfectly do they do this that they are seldom penalized for being off-side. Coach Hughes claims that his team commits no more off-side infractions than the average team which hears the starting signal.

Hughes also teaches his players split-vision, as he terms it. Seemingly impossible, but they watch their center and the opposing linemen at the same time for signs of motion. By doing this, even if their silent counting fails to click, they will not go into motion before the ball is snapped or before the opponents start across the scrimmage line.

Each Gallaudet Player Must Be Diagnostician.

Alertness is another Gallaudet essential. On defense, particularly, the Kendall Greenes must be "heads up." There is none among them to shout a warning that the play is going this way or that, to advise shifting to meet anticipated changes in the enemy attack, or, generally speaking, to voice a diagnosis of the forthcoming play.

Georgetown has just closed its most successful home season from a financial standpoint in years. For the first time the West Virginia game yielded a profit, about $1,000. Added to the profits of the West Virginia Wesleyan game and despite the loss incurred in the Michigan State game, the Hilltoppers show a comparatively plump figure on the right side of the books. With big guarantees to be received in the four road games ahead of them, they should record the entire season as the most profitable in their history.

The notable thing about drinking at night football games is not the large number who indulge but the many who reach the wobbly state in the last row of the upper grand stand. It's a thriller when they essay the descent after the game. We saw two or three who gave up midway and completed the trip in the arms of rescuers.

STOCK PRICES LOSE FROM 1 TO 9 POINTS

Averages and Many Pivotal Shares Break Through Previous 1930 Lows.

WHEAT AND COTTON OFF

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The day after election found the stock market maintaining the general downward trend it had held for many weeks before election.

Today's declines, ranging from 1 to 9 points, doubtless attracted wide attention because of the results at the polls yesterday and because so many outstanding issues, including American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas and Pennsylvania Railroad, broke through the narrow safety zones that had separated them from new lows for the year.

The market was dull. A new 1930 minimum for the averages was inevitable because of the weakness in the basic stocks, but the day's sales of 2,249,195 shares showed that neither the election news, a batch of unfavorable earnings statements, weakness of wheat nor a fairly large decrease in steel operations had brought out much liquidation.

Heaviness of the utilities was interpreted in some brokerage circles as an aftermath of the political victories by a few gubernatorial candidates, notably in New York and Pennsylvania whose platforms made the rate issue prominent.

Rail Shares Soften.

Steel issues were confronted with the "iron age" estimate that ingot production had declined to 48 per cent of capacity last week and with the report of the lowest October pig iron output since 1921. Rails softened, despite the rise in car loadings for the week ended October 25; incidentally, this upturn was the day's most favorable piece of business news.

Wheat made new lows for the season on losses of 2 to 3 cents a bushel, which was disconcerting to those who had felt some degree of stabilization in the commodities was being attained. The selling was apparently in sympathy with declines in Winnipeg yesterday and with reports of increased Russian offering abroad. Corn closed fractionally lower to fractionally higher, but cotton dropped $1 to $1.85 a bale, largely on an estimate of larger world consumption of the American Corporation.

Call money, which had carried over the month-end without a change in either official or unofficial rates, firmed slightly, but only to the extent that funds were available outside the exchange at 1½ per cent instead of 1 per cent. However, long term time loans eased to 2¾, a new low for this year of cheap credit.

The erratic "all other" loan item in the weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve Member Banks showed the liberal gain of $134,000,000 against the previous week's decline of $33,000,000, but this was attributed more to borrowing for the first of the month than to an expansion of commercial activity. Loans on securities continued downward, falling $85,000,000.

Opening Is Moderately Steady.

Stocks opened moderately steady, ran into a flurry of selling and then backed and filled below Monday's close until the final hour when pressure became more noticeable.

The so-called pivotal shares were sold freely, but the activity of the shorts in this group became apparent at the close when U. S. Steel, among others, was again loaning at a premium. Steel's low of the day was 141¾—a minimum, in fact, since 1929—but it rallied slightly to close at 142¾, off 3½, and carried the rest of the market generally up from the bottom. American Telephone sagged to 192, finishing 5¾ above that quotation, also for a net loss of 3½.

Other stocks closing about 3 points lower included American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Consolidated Gas and New York Central. Allied Chemical lost 7, Eastman Kodak 9½ and North American 6. Public Service of New Jersey, Stone & Webster, American Water Works, American Power & Light and Case tumbled 4 to 5. General Motors, General Electric, Radio, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio were off about a point.

Irregularity prevailed in the foreign exchanges. Sterling sagged, but the French franc made a fair advance.

RAIL BONDS DECLINE AS SALES SHOW GAIN

Power and Light Company List Pushed Up by Investment Demand.

FOREIGN ISSUES CLIMB

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Accumulation of orders over the holiday influenced increased activity in bonds today, compared with the dull session at the start of the week, but little progress was made on the upside. The weakness of stocks again proved a deterrent, affecting railroad issues most, and their prices were slightly lower, as a rule. However, a better investment demand developed for obligations of power and light companies and some of the best gains of the day were in this section.

While the domestic corporation list virtually ignored the constructive influence of a reduction on some time money rates United States Governments, very sensitive to changes in monetary rates, firmed. Liberty 3½s and first 4¼s and Treasury 4s were 1-16 higher.

Latin-Americans Score.

A majority of changes in foreign bonds was on the upside with Latin-American issues, particularly those of Brazil, Bolivia and Chile, continuing in the vanguard. Bolivian 7s were up 2 and 3 points, while Brazil 8½s, Chile 6s and Chile Mortgage Bank 6s were considerably improved. In the European group French and British governments were virtually unchanged, but German issues were active and mixed. The 5½ advance of German 7s was matched by a similar loss by the 5½s.

Weakness of the stock market encouraged selling of an extensive list of railroad issues but the legs were fairly well supported and fluctuated narrowly. Losses of a point or more appeared in Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4s B, International Great Northern 6s, Nickel Plate 5s, Texas & Pacific 5s B and Chicago, Great Western 4s advanced ¼ on a large turnover.

Sensational Gains in Utilities.

Some rather sensational advances were scored by utility bonds. Federal Light & Traction 6s B 1955 rose 2½, and General Public Service 5s, were up 1. Market Street Railway 7s of San Francisco rallied 2½. New Orleans Public Service 5s B were up 2¼. North American Edison 5s C sagged ¾ in active selling. American Telephone 5s of 1960 were steady on a large turnover.

In bond circles it is expected that in the near future a large volume of municipal issues will be marketed as a result of referenda yesterday. Reports today indicated that many were approved, including large bond issues in New York, New Jersey, and Louisiana totaling $250,000,000 alone. Many public construction projects were to be financed by the bond issues which the public was asked to approve and while returns in some places were incomplete, reports reaching Wall street indicated that nearly all the issues, totaling $475,000,000, had been approved.

BUILDING SOCIETIES SELECT DIRECTORS

Equitable Cooperative and Home Mutual Officers Are Also Named.

BANK RESOURCES GIVEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Barry Black, president, A. B. McCheaney Co., succeeds George King, jr., printer and publisher, on the directorate of the Home Mutual Building & Loan Association, Mr. King resigning from the board. At the annual meeting of shareholders yesterday all other officers and directors were reelected, as follows:

Clarence F. Norment, sr., president; Maurice P. Flynn, vice president; Odell S. Smith, secretary-treasurer. Directors: John Alden, John N. Auth, W. W. Bowie, William F. Gude, R. Lee Horton, William E. Howard, Arthur J. May, John A. Maxwell, George L. Starkey, Alfred Walford, G. W. Forsberg, Karl Achterkirchen, Frank S. Smith, attorney.

Equitable Cooperative Officers.

The annual meeting of shareholders of the Equitable Cooperative Building Association was also held yesterday. Here there were no changes, all officers and directors being reelected. They are the following: John Joy Edson, president; John B. Larner, first vice president; Gilbert H. Grosvenor, second vice president; Walter S. Pratt, jr., secretary. Directors: Ralph P. Barnard, Frederick W. Coville, John Joy Edson, Gilbert H. Grosvenor, John B. Larner, Robert L. Lewis, Harry G. Meem, Walter S. Pratt, jr., Frederic B. Pyle.

The Fidelity Investment Association, largest organization in the country devoted to sale of annuities, reports a gain of more than 39 per cent in volume of business for the nine months compared with the corresponding period of 1929, according to H. C. Harris, manager of the Washington office. For the third quarter of the year, the increase was more than 47 per cent and for the month of September it exceeded 39 per cent. The figures follow:

	1930	1929
September	$5,648,000	$4,780,000
Third quarter	14,000,000	9,500,000
Nine months	37,126,000	26,526,000

The association has paid out more than $11,500,000 to contract holders in the last eight years, according to D. A. Burt, president, and now has resources of $24,164,984. The large increase in the association's business this year, Mr. Burt points out, is in line with the increase in deposits of savings banks, which in common with the association may invest only in asurities approved by the State authorities.

Resoures of 7,197 Banks.

Comptroller of the Currency John W. Pole announced yesterday that aggregate resources of 7,197 reporting national banks in the continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii on September 24, the date of the recent call for statements of condition, amounted to $28,378,683,000, a decrease of $737,856,000 since June 30, the date of the preceding call when there were 7,252 reporting banks, but an increase of $454,373,000 over the amount reported by 7,473 banks as of October 4, 1929, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

W. C. Kilbourne, advertising manager of Investors' Syndicate, with headquarters in Minneapolis, Minn., was a visitor yesterday at the local office, of which James M. Sherrill is in charge. On a tour of Eastern offices of the firm, Mr. Kilbourne said that sales for the first nine months would duplicate approximately those of the 1929 period, more than $75,000,000.

Irish Stamp to Honor Shannon Electric Works

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A special postage stamp commemorating completion of the River Shannon electricity project is to be issued by the Irish Free State. The scheme is now in operation over most of the Free State and even small villages have proved good customers for electricity in a country till now behind the rest of Europe in the use of current. The new stamp is expected to illustrate some of the works on the Shannon.

The last special Irish stamp was issued in celebration of the centenary of Catholic emancipation, when the head of Daniel O'Connell appeared on the issue.

Curb Review

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Heavy selling of the utility shares depressed active Curb market issues 1 to 6 points today. The day's transactions aggregated 625,400 shares, the largest in a fortnight.

Electric Bond & Share was sold in large volume, declining nearly 5 points to 46⅜ a new low. It penetrated for the first time the level of 50, where it met support in the decline of a year ago. American Superpower was carried down about 2 points to a new bottom at 12⅜. American Gas & Electric dropped 6 points.

Heaviness was most pronounced in the bond and share group. Niagara Hudson, however, sagged ⅞ to a new low at 11⅝, and Insull Utility Investment, Middle West, United Light A and Utilities Power & Light sagged about a point. In a few odd-lot transactions Duke Power dropped 9¾ to a new low at 125⅛. Natural gas issues also declined. Memphis lost 1¾.

Industrials were only moderately active, but several were rather weak. Technicolor, which sold earlier in the year as high as 86½, dropped 3 points to 8, then rallied to 9. Deere declined 2 to another new minimum at 52½. Newmont Mining was again under pressure, declining 2½ to 52½, another bottom level. In the oils, Gulf dropped 3 points to new low at 77¼, and Vacuum sold off 1¾. Cities Service, an active feature, lost only ¾, and Standard of Indiana closed steady, up ⅛. Investment trusts showed little change.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Paris, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Price changes were irregular on the bourse today.

Francs per cent realized 60 francs 60 centimes, five per cent loan, 100 francs 65 centimes.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

PRISONER WAS HURT IN FOOTBALL GAME, OFFICIALS DECLARE

Complanits of Brutality, Made by Mother, Are Investigated.

YOUTH, 20, IS INVOLVED IN LORTON, VA., INCIDENT

Charges of Beating and Torturing Placed Against Reformatory Guards.

The toughness of football, public welfare officials said yesterday, accounted for the damaged nose, black eye and body bruises borne by Archibald Lyles, 20 years old, a prisoner serving a sentence for burglary in the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va.

Lyles' mother visited him at the penal institution last Sunday and filed complaint that he had been beaten and tortured by the guards. She filed complaints with The Post, with the Prisoners' Relief Society and the Department of Justice.

Paul L. Kirby, assistant director of public welfare, reported to George S. Wilson, director, that young Lyles had suffered the physical damages complained of in a football game from which Lyles was carried from the field unconscious, or almost unconscious.

Guards Are Absolved.

E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners' Relief Society, is reported also to have been satisfied and to have absolved the guards of the brutality charged.

Mrs. Lyle's story, however, differs. Her son and two other prisoners engaged in a tussle with the guards Sunday, she said. One of the prison informers is said to have told the guards that Lyles and possibly others planned to make a break for freedom. Mrs. Lyles said that after the supposedly friendly tussle the guards ordered the prisoners inside the building and, when their command was not promptly complied with, beat them and kicked them when down. Then the prisoners were strung up with their hands above their heads, Mrs. Lyles said.

Had Escaped Recently.

George S. Wilson denied this had been done. Punishment is never allowed at the reformatory, Mr. Wilson insisted. He did not make it clear how prison officers maintained discipline over hardened prisoners, but insisted that such punishment never could have been administered there.

Lyles recently escaped from the prison and visited his mother who was ill. He achieved some notoriety at that time.

Woman's Rites Held At Charlottesville

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Emma W. Holloway, widow of Joseph C. Holloway, died yesterday at the home of her son-in-law, Byron Davis, in this city. The funeral was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Davis home, the service being conducted by Dr. Henry A. Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Interment was in Riverview Cemetery.

Mrs. Holloway was Miss Emma W. Forloines, daughter of the late D. B. Forloines, of Powhatan County. She was seventy-four years of age. Six children survive. They are C. N. Holloway, Mrs. Byron Davis, Mrs. H. D. Spicer, Mrs. G. R. McGhee and Misses Eva and Lutie Holloway. She also leaves two brothers, R. W. and D. B Forloines, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. C. T. Purks, of King George County.

Son of House Member Badly Hurt in Accident

Jay Kurtz, 19 years old, son of Representative J. Banks Kurtz, of Pennsylvania, living at 3016 Tilden street northwest, is in serious condition at Providence Hospital with a fractured skull as the result of an automobile accident while returning from the Devitt Prep-Navy Plebe football game at Annapolis yesterday.

Young Kurtz was in an automobile which overturned. A companion, Robert Mayo, 20 years old, 7000 Piney Branch road northwest, also was in the hospital, but was not considered to be in serious condition. He suffered multiple bruises.

Trio of Laborers Hurt In Fall on Building Job

Claybourne Jackson, Archie Chavals, and D. H. Borden, all colored laborers employed by a local contracting firm on a house building job at Seventh and R streets northwest, were said to be in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital following a fall from a scaffold on which they were working at that place.

The accident, which police are investigating, happened yesterday morning, and the men were extricated from the wreckage by members of the Fire Rescue Squad.

Legion Post Chooses Kehoe As Commander

William A. Kehoe was elected commander at the meeting of Sergeant Jasper Post No. 13, American Legion, held last night in the Thomas Circle Club. Vice commanders elected were George A. Bache, Marshall McKibbin and J. H. Callahan. Paul H. McMurray was elected chaplain.

Immediately following the election, the post's auxiliary was installed, Commander Ferdinand G. Fraser presiding. Reports on the national convention were given by Francis J. McDonald, Frank Fellers, Daniel H. Pratt and Thomas J. Frailey.

Officials of Treasury Will Assist at Dance

Officials of the Treasury Department and leaders among Government workers will be guests of the Treasury Department Union of the National Federation of Federal Employes at a dance tonight in Almas Temple, 1315 K street northwest.

The committee in charge of the dance is composed of Gretchen Bergner, Ida M. Moore, Margaret R. Sullivan, Alice B. Coleman, Minnie D. Seraf, Dorothy A. Deitrich, Stanley W. Hall, Guy Harper, J. C. Brennan, B. A. Buckler, Wilfred Offutt and John Harrington.

Mrs. Cora E. Hughes, 30, Of Lynchburg, Is Dead

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Cora Elizabeth Hughes, 30, wife of Harry C. Hughes, died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Maddox. She moved here five months ago from Gladys.

Mrs. Hughes is survived by her husband, parents, two children, Katherine F. and Thomas Ray Hughes, and the following brothers and sisters: J. E. Maddox, Oregon; Mrs. H. M. Bradley, Lynchburg; Mrs. H. C. Epperson, Beckley, W. Va.; Clarence Maddox, Miss Albie Maddox and S. L. Maddox, Lynchburg, and Gilbert Maddox, Gladys.

ALEXANDRIA LEGION TO ENTERTAIN 1,000

Philadelphians to Conclude Visit on Sunday With Afternoon Dinner.

TO VIEW HISTORIC SITES

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 823.

Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, will be host to approximately 1,000 legionnaires Sunday afternoon. The visitors live in Philadelphia, and the men in the party are all members of Lu Lu Temple of Shriners, of Philadelphia. They are coming on what has been designated as "Armistice Day Caravan," and will make the journey in busses. They are expected to arrive at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

A committee of 25 members of Alexandria Post 24, headed by Commander Sidney Weil, will meet the visitors and escort them to Gadsby's Tavern, the Legion home, and later they will be shown the Masonic Temple, the old Presbyterian Meeting House, the new George Washington Masonic Memorial Temple, and other points of historic interest, all of which will be opened Sunday especially for the visitors.

At the Masonic Memorial Temple the party will be welcomed by Mayor Carroll Pierce, and the temple will be explained to them by Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Masons in Virginia, and member of the national board of trustees of the temple. The visitors will be accompanied by a band, and will stage a parade on King street to the temple.

The entertainment will close with a dinner to be served late in the afternoon at the Naval Torpedo Station, and the party will take leave of Alexandria at 6:30 p. m. Points of interest in Washington, and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery will also be visited by the Philadelphians.

Joseph Varin, 52, proprietor of "Kings Rest Camp" on North Washington street extended, was arraigned in police court yesterday on a charge of violating the prohibition ordinance, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs and to serve six months in jail. His brother, Leo Varin, of Texas, was charged with the same offense and fined $140.50, including costs, and given one month in jail. Both men, through their attorney, State Senator Frank L. Ball, noted an appeal.

Testimony of the police was to the effect that two pints of whisky were seized at Varin's place on October 25, and Varin later brought to police headquarters another pint which he said had been "planted" at his home, claiming he found it under a refrigerator. The bottle, he said, was wrapped in a piece of cardboard on which was written "Have a drink on me, Joe." He was unable to say who had "planted" the liquor in his home and denied knowledge of the two pints seized, as did his brother, Leo.

Charter members of the Potomac Fire Department will tender a banquet in the George Mason Hotel at 8 o'clock tonight to members of the Potomac Truck and Engine Company No. 2 and Rescue Squad No. 1 of that company.

Talks will be delivered by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, Councilman E. F. Tiver, Norman Roberts, president of Engine Compny No. 4, Sergt. A. L. Bargagni, of the Washington Fire Department; Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., of Alexandria; Edward O'Connor, of the Washington Fire Department; President T. W. McHugh, John Gary, sr., and Walter U. Varney, of the Potomac Fire Department, and J. L. Law, of the American Red Cross. The entertainment program will include vocal numbers by Fred Pettit, accompanied on the piano by his wife; Miss Margaret Ogden and M. L. Jaeger.

Announcement was made at the meeting of the Mary Custis Lee Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held Tuesday night, that the chapter was given a 100 per cent rating by the registrar of the Virginia Division for having completed all registration records of its membership. In the first days of the organization membership papers were incompletely filled in and the immediate past registrar of the local chapter, Miss Edna H. Alexander, has worked to have all records perfect, with the result that the chapter now has all membership records correct.

The chapter will conduct a food sale on Saturday, November 15, at a place to be selected.

Aaron Payne, 35 years old, giving Cherrydale, Va., as his address, entered plea of guilty to a charge of passing two bad checks in police court yesterday morning, and was sentenced to serve six months on the State convict road force.

The Endeavor Bible class of the Second Presbyterian Church celebrated the fourth anniversary of its organization on Tuesday evening with a supper meeting held with Mrs. Nina Bassist. The following officers were elected: Miss Eleana Norris, president; Miss Betty Robey, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Schooley, secretary, and Mrs. Bassist, treasurer. Mrs. Ruth S. Field tendered her resignation as teacher of the class, a position she has held since its organization.

Miss Lelia Thompson entertained the meeting of the Covenanter Bible class of the Second Presbyterian Church on Monday night and the following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. E. R. Thompson, president, and Mrs. Emma Johnston, vice president.

Mrs. F. Chambers Heads Moorefield Legion.

Moorefield, W. Va., Nov. 5 (Special).—Mrs. Frances Chambers was named president of the American Legion Auxiliary here yesterday, succeeding Mrs. H. S. Pownall, recently elected but who was unable to serve.

HEARINGS STARTED ON NEW ROAD PLAN

Virginia Highway Department to Allocate Mileage in Each District.

BRISTOL NEEDS STUDIED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The State Highway Department, in accordance with the acts of 1930, today began hearings for an addition of 1,587 miles to be added to the State highway system.

The department was directed to hold hearings on the mileage to be divided among various counties according to the area the county bears to the total area of the State, and with the provision that no county shall receive less than eight miles; and counties within whose limits are cities wholly or in part of 50,000 population or more shall receive not less than 25 miles.

The acts provided that the highway commission should, after December 1 of this year, announce where 50 per cent of this mileage was located, and take over for maintenance as of December 31, 1930, one-fourth of the total mileage coming to each county, and a second fourth as of July 1, 1931 and that after December 1, 1932, they shall announce where the second half of the mileage is to be located in each county, and take over for maintenance the third fourth of the total mileage as of December 31, 1932; and the fourth quarter as of July 1, 1933.

Hearings on Locations.

Hearings are being given as to location and distribution of the entire mileage coming to each county. After these public hearings no other audiences are to be given.

Dairy Association Plans Convention

Virginia Organization Will Hold Annual Session in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 5.—The Virginia State Dairymen's Association will hold its annual convention in Charlottesville January 29-30, according to an announcement made today by C. Nelson Beck, president of the organization. This convention will be preceded by the annual meeting of the State Dairy Products Association, January 27-28.

Verbon E. Kemp, executive secretary of the Charlottesville Chamber of Commerce, estimates that approximately 400 delegates will attend the convention sessions. Arrangements have been made with city officials and the Monticello Guard to hold the sessions and machinery exhibits in the armory.

Both conventions are arranging interesting and instructive programs and will bring speakers of national reputation on agricultural subjects to Charlottesville to speak on the problems of the fruit and dairy industries.

Virginia Episcopalians Discuss Mission Work

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 5.—The Right Rev. Robert C. Jett, D. D., of the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia, came here today to speak at a conference devoted to home and foreign missions held at the Church of the Epiphany.

The Right Rev. A. C. Thomson, of the Southern Diocese, was present. Clergy from all the surrounding parishes were also present. A similar conference at Petersburg was addressed by Bishop Penick and another was held at Norfolk, where Bishop H. St. George Tucker spoke.

HOME HELP WANTED SUGGESTIONS.

(President Hoover urges odd jobs around the house as employment aid —News item.)

* * * *

WANTED — Strong, determined man or woman of dominant personality and unwavering will power to come into home and rid it of old magazines, back numbers of newspapers and useless books accumulated over period of many years by husband who insists he may need them for reference some time. Liberal pay for right party. Apply wife of any college professor.

* * * *

OPPORTUNITY—For a man to clean out desk; one who is not influenced by age of contents preferred; must have courage to throw away all play scripts dated back ten years or more, destroy large quantities of press clippings too faded to be legible anyway, toss out a ton of letters which are of no value to any one and positively free desk of all collars, cuffs, old lead pencils, bottles, corkscrews, rubbers, Christmas cards, &c. Work should not take long, but will require supreme indifference. Apply to any woman whose husband is a newspaper writer.

* * * *

WANTED—Able-bodied man to go through bookcases and weed out unimportant novels, unauthentic histories, silly biographies and several hundred miscellaneous books originally kept because of the color of their covers and which are of no interest to anybody any more. Must not be impressed by autographs of authors. Phone Caledonia 4567 and ask for Gus the Book Reviewer.

* * * *

NOTICE—I am looking for somebody who can find time to fix leak in radiator, put some packing in bathroom faucet and mend leg on bridge table. I have a husband and four grown sons, all able-bodied and with plenty of spare time, but they have been dodging these odd jobs ever since I can remember. Wife and Mother, General Delivery.

* * * *

HELP—Liberal compensation for a woman who can come into my home and straighten out bathroom medicine cabinet so a man can locate what he wants; determination not to crowd shelves, and definite pledge to throw away all empty or nearly empty bottles essential. Am particularly emphatic in belief that three bottles labeled "Peppermint" and six marked "Boracic Acid" on one shelf are excessive. Phone Mercantile 8765 and ask for Distressed Husband.

I NEED some one to put shoe trees in my shoes, keep my fountain pen filled and throw out all of last year's telephone directories. I never seem to get around to these tasks myself. Elmer Twitchell.

How can you reconcile the iron and steel leaders' statements that the business outlook is good with the fact they are holding their convention at a golf resort?

HOWEVER, they are at Pinehurst to discuss business swings and there is no place in America where so many swings can be studied at close range.

GOODNOW ELECTED BY HIGHWAY GROUP

George Washington Road Unit Planning to Publicize Highway's Merits.

MEETING IN WINCHESTER

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 5.—Definite plans for placing before the motoring public such features as low grades and scenic beauty of the George Washington Memorial highway, or route No. 50 in Virginia and West Virginia will be made November 17 at a meeting of the George Washington Highway Association in Alexandria, it was announced today, following an organization meeting here, at which officers were chosen.

F. C. Goodnow, Alexandria, was elected president; Eugene R. Branch, Winchester, vice president; Dan S. Hollenga, Alexandria, secretary, and D. K. Miley, Upperville, Va., treasurer.

Directors were elected as follows: Alexandria, F. C. Goodnow and Doll Zirkle; Fairfax County, E. H. Allen and George F. Harrison; Fauquier County, A. C. Read and Dr. F. Gouchenour; Loudoun County, C. C. Saffer and D. C. Sands; Clarke County, R. G. Mitchell and J. L. Carper, and City of Winchester, Andrew Bell and Eugene R. Branch.

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce sponsored the meeting here which was attended by a large gathering of prominent citizens of counties and towns between here and Washington. Speeches were made by Charles P. McVicar, president of the chamber of commerce; Col. H. J. Benchoff, president of Shenandoah Valley, Inc.; Eugene R. Branch, manager of the George Washington Hotel; Lewis F. Cooper, president of the Hotel Corporation; R. Gray Williams, attorney; Andrew Bell, commerce chamber secretary, and F. G. Bish, director of the Northwestern Turnpike, Inc., Clarksburg, W. Va.

Mr. Bish said the organization with which he is identified wished to work in cooperation with the George Washington Memorial Highway Association as a link in a great chain across the United States, which had as its purpose the development of U. S. Route No. 50 as a transcontinental avenue of travel.

The road now joins at Winchester the Northwestern turnpike, extending westward through West Virginia and Ohio and beyond; the Shenandoah Valley pike, the road to Richmond, the highway to Hagerstown, Md., and the North; a paved highway to Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and Baltimore, and another road across the Blue Ridge Mountains to Leesburg, Va., and Washington.

Justice Gordan Goes Under Knife; Improves

Justice Peyton Gordon, of the District Supreme Court, yesterday underwent a thyroid operation at Emergency Hospital, which last night was reported a complete success with the patient well started on his way to recovery.

Physicians did not consider the operation serious and expected Justice Gordon to resume his duties in Criminal Division, No. 1, within a week or ten days.

RITCHIE REELECTED BY HUGE MAJORITY

Governor Receives Largest Majority Ever Given in Maryland Race.

DEMOCRATS WIN STATE

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Nov. 5.—Although hard pressed in the counties of Maryland, Gov. Ritchie, Tuesday carried Baltimore City by the largest majority ever received by any candidate running at the top of the ticket in a State-wide race, to be reelected chief executive of Maryland for his fourth consecutive term.

Gov. Ritchie was elected by a greater majority than he received four years ago when his majority represented a high-water mark for a gubernatorial candidate. Not only did the governor win overwhelmingly, but he carried virtually all Democratic candidates into office, except in sections overwhelmingly Republican.

Most notable of all the victories Tuesday was that of David J. Lewis, Democrat, who repeated his past three performances of obtaining a majority in the strongly intrenched Republican Western Maryland congressional district. Mr. Lewis was elected by a safe majority.

The Democratic candidates for Congress in the five other Maryland districts also were elected. When these successful candidates assume their seats in Congress next March 4, it will be the first time in a generation that the Maryland delegation in the House of Representatives has been wholly Democratic.

The Democratic sweep in Maryland carried into office members of that party running for office in counties with Republican majorities such as Calvert, Washington and Charles. The Democratic control of the Legislature will be greater next January than it has been since Gov. Ritchie entered the Statehouse.

Man, Caught in Cogs, Is Ground to Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Nov. 5.—For sixteen years James H. Desper, 69 years old, had gone about his duties as machinery oiler in the White Star Mills here and never had an accident. This morning his overall jacket was caught in a gear as he leaned over to "touch up" an oil hole. Desper was dragged into the grip of two large cog wheels and ground to death. He was alone when the accident happened. It is estimated that ten minutes elapsed between the time Desper was killed and when a fellow worker on the floor below noticed blood trickling down an elevator shaft. Discovery followed.

Desper is survived by two sons, five daughters and two brothers. Funeral services will be held here Thursday afternoon.

Gans Talks on "Buy Now" Campaign.

Isaac Gans, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday addressed members of the Probus Club at their weekly luncheon in the Ambassador Hotel on the "Buy Now" campaign.

ANDERSON THANKS CIVIC COMMITTEES

Sees "Victory for Progress" in Arlington's Vote for County Manager.

BRAGG ACCLAIMS CHANGE

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Robert N. Anderson, chairman of the committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation which had charge of the campaign for a change in the form of county government, in a statement given out yesterday said:

"I am gratified at the splendid victory for progress and better government for Arlington County. Credit for this is due in a great measure to the unceasing labors, over a period of several months, of the Civic Federation committee in charge of the campaign, ably assisted by other delegates, several score members of local citizens associations, who aided in the circulating of the petitions calling for the election, in the house-to-house canvass and in distribution of literature explaining the proposed change, and in the splendid work at the polls Tuesday.

"The civic federation gladly accords to the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce and the County Bar Association an equal measure of credit for the results. When these three organizations, after months of study of the question, reached a conclusion on the superior merits of the city manager form of government, with the election of the county board at large, and when the voters were supplied with all the facts developed in the course of these studies, it did not seem possible that the election could result other than it did.

"Much praise is also due to State Senator Frank L. Ball, Delegate Hugh Reid, County Democratic Chairman William L. Bragg, County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green and County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, who openly supported the plan and brought to its support the weight of their influence with the large body of voters of the county."

In conclusion Mr. Anderson said, "The cooperation of the Washington press, in giving its columns daily to the cause, is greatly appreciated by the committee."

William L. Bragg, county Democratic chairman, said last night, "The voters of Arlington County, in voting for the change in the form of county government as sponsored by the Civic Federation, have taken a most progressive step.

"The credit for this change should go to the members of the committees from the Civic Federation, the Chamber of Commerce and the Bar Association, who gave months of their time to an exhaustive study of the question, who so ably and fully presented it to the voters, and through whose splendid work the result was achieved."

For the fourth consecutive year Mrs. Norbert Melnick has been chosen county chairman of the Christmas seal sale, which will open November 28.

Letters now being prepared will be sent to more than 6,000 homes. In each letter will be inclosed 200 of the seals. In addition, letters will be sent to the 200 business firms in the county asking their support, which was given so ably last year.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, stated yesterday that through the work accomplished by the Virginia State Tuberculosis Association hundreds of lives had been saved.

The records show that the death rate in Virginia has been reduced 46 per cent in the last fourteen years. Last year, 2,415 lives were lost from tuberculosis, against 2,499 in 1928.

In the United States, Dr. Chichester said, 140,000 lives are saved each year. The death rate for the county is 79.2 instead of 200 per 100,000 persons, as in 1904, when the national organization was created.

Mrs. Melnick has appealed for the citizens of the county to support the sale of the seals, that the work may go forward.

A comedy entitled, "Her Step-Husband," will be presented by the St. George Players in the parish hall at Fairfax tonight and tomorrow night. The play is being given under auspices of the Men's Club of St. George's Episcopal Church.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club, with A. F. Thelander presiding.

The county board of supervisors will hold a special meeting at the courthouse tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. This meeting is to consider ways and means of financing extensions to the county water system.

The county school board at its meeting yesterday opened bids for construction of 2,750 feet of sewer as an extension to the Washington-Lee High School line, now in use along Spout Run. The board took no action, but it is understood the contract will be awarded at a called meeting to be announced by County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred M. Cook in Cherrydale yesterday, the executive committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County made its plans for the November meeting, which will be held the afternoon of November 19. The place will be announced.

Grace Hayes Riley, dean at the Washington Law College, is to be the honored guest and principal speaker.

The nominating committee, to be chosen at this meeting, will prepare the slate for the election, which is to take place at the January meeting.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday evening, November 11, at the home of Mrs. Paul E. Scheffel, Glebe road near Columbia pike, at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is urged as plans for the winter will be discussed.

The commissioners of election will meet today in the office of County Clerk William H. Duncan, to certify the vote cast Tuesday.

School Board Seats Won by Democrats

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 5.—The Democrats picked up two seats on the five-member school board here in the election yesterday on the face of unofficial returns.

W. N. Dunn (Democrat), defeated Robert Kershner (Republican), and Charles Siler (Democrat), defeated J. B. Heck, present incumbent. Willard Grimes (Republican) had no opposition.

Mrs. Eliza V. Criswell Dies at North Mountain

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Eliza Virginia Criswell, 77 years old, widow of John R. Criswell, a member of one of this county's oldest and best known families, died at her home near North Mountain Tuesday after a week's illness.

She had successfully managed the family farm interests since the death of her husband 22 years ago. Surviving are an older brother, George D. Ellis, North Mountain, and two daughters, the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Criswell, at the home. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at the home.

BALLOT IN FAIRFAX BELOW FORECAST

Democrats, Despite Adverse Weather, Able to Win Impressive Victory.

VOTE IN DISTRICTS GIVEN

Fairfax County, which had strayed from the Democratic fold in the past two general elections, returned at Tuesday's election by giving the Democratic candidates a two to one vote over their opponents. Although the vote cast was less than that of the Democratic primary in August, a large number of citizens went to the polls in spite of the inclement weather.

The small vote was attributed partly to the weather, but more largely to the general apathy which has prevailed since the bitterly fought August primary. It had been generally conceded that Smith would carry the district, but Republicans in Fairfax County, with their eyes on the effect of this vote on next year's local elections, made a determined effort to poll a large vote here.

Twenty-three out of 25 precincts gave 4,626 votes for Senator Glass, 585 for Mr. Byars, 114 for Mr. Morgan, contenders for the Senate seat; 1,742 votes for Mr. Smith, 852 for Dr. Brooks and 14 for Mr. John Daniel, for the House of Representatives. The 699 votes for Mr Byars and Mr. Morgan were interpreted not so much as votes for the men themselves, who are not well known in the county, although Mr. Morgan lives at Accotink, as a gesture of protest against Senator Glass.

Vote by Precincts.

The vote by precincts follow:

Falls Church district—Falls Church precinct: Glass, 173; Byars, 72; Morgan, 11; Smith, 165; Brooks, 99; Daniel, 3. Annandale precinct: Glass, 56; Byars, 19; Morgan, 7; Smith, 59; Brooks, 24. West End precinct: Glass, 50; Byars, 8; Smith, 53; Brokos, 13.
